NOTES.

Leg. Bib. — The first series of Legal Bibliography, appearing irregularly through several years, reached its twelfth number, and there stopped, because of dull times. With the revival of business it again appears, in a somewhat different form, as a new series.

The First Series. — Readers of the old Leg. Bib. will remember that in its pages, advertisements of new books, and lists of bargains in old books, were sandwiched between anecdotes and brief comments, with occasionally a notable portrait; or a serious bibliographical article. In another column some of these features are enumerated.

The New Series. — This new series will issue like its ancestor, whenever the publishers please. Its purpose will be to advertise in a cheery and readable way the new and old books they want to sell. To insure interest there will be occasional paragraphs worth perusal, with anecdotes, portraits, perhaps an occasional verse, and whatever else may serve to lighten and vary the monotony of the contents. The wise lawyer will therefore read every word in these pages in the hope of finding something entertaining or instructive.

Subscription Price. — Nothing is charged for this paper. It comes free of cost. But if any reader finds amusement or information in its columns, he ought in fair reciprocity to sit down and send the publishers an order, or a subscription to the Green Bag, or a legal anecdote, or at least a postal-card of encouragement.

NOTES.

Our Cut.—The illustration on the first page of this number is a reduced cut from the portrait of Robert R. Livingston which serves as frontispiece to the September number of The Green Bag. This portrait reproduces effectively the statue of Livingston, which stands in the rotunda of the capitol at Washington.

Now in Print.—Vol. 1 of Stimson's American Statute Law was for some time out of print, but can now be furnished at the former price ($7.50 net).

Index Volume to E. R. C.—In answer to many inquiries, we would state that English Ruling Cases will have, on completion, a satisfactory Index, with full cross-references, and tables of English and American Cases, in a supplementary volume.

Problems of Advertising.—How to advertise effectively is a difficult problem for every business man,—most of all to publishers of law books. With such a deluge of announcements of poor books and cheap books in every mail, how can the publisher who has a really good and useful law book to sell, get the busy lawyer to read his circulars?

Pass it Along.—If the "gentle reader" likes to take his advertising dose in this form, he owes it to himself and his profession, not only to respond as suggested above, but also to pass Leg. Bib. around to his neighbors. For our lists of buying lawyers are very defective, and in many parts of the country we mail copies at hazard, hoping to hit the more intelligent and prosperous members of the profession. It is probable that your neighbor has not seen this number.

What to Buy.—If you cannot afford to subscribe for "English Ruling Cases," look carefully through the list of our publications on the last page, and see if you have all the books therein scheduled, which would help you in practice. If not, why not make up and send in to us, either alone or in combination with neighbors, an order which should secure for your office or your building, the good books we advertise.

The Green Bag.—Whatever else you do, try to take The Green Bag for the inspiration and entertainment it gives. If you can afford to buy the set of six bound volumes, you will have at hand a well-spring of delight for long winter evenings. If thirty dollars is too much for luxury these hard times, why not venture four dollars on a year's subscription?

New Editions.—The "Chicago Legal News" says: "What the profession wants to know when the second edition of a work appears, is whether it is sufficiently revised and brought down to justify the expense of purchasing the new to replace the old edition. In the case of Minor's Wood on Railways we should advise every person practicing law to obtain the new edition."

CORPORATION LAW.

What work on Corporation Law have you on your shelves? Whatever it is, it is not complete unless you have beside it Vol. 2 of Stimson's American Statute Law, $6.50 net, which is "an analytical and compared digest of the statutes of all the states and territories relating to corporations." The value of such a digest, in weighing the importance of decisions, is obvious.

COMPARATIVE CITATION OF REPORTS.

Our canvass for subscriptions to English Ruling Cases has brought up anew a query which has often been propounded before by lawyers desirous of buying sets of reports; viz., "What sets of reports are now most frequently cited in American courts?" The relative order of citation and usefulness will naturally govern the purchase of sets for public or private law libraries.

In order to answer this query definitely and accurately, we have caused a careful count to be made of the citations in the latest volumes of each set of American reports which had been received at the Massachusetts state library in October, 1894. The latest volume was taken of the reports of the highest court in each state and of the United States. Only the citations in the decisions of the judges (not those in the briefs of counsel) were counted, and the citations to the set of the state itself were left out of the calculation, as they are naturally the most numerous and do not affect the question what outside reports are most cited. The result is interesting. Two reports were made, the first when 32 of the oldest states had been examined; the second including also 13 of the more recently admitted states. The change in the footings shows how largely the United States reports and the California reports are cited in the new states.

The first figures submitted are here given only to show the order of the first twenty states. The second list is given in full.

Cases of other courts were cited in the decisions contained in the latest volumes of reports from 32 older states, as follows:—

English . . .	1483	Iowa . . .	231
New York . . .	1164	Missouri . . .	216
United States . . .	1137	Maine . . .	209
Massachusetts . . .	1120	Wisconsin . . .	186
Pennsylvania . . .	446	New Hampshire . . .	173
Illinois . . .	312	Connecticut . . .	170
Michigan . . .	289	Ohio . . .	163
Maryland . . .	241	New Jersey . . .	157
California . . .	231	Vermont . . .	127

Cases of other courts were cited in the decisions contained in the latest volumes of reports from 45 states (including all the newer states as well as the older), as follows:—

United States . . .	1669	Georgia . . .	92
English . . .	1594	Tennessee . . .	89
New York . . .	1424	Kentucky . . .	87
Massachusetts . . .	1268	Nebraska . . .	78
California . . .	805	Mississippi . . .	70
Pennsylvania . . .	532	South Carolina . . .	66
Illinois . . .	471	Virginia . . .	66
Michigan . . .	385	Colorado . . .	62
Iowa . . .	355	Louisiana . . .	59
Indiana . . .	317	Nevada . . .	58
Missouri . . .	306	Arkansas . . .	53
Wisconsin . . .	303	Rhode Island . . .	39
Maine . . .	230	Oregon . . .	39
Minnesota . . .	215	West Virginia . . .	34
Ohio . . .	207	Arizona . . .	22
Connecticut . . .	206	Montana . . .	21
New Hampshire . . .	205	Idaho . . .	15
New Jersey . . .	205	Florida . . .	14
Alabama . . .	163	South Dakota . . .	13
Kansas . . .	158	Washington . . .	12
Vermont . . .	151	North Dakota . . .	9
Maryland . . .	131	Delaware . . .	8
Texas . . .	126	Wyoming . . .	2
North Carolina . . .	103

This result will surprise a great many of our readers, but it certainly bears out Prof. Mechem's opinion (see Address The Boston Book Co., 15½ Beacon Street, Boston.

"A Model Book Review" in another column) that "the courts in this country whose decisions are looked upon with most respect, draw their supplies more largely from the English reports than from any American state."

The figures given appear to demonstrate that as soon as a lawyer in any of the older states gets ready to buy any sets of reports outside of his own state, his order of purchase should be—in their line of apparent usefulness:—

1. The Best English Reports.
2. The United States Supreme Court Reports.
3. New York Reports.
4. Massachusetts Reports.

With the other sets following at a long interval. His choice among these would probably be determined by local considerations.

LEG. BIB.: FIRST SERIES.

The old series of this paper had a large circulation, with many readers, friends, and correspondents in all parts of the United States, but being occasional in issue and in purpose, it was usually read and thrown aside, so that it now belongs to the vast army of "back numbers."

Only three complete files of Leg. Bib., First Series, are known to be in existence. One is in the publishers' office, one in a law library, the third in possession of one of the justices of the United States Supreme Court.

Some of the contents of the first series were worth preservation. Among the short articles were:—

- In No. 1. Law Books in the British Museum.
The Ideal Law Library.
- In No. 3. Pronunciation of English Reporters' Names.
- In No. 4. Pronunciation of American Reporters' Names.
- In No. 5. Chief Justice Hale.
- In Nos. 6 and 7. Chief Justice Marshall.
- In No. 7. The Learned and Laborious Coke.
Littleton, alias Westcott.
- In No. 8. Rufus Choate.
- In No. 10. Judge Metcalf.
A Tuneful Bar.

And through many of the numbers a series of interesting "Notes and Queries."

For illustrations, No. 5 contained a portrait of Chief Justice Hale; No. 6, two portraits of Marshall, at 45 and 75 years of age; No. 7, quaint old wood-cuts of Coke and Littleton; No. 8, a striking portrait of Rufus Choate; No. 9, Freeman Place Chapel, and an effective reproduction of the Oxford statue of Blackstone; No. 10, portrait of Judge Theron Metcalf and other legal authors; No. 11, portraits of Chief Justice Fuller, and Justice Lamar, of the United States Supreme Court; No. 12, portraits of Greenleaf, Sharswood, Cooley, and Wharton.

If any of the younger generation of lawyers would like to see either of these articles or illustrations, perhaps we can find copies of some of the numbers in our crypts. But a full set of the first series of Leg. Bib. cannot be bought, except perhaps at an extravagant price.

FOSTER AND ABBOT ON INCOME TAX.

As soon as the forms to be used under the new Income Tax Law are prepared by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, we shall publish a treatise on the law by Roger Foster and Everett V. Abbot, of the New York Bar. Mr. Foster is the author of Foster's Federal Practice, and Mr. Abbot is one of the lecturers on law in the Metropolitan Law School.

The first part of the volume will contain a treatise on the law of the Income Tax. The second part will contain the new Act in paragraphs, with a digest of cases under analogous provisions of former Federal Statutes and English acts. Appendices will give the old Income Tax Law, together with forms.

The reputation which Mr. Foster has made through the two editions of his well-known work on Federal Practice, gives assurance to the profession that the forthcoming manual will be a safe and thorough guide to the construction of the new law. It is more than probable that puzzling questions will arise under it, as soon as the law is fairly in operation, and that every lawyer must be prepared to advise his clients regarding it.

We hope to have Foster and Abbot on the Income Tax ready in December. Advance orders will be placed on file and filled on publication.

EQUITY PRACTICE IN THE STATE COURTS.

We desire to call attention to the advantages, to a practitioner in the Courts of Chancery and Equity in any state, of Foster's Federal Practice. (Second Edition, 2 vols., $12.00 net.) This is not only the standard work on practice in the courts of the United States; but is also the best practical treatise on Equity Practice as it now exists in the courts of those states which have not fused law and equity together.

The first volume, with the exception of a few sections on the special jurisdiction of the courts of the United States, is entirely devoted to the jurisdiction and practice of Courts of Equity. This is the work as originally written by Mr. Foster; when, as was said by "Current Comment and Legal Literature" of the first edition, "It is essentially a treatise on the administration of equity." In the second volume is a chapter on Writs of Error and Appeals, which contains a full guide to the practice on appeal in any State Court of Chancery as well as in the Federal courts, provided that the practitioner has a copy of the local rules upon the subject.

This book covers everything in Mitford's "Pleadings," Daniell's "Chancery Practice," and Story's "Equity Pleading," which is of practical use at the present time; and an examination of its compactly printed pages and its succinct style, which are absolutely devoid of padding, will show that it contains more practical matter upon Chancery practice as it is now administered in the State as well as the Federal courts than any other work old or new. Appended to the work is a collection of forms for Chancery practice as well as for practice in the courts of the United States.

Even, therefore, if you do not practice in the Federal courts, you will find this book indispensable for everyday practice in your State Court of Equity.

A MODEL BOOK REVIEW.

It is very difficult for lawyers to get any light on the purchase of books from the book-notices in the current law magazines. At the best, these are only perfunctory abstracts from the publishers' circulars; and it is so rarely that a competent critic analyzes and weighs the merits of a new book, that we take pleasure in noting a conspicuous exception to the rule, and calling attention to Prof. Floyd R. Mechem's admirable review of English Ruling Cases, Vol. I., in the October number of "The Law Book News." As a practising lawyer, as the author of two excellent law-books, and as a lecturer at the Law School of Michigan University, Prof. Mechem has had a training which especially qualifies him for judicious criticism.

The review is too long to be quoted here in full, but we present for our readers the following extracts:—

"Many attempts have been made to render the bulk of the English case law more available to the practitioner. Of its value to American lawyers there can be no doubt, and it is easily demonstrable that the courts in this country whose decisions are looked upon with most respect draw their supplies more largely from the English reports than from any American state.  In short, then, we are to have twenty-five volumes, made up of the ruling or leading English cases upon the principal topics of the law, selected from the whole period of English jurisprudence, topically arranged, with notes by the English editor giving the effect of the other English cases, and with separate notes by the American editor showing how the ruling cases are regarded in the United States, and particularly what the latest cases hold and the latest text writers say upon the subject with which they deal.

"This is, in many important respects, a new departure in law book making, and it is deserving of analysis. In the first place, these are to be 'ruling' cases,—not a collection of cases of 'general value' like the American Decisions or Moak's English Reports, but the one, two, or more great ruling or leading English cases upon the principal legal subjects. This is a thing which is possible of English cases, but impossible of American cases, treated as a whole. We might have a selection of the ruling Massachusetts or New York or Federal cases, the ruling cases of any single jurisdiction, but not of fifty jurisdictions, within any one of which a case may be a ruling one, though it were ignored in every other. England, then, with a single jurisdiction, and one court of last resort, presents an attractive and unique field from which ruling cases may be selected. They will naturally not be numerous, and within their jurisdiction they will be authoritative. There can be comparatively little difficulty, also, in selecting them. The project so far seems a feasible one.

"In the next place, the cases are to be arranged under topics, which will appear in alphabetical order.  The topical arrangement has great advantages where it is feasible. It cannot, of course, be employed in a reprint of current cases, but it is possible with old cases, and it permits the gathering together in one group, of all the cases to be reproduced upon any given subject, where they can be analyzed and compared and annotated in the most effective manner. The lawyer, interested in a given subject, and investigating it in the 'Ruling Cases,' is not obliged to hunt through twenty-five volumes for the cases upon it; but here, in one volume, he finds them, all together, compact, convenient, easily carried to court, to consultation, or on a journey.  This arrangement also makes the volumes available for the use of students and teachers in the law schools, where the study of cases is justly coming more and more to be recognized as a most efficient method of instruction. This part of the plan, then, is also feasible and admirable.

"In the next place, the cases are to receive annotation by both the English and the American editors. Of the value of leading cases, honestly and thoroughly annotated, there can be no sort of doubt.  To a lawyer who has not access to the Reports themselves, these are the best assistants, and to those who have such access they furnish a valuable digest and index.

"Lastly, all of the leading topics of the law are to be covered in this way, and more could not be asked for. The whole plan is a commendable one. ***

"The selection of the cases seems excellent. No one can be so well fitted to decide what cases are properly to be designated as 'ruling' in England as an intelligent and scholarly English lawyer, and for this purpose Mr. Campbell's experience at the bar, as an author, and particularly as a co-laborer of Sir Frederick Pollock in the preparation of the Revised Reports, seems pre-eminently to fit him. ***

We are inclined to think that, for the purpose to be here subserved, and having due regard for the economy of space, the American notes, though they seem at times to be taking conclusions somewhat at second hand, and though they are not elaborate treatises upon the law, are all that is reasonably to be desired, and do most admirably and intelligently show the present condition of the American law upon the subject, and point out to the user the most available and reliable sources for further investigation, if he desires to make it. About 1,000 cases are cited in the English notes, and the same number in the American."

RAILWAYS IN COURT.

Railway litigation—the litigation of railroads and against railroads—has its seasons of waxing and waning. Last year and the year before there was a marked falling off in the number of such suits brought into court, all over the country. This year there are signs of a revival of litigation in this direction. Whether it is the swing of the pendulum, or whether the hard times and diminished receipts have forced the railroads to avail themselves of the defenses and delays of the law, rather than settle up by compromises and prompt payments, or whether revived business is bringing increased complications, we do not know; but the fact seems evident.

In view of this revival, the prudent lawyer, whether retained for or against railroads, will see that he has on his shelves Minor's new edition of Wood's American Railway Law, as the latest and best authority. This is one of the topics where an old book or an old edition is worse than useless, for it may be misleading. The courts are manufacturing law every day, and the latest edition is the only one to use.

GOOD BOOKS FOR LAW STUDENTS.

Real Property.—The event of the year in students' books has been the publication (in October) of a new edition of Williams on Real Property. It is a reprint in full of the seventeenth English edition, re-cast and greatly improved by the author's son. The American notes, by Prof. H. B. Hutchins, of Cornell Law School, are full, clear, and practical. Of the work itself, the "Solicitors' Journal" well says: "Although many admirable more or less elementary treatises on real property have appeared in recent years, none has for its special object excelled the late Mr. Joshua Williams's book. He knew so well how to hit the happy mean between elaborate detail and bare statement of principle; he was so habitually accurate and concise in expression, and so clear and masterly in the enunciation of principle, that no student who thoroughly digested his book could fail to obtain a very solid groundwork of knowledge of real property law. Hutchins's Williams on Real Property, a handsome volume of 850 pages, published at $4.00 net, will henceforth be the standard edition.

Evidence.—CHAMBERLAYNE's new international edition of Best on Evidence (price $5.00 net) has the merits of being a recognized standard; in one volume, with late and sound American notes citing cases in many jurisdictions; and it enjoys the distinction of being one of the few books a student can buy for use while studying, and also keep for subsequent use in practice. It is as useful to a lawyer as to a student.

Introduction and Review.—To block out the way at the commencement of a course of study, and to review or "cram" for examinations, Ewell's Essentials of the Law (3 vols., sheep, $7.50 net, leatherette $6.00 net) will be found extremely useful. Vol. 1 is an edition of Blackstone, condensed by the omission of obsolete matter. Vols. 2 and 3 are epitomes of standard treatises on Pleading, Contracts, Equity, Evidence, Torts, and Real Property.

Sales—Domestic Relations—Criminal Law.—On these three topics of a law course, Mr. IRVING BROWNE, widely known as an experienced lawyer and author, and as a graceful writer, has published elementary treatises which are models of brevity, clearness, and intelligibility. Each volume is sold at $2.50, in sheep, or $2.00 in leatherette, net.

Wills.—There is no question—as any good lawyer will substantiate—that the standard American treatises on estates of decedents are Schouler on Wills, and Schouler on Executors (price $5.50, net, each). Although written for lawyers, and generally used in practice, Schouler on Wills is so clear and simple in style that it is especially useful for study of the subject. This also is one of the books a student can buy, with the assurance that it will be useful to him after he begins to practice law.

Equity Pleading.—HEARD's Equity Pleading is the only elementary American work on the subject. Price $2.50 in sheep, or $2.00 in leatherette.

Leading Common Law Cases.—INDERMAUR's Common Law Cases for Students is a little volume (cloth, $1.50) containing brief and pithy condensations of the decisions contained in the celebrated collection known as "Smith's Leading Cases."

THE U. S. SUPREME COURT IN SESSION.

The GREEN BAG premium for 1895 will be a large picture of the present United States Supreme Court in session in their chamber at the Capitol. In order to ensure an accurate and artistic representation, we got Notman (celebrated for his effective photography) to send a special artist to Washington, to photograph the judges and the Supreme Court Chamber. The Court will be shown as seated at the bench, the Chief Justice in the centre; on his right, Justices Field, Gray, Brown, and Jackson; and on his left, Justices Harlow, Brewer, Shiras, and White. The background will show the architecture of the Supreme Court room,—the old Senate Chamber of the original Capitol, before the wings were built.

This interesting group will be sent free to every old subscriber to the GREEN BAG who pays his 1895 subscription promptly (before January 10), and to every new subscriber for 1895. If you want the picture for your office or home, $4.00 sent at once to THE BOSTON BOOK CO. will secure it, and also THE GREEN BAG for a year. We shall strike off a few extra copies, to be sold at $3.00 apiece.

We expect to have this picture ready for delivery about Christmas. It will make an excellent Christmas present for a lawyer.

LEGAL PORTRAITS.

In answer to inquiry, we would say that we get from time to time good engravings of American and English judges and famous lawyers, suitable for framing. Whenever these accumulate, we print a price-list and send it to the lawyers who have previously bought or signified an interest in portraits.

We have now on hand extra copies of the GREEN BAG premiums, namely:—

Chief Justice Marshall, price . . . $1.00.

Daniel Webster, price . . . 1.00.

Chief Justices of the U. S. (group), price, 3.00.

And shall have, in December, the group-portrait of the present U. S. Supreme Court in session, described above.

We also have a very striking engraving representing Justices Smith, Day, Pollock, Coleridge, and Charles, sitting as the English Court of Criminal Appeal (size, 42 x 30 inches: price, $12.50); and a large engraving of the House of Commons in session, with Gladstone delivering his last great speech (size, 18 x 25½; price, $6.00). A key-sketch identifying ninety members of Parliament accompany the latter picture.

A NECESSARY LUXURY.

The Green Bag continues to delight and refresh the American bar. It is the only magazine which has ever invited lawyers' support, without any pretense of being useful in practice. Its existence and its success are witnesses to the cultivation of the legal fraternity,—of their pride in the amenities and the liberal literature of the profession. It has become recognized as the first luxury a lawyer can allow himself when his income begins to exceed his expenses,—a luxury so stimulating and educational as to be ranked almost among the necessities of civilization,—like handkerchiefs, and napkins, and bath-tubs, and furnaces, and a dozen conveniences we could get along without if we chose.

LAW LIBRARY

COMMENDATION OF E. R. C.

As the good opinion of good lawyers is after all the best advertisement of a new book, we present here quotations from recent letters in regard to English Ruling Cases.

From Hon. Henry Strong, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada:—

"I have made a thorough examination of Vol. 1, and have no hesitation in saying that if the succeeding volumes maintain the high standard of the first, the series will be a most valuable addition to the library of the working lawyer."

From Hon. T. E. Cooper, Chief Justice of Mississippi:—

"I have given the first volume of the English Ruling Cases careful and full examination, having read it during our last vacation. I have also had some opportunity to examine the second volume, recently published. The series will, I am confident, be of great value to the Bench and Bar. The work of the annotation is conscientiously and intelligently done, and the cases reported well selected. You deserve, and I hope will receive, the support of the profession whose labors will be lightened by your work."

From Hon. Charles H. Aldrich, Chicago (ex-Solicitor-General of the United States):—

"I like the arrangement of English Ruling Cases better than that of any law publication I have before seen. The scope is eminently practical, and the editorial work very good."

From Hon. Robert S. Gould, of Austin, Tex.:—

"I am well satisfied with having subscribed to the series. The cases appear to have been carefully and judiciously selected."

From Edward W. Bisbee, of Barre, Vt.:—

"The arrangement by topics of interest to the general practitioner, with full citation of cases in both the English and American notes, gives a great deal of law in a very convenient form. I regard it as a very useful set."

From Cox, Cotton, Teal and Minor of Portland, Oregon:—

"We can see a good deal of substantial merit in the work."

From H. M. Heath, Augusta, Me.:—

"I am highly pleased with the completeness of the work, its scientific arrangement and accuracy."

From Charles Quarles, Milwaukee, Wis.:—

"The idea embodied in English Ruling Cases is of great practical importance, and if worked out in detail with the industry and ability shown in the first volume, will make this set of law books of very great value. Vol. 1 has been so serviceable that I hope you will hasten the publication of other volumes, as much as is consistent with good work."

From Dinkelspiel and Hart, New Orleans:—

"An examination of Vol. 1 satisfies us that it is a most valuable book of reports. More properly speaking, however, it should be called a book of principles, and its use, so far as it goes, should destroy the anomaly of a lawyer reading a case in his favor, and the opposite counsel reading another case in his favor from the same book."

AMERICAN LAW IN ENGLAND.

The most important book described in this number, and indeed the most important publication of this decade, is the series called "ENGLISH RULING CASES." Its plan is so novel and yet so practical, it ranks so high among labor-saving devices, and it brings such a range of good law right into a lawyer's office, arranged and digested in the best form for use in investigation or trial of a case, that it merits careful examination from every lawyer who uses books.

It is not too much to say that this series will sooner or later be found on the shelves of every lawyer in good practice, and in every library which has advanced beyond the kindergarten stage of local text-books and statutes.

The advertisement on another page will give particulars as to this new series, but there is one phase of its publication not therein mentioned which will interest all lawyers, and this is the fact that ENGLISH RULING CASES will not only tend to bring back English decisions to greater favor and more frequent use in this country, by rendering them more accessible, but it will also serve to bring American law very prominently before the bar of Great Britain and its colonies.

The International Copyright law recently enacted at Washington contains a clause obliging foreign authors or publishers to manufacture their books in the United States, as an essential condition of copyright. Under this provision, the English projectors of this series, to secure American copyright, are having the series printed at the University Press, in Cambridge, Mass.

As it would require a double outlay to print one edition for the English market and another for the American, and as no edition could sell in the United States without good American notes, the English publishers are taking the University Press edition, American notes and all, for their English and Colonial demand.

Thus, through a paragraph in the International Copyright Act intended to protect American printers, the bar of Great Britain is going to be flooded with good American law. The American lawyer who cannot find law to suit him in his own reports, will turn to the English cases, as he has done before, but with time and labor saved for him by this new series; while the English lawyer who cannot find law to suit him in the English cases, is sure to turn, as he has never done before, to the American notes which this series brings to him.

This series is therefore truly international in its effect as well as in its source, and its influence will result in bringing our law more prominently before our legal brethren in all English-speaking communities, — perhaps will also tend to more homogeneity, in the future, in legal doctrines and in legislation.

CONSTITUTIONAL LAW.

Have you ever examined Part I. of Stimson's American Statute Law, Vol. 1? It comprises a careful digest of the several provisions of the constitutions of all the states and territories, and shows at a glance the accord and variations of the different constitutions. No reader of American politics or American history should fail to give this interesting compilation careful thought and study.

English Ruling Cases, with American Notes.

Series of 25 or 30 volumes: four issued annually.
Vol. I., published June, 1894. Vol. II., October, 1894. Vol. III., ready in January, 1895.
Price per volume, $5.50, or $5.75 delivered.
English Editor: Robert Campbell.
American Editor: Irving Browne.

This series is intended to include all the decisions of the highest English courts, from the commencement of reporting down to the present day, which have permanent value as "Ruling Cases." The principal cases are given in full; cases of subsidiary or illustrative value are abstracted in the English notes. When the series is completed, its owner will have on his shelves a collection of all the English cases he will need in practice, in shape to present them in court.

The arrangement of the cases is not chronological, but by topics, — the most convenient form for consultation and comparison.

The American notes indicate the American cases in which the principal cases have been cited, as well as others on the subject treated, and their agreement or variance will be pointed out. Recent and standard text-books will also be cited, and frequent reference will be made to the "American" system, and to the "Lawyers' Reports," so that the owners of those series may be able to use the English cases in connection with the American. Mr. BROWNE's reputation is a guarantee of the practical excellence of his notes.

The plan of the work is to present under each topic: first, a "Rule" of law deduced from the cases; then (if there is one), the old or leading case (in full), to which all the lines of English and American decisions can be traced back; then, the latest case (in full), in which the English courts have reviewed and restated the doctrine. The English notes follow, giving abstracts of other pertinent cases; and finally, the American notes show the application of the "Rule" in this country, and connect the English with the American cases in our various jurisdictions.

Thus, under the title "Air," in Vol. 2, comes a brief clear Rule, followed by Aldred's case from 9 Coke (A.D. 1610), and then the case of Bass v. Gregory, Law Reports, 25 Q. B., decided in 1890. One page of English notes and eight pages of American notes finish the topic. In this arrangement the origin, development, and present status of each legal principle in England are clearly shown in the words of the Court, and its relation to our cases is traced and stated.

This arrangement is as novel as it is practical. It will save our lawyers much of the time heretofore required to make an exhaustive examination of English authorities on important points, and will give them in their own libraries the essence of English law, admirably arranged for ready reference.

As the work progresses, full cross references will be made to guide lawyers who do not know just where to look for a case, under the editor's arrangement; and at the completion of the series, an Index Volume will give not only a full and minute index, but also a table of cases reported in full, and of English and American cases cited in the notes.

The Green Bag.

An Illustrated Monthly for Lawyers.

Edited by Horace W. Fuller. Easy Chair by Irving Browne. Subscription price, $4.00 per year, payable in advance. Bound volumes 1 to 6 (1889 to 1894), $5.00 each.

This popular magazine is now closing its sixth year. Its scope includes all literature interesting to lawyers, except the cases and discussions of law points which are usually called practical. These form the staple contents of other law magazines to which The Green Bag is the complement, giving to its readers the history, biography, philosophy, anecdote, gossip, and humor of the law. It represents the culture, intellect, and polish of the legal profession, — recreating the weary practitioner with its readable contents, stimulating the student and neophyte with its records of successful careers at the bar; lifting the thoughts of its readers above the plane of every-day routine, into the fields of thoughtful jurisprudence.

The Green Bag has become such a favorite in all parts of the country, that it has been well said that its subscription list is like a roll of the eminent lawyers of America. Being to a certain extent a luxury, it can only be taken by lawyers who are in successful practice, and are beginning to have a margin of income above the actual necessities of every-day existence. But it certainly is the first literary luxury lawyers are likely to indulge in.

The set of bound volumes, — there will be six at the close of the year 1894, — handsomely set forth in green half morocco, constitute a portrait gallery of the Bench and Bar of English-speaking communities, and a cyclopaedia of legal biography, history, and humor. The articles on the Supreme Courts of the various States, on the leading American law schools, and on eminent lawyers of former generations, offer a varied interest to the reader. Each volume contains twelve full-page portraits, with about a hundred other illustrations (mostly portraits), scattered through the text. Such a set, on the shelves of an office or home library, would be a refuge and a solace for leisure hours.

Three premium portraits have been issued annually and presented to those subscribers who have complied with the request for prompt payment in advance. The 1892 premium was a reproduction of Chester Harding's full-length portrait of Chief Justice Marshall (20 x 26 inches), the 1893 premium was a bust portrait of Daniel Webster, from an old engraving (20 x 26). The 1894 premium was a group of portraits of the successive Chief Justices of the United States (24 x 32). The 1895 premium (ready in December, 1894), will be a large group engraving of the present Supreme Court of the United States, in session in the Supreme Court Chamber.

All of these four engravings will be presented free to any lawyer who buys the set of six volumes of the "Green Bag" ($30.00), and subscribes for 1895 ($4.00). When framed, they will adorn the walls of either office or study.

PROGRESSIVE BOOK BUYING.

Aids to Study of the Law.—Students who can afford to go to Law schools find their reading prescribed for them, but those who begin at home, or in a lawyer's office, are not often sure what they should read.

An excellent book for preparatory reading (or for review) is Ewell's Essentials of the Law. The first volume is an edition of Blackstone, unencumbered with notes, and boiled down to an essence, by omission of everything obsolete, and by printing matter merely illustrative, in fine type. The other volumes are terse statements, condensed from authorities, of the leading topics of the law.

Other good books for students are described elsewhere in this paper. One general consideration may be mentioned here; that economy is served by buying for purposes of study treatises which are useful in practice; for Wills, for instance, Schouler; for Evidence, Best; for Equity, Foster's Federal Practice, and so on. If the student can afford to own it, he will also find the new edition of Bouvier's Law Dictionary full of condensed treatises, explanations of law terms and translations of Law French and Law Latin.

A Good Library for Fifty Dollars.—When the law student passes his examination and is admitted to the Bar, he needs some sort of a library and usually has very limited funds to draw upon. Fortunately books are now available which will meet the requirements of a young lawyer's practice and will cost altogether not much over fifty dollars, at the outset.

The first essential is of course the Statutes of his own State. The next is a late, thorough, and reliable compendium of the whole law, to which he can turn for prompt information whenever clients ask advice. Such a guide he will find (if he has not already bought it as a student) in Rawle's Revision of Bouvier's Law Dictionary, just published and right up to date. If he adds to these books a good standard treatise on each of the few topics likely to come into first year practice;—such as Evidence, Contracts, Torts, Real Property, Wills, etc. (good examples of such treatises are Schouler on Wills and Taylor on Evidence), he will have enough books to provide reading for leisure hours, and to enable him to answer quickly and with reasonable certainty such questions as are apt to come to a young practitioner. If he figures up, he will find that such a library of say ten or twelve volumes will not cost over $50.00.

How to Add to a Small Library.—Having made a start, and begun to get practice, an excellent way to build up a library of useful books, is to make each case pay for its own books. When a client comes in, tell him that you will need such and such books to examine the law, and do full justice to his case, and that you expect him to pay for them as a practical retainer. If he assents, your books will not only be paid for in advance by the business requiring them—but you will also have to examine them practically and thoroughly and will thus gradually accumulate a library, with each volume of which you are on terms of familiar acquaintance. The old proverb "Fear the man of one book," might then be altered to "Fear the man who buys one book at a time."

The First Reports to Buy.—After a while, as practice increases in volume and value, the rising lawyer needs not only statutes, text-books and digests, but also reports.

The first set he gets will naturally be the reports of his own state. If he lives in New York or perhaps in some other states, he will find so voluminous a local literature that the chance is he will never get beyond it. But if he resides in a smaller state, less prolific in law, he will soon begin to consider getting other reports, and then comes the puzzling question "What set will add most to the practical efficiency of my library?"

Investigation and comparison are likely to lead him to chose English Ruling Cases, because (1) that series gives so many decisions of first-class authority: (2) the principal cases are given in full, speaking for themselves, and all ready to take into court: (3) they are grouped together by topics, so as to cover and illustrate the point in hand: and (4) they are illustrated by excellent English and American notes, elaborating the law and serving as guides to further investigation, if it is needed. There is no other set in existence which so satisfactorily embodies the "leading case" idea.

LEGAL PORTRAITS.

We publish in connection with the Green Bag the following portraits, suitable for framing.

Chief-Justice Marshall. 20 x 24 inches. Price, $1.00.

Daniel Webster. Size 19 x 23 inches. Price, $1.00.

The Chief-Justices of the United States. (Jay, Rutledge Ellsworth, Marshall, Taney, Chase, Waite, Fuller.) Group. Size 24 x 30 inches. Price, $3.00.

The United States Supreme Court in Session, 1894. (Fuller, Field, Harlan, Gray, Brewer, Brown, Shiras, Jackson, White.) 30 x 24 inches. Price, $3.00.

On receipt of the price, we will send either of these pictures, securely packed in a pasteboard roll, to any address. Or,—we will send either one—which ever may be selected—without charge, to any new subscriber who sends us four dollars for the Green Bag for 1899.

BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY

FRANCIS RAWLE'S REVISION

2350 double-column pages: each column equal to an ordinary page.

Two Volumes: law sheep, $12.00 net

(or delivered by Express for $13.00 net.)

Permanent Standard.

A recognized standard for sixty years, BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY has retained favor with two generations of lawyers, and although several other dictionaries have appeared within that time, no one of them can supersede it, and BOUVIER still holds first place in the esteem of the American bar.

The Law Book of Law Books.

To BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY the experienced practitioner turns first, when confronted by a puzzling phrase or question of law. With BOUVIER and a dozen good text-books on Evidence, Contracts, Real Property, Wills, etc., a young lawyer is well equipped for opening an office and beginning practice.

Not a Mere Dictionary.

As our older lawyers know, BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY is more than a glossary; it is really an ENCYCLOPÆDIA giving not only definitions of words, phrases, and foreign terms but also clear and compact treatises on every topic of the law, with full citation of authorities, brought down to date. If any one book can be said to be a complete law library,—it is BOUVIER.

Old Editions Obsolete.

The last edition of BOUVIER appeared in 1883. Our age of invention and progress is developing so many phases of legislation, litigation, and law, that a Law Dictionary, like a text-book, requires revision about once in ten or fifteen years. Even such a standard as BOUVIER must be kept constantly abreast of the latest topics and the latest decisions.

New Law and Late Cases.

Notwithstanding the permanent character of part of the contents of BOUVIER, the development of our law has been so great and so rapid that over one-third of the matter of this edition is entirely new, and much of the remainder has been recast. The result is a revision which will fully sustain the reputation of the work for fulness, authority and practical usefulness.

A Capable Editor.

The Editor, FRANCIS RAWLE, Esq., is one of the leaders of the Philadelphia Bar, and exceptionally equipped for the task by ability, education, and years of varied practice. He has thrown himself into this work with unusual zeal, and has spared no time necessary to secure completeness and accuracy.

BOOK NOTES.

Supplement to Jones's Index — The lawyers and librarians who have found Jones's Index and Legal Periodicals a help when puzzled to trace principles or find authorities, will be glad to know that the author, Leonard A. Jones, well known to the profession through his many excellent law books, is now passing through the press a supplement, bringing the Index down to date. Through its aid, the reader can unlock the treasures of back files of English and American law journals, and can find the annotated case or the thorough monograph which, without the index, would be hidden like the needle in the haystack.

Fine Present for a Lawyer. — For Christmas, for a birthday or for any other anniversary calling for commemoration, a most acceptable present for any cultivated lawyer would be a full set of The Green Bag. The ten volumes now issued; — or rather, to be finished with the number for December, 1898, bound in handsome dark green calf-morocco (price $50.00 net), are an ornament to office or library shelves, and contain not only a portrait gallery and biographical dictionary of the Bench and Bar, but also a great store of instruction and amusement for rainy days and winter evenings.

A Guide to Abbreviations. — A handy book to have on the office desk is Abbreviations used in Law Books (Law sheep, $1.50 net), reprinted from the Lawyers' Reference Manual, edition of 1883. Although the list does not include abbreviations of titles, of report, etc., issued since that year, it is helpful, where help is most needed, because most lawyers and students are familiar through daily use, and through catalogues and advertisements with the law literature of to-day and are only puzzled by the old and unfamiliar citations.

Dicey cited by the Courts. — Although a new book, Dicey on the Conflict of Laws has begun to be cited with approval and respect in our courts. For instance, in Polson v. Stewart, 167 Mass. 211, Judge Holmes speaks of "Mr. Dicey's very able and valuable book," and Chief Justice Field cites it at length in a dissenting opinion. And in U. S. v. Wong, etc., 169 U. S. 649, Mr. Justice Gray citing Dicey on the Conflict of Laws, characterises it as a "careful and thoughtful" work. Such expressions of approval from the bench are better guaranties of merit than a score of ordinary "book reviews."

LAWYERS' LEISURE HOUR BOOKS.

There are hours of waiting for clients, or of resting from work, — when the weary lawyer wants something to read more entertaining than Bouvier's Law Dictionary. For his relief we can offer the following books:

Noted French Trials: — Impostors and Adventurers. By Horace W. Fuller, editor of the Green Bag. Cloth, $1.00 net.

Law and Lawyers in Literature. By Irving Browne. An amusing collection of hits at the legal profession. Cloth, $1.50 net.

The Order of the Coif. By Alexander Pulling. Illustrated by views of the old courts. Practically a history of the early practice of law. Cloth, $3.00.

To this list may also be added the Green Bag, which brings recreation to its subscribers once a month.

THE GREEN BAG IS THE ONE LUXURY WHICH EVERY LAWYER OUGHT TO ALLOW HIMSELF.

THE GREEN BAG: An entertaining Magazine for Lawyers. Edited by Horace W. Fuller. Published monthly by the BOSTON BOOK COMPANY, 15½ Beacon Street, Boston. Subscription, $4.00 net per annum. Bound Volumes, in green half-morocco, $5.00 net per vol. Single numbers, fifty cents.

THE GREEN BAG, begun in January, 1889, aims at the recreation of lawyers. The larger portion of the contents of each number — biographies, historical sketches, portraits, and articles on jurisprudence — will be found to be of present interest as well as of permanent value. With these substantial is interwoven a sparkling variety of anecdotes, satire, humor and light verse; the whole making by far the most entertaining magazine ever offered to the legal profession.

THE CONTENTS are so varied as to cover the whole field of literature which could especially interest lawyers, except the cases and commentaries which pertain to the business of law. These THE GREEN BAG leaves to the many law periodicals, general or local, which already cover that ground. Against them it essays no rivalry; but every lawyer who takes one of these practical law journals needs also THE GREEN BAG as a complement and supplement.

THE BOUND VOLUMES of THE GREEN BAG form a portrait gallery of the Bench and Bar. Each number contains a full-page portrait as frontispiece and an illustrated historical or biographical article. The ten volumes contain over a thousand portraits. No better present can be found for a judge, lawyer, or law student than this handsome set.

To take up some of its leading features: —

SUPREME COURTS. — THE GREEN BAG has contained a series of readable articles on the Supreme Courts of the States, with portraits of the judges who have built up our system of American jurisprudence.

BIOGRAPHIES. — A prominent feature lies in frequent biographical sketches, with portraits of eminent judges, lawyers, and legal authors.

RECORDS OF EXPERIENCE. — Under this head may be grouped reminiscences of eminent lawyers, accounts of remarkable trials, and other incidents of practice.

LEGAL HISTORY AND ANTIQUITIES. — Considerable attention is paid to the history of the law and its ancient customs or peculiarities.

HUMOR AND ANECDOTE. — Every number contains a department of Facetiae; and many of the contributions (including some in verse) have a humorous tone.

THE LAWYER'S EASY CHAIR. — THE GREEN BAG has a monthly contribution under this title from IRVING BROWNE, whose pungent editorials are familiar to lawyers.

ILLUSTRATIONS. — The chief attraction of THE GREEN BAG is its collection of portraits. It is worth taking, if the subscriber has only time enough to look through the pictures in each number as it arrives.

Why not try THE GREEN BAG for a year?

LAW DICTIONARIES.

There were many dictionaries of the Civil and the Canon Law. One curious specimen can be seen on the shelves of the Boston Book Company, in the shape of three folios, entitled "Repertorium famosissimum Utriusque Juris, Doctoris Domini Petri Episcopi Brixien-sis," published at Nuremberg, Calends of October, 1476.

The English and American law dictionaries may be divided into two classes, the dictionary proper or glossary, containing merely definitions, and the encyclopædic dictionary, containing also brief monographs.

The earliest glossary appears to have been "Expositiones Terminorum Legum Anglorum" of which two editions—one in English and the other in Latin, were published in 1527. This work was originally published by John Rastell, and its authorship has been attributed both to him and to William Rastell. After an interval of nearly forty years, it was revived under the new name "Terms of the Law, or Certain Difficult and Obscure Words, expounded etc. in French and English." In this phase there were about twenty editions between 1563 and 1742. It was reprinted at Portland, Me., in 1812. A work entitled "An Exposition of Certain Difficult or Obscure Words of the Law," perhaps an edition of "Terms of the Law" appeared in 1602.

Skene's "De Verborum Significatione, or Exposition of the Difficult Terms in the four Books of Regiam Majestatem." Edinburgh, folio, 1597 and 1641, was a glossary of Scotch law.

Spelman's Glossary, folio 1626, 1664, 1687, expounded the barbarous Law Latin; and Skinner, "Etymologica Expositio Vocum Forensium," fol., 1671, covered about the same ground.

Blount's Law Dictionary and Glossary, folio, 1679, 1691, and with notes by William Nelson, 1717, approached more nearly the modern idea of a dictionary.

The Law French and Law Latin Dictionary, 1701 and 1718, was specifically a glossary, as was also Kelham's Dictionary of Norman or Old French, 1779.

The smaller dictionaries of later years cannot be easily assigned to one or the other class by title; but the following appear to have been mainly glossaries, or at least so brief as not to be encyclopædic.

Students Law Dictionary, or Expositor, London, 1740.

Williams' Compendious Law Dictionary, London, 1816.

Taylor's Law Glossary, London, 1819 and 1823. American editions 1833, 1843, 1855, 1860, 1866 and 1873 (with later dates but apparently no changes).

Whishaw's New Law Dictionary London, 1829.

Tomlins' Popular Law Dictionary, London, 1838.

Holthouse, New Law Dictionary, London, 1839, 1846: reprinted Philadelphia, 1847.

Brown's New Law Dictionary London, 1874, 1880: reprinted Albany, 1875.

Mozley and Whitley, Concise Law Dict., London, 1876.

Stimson's Glossary of the Common Law, Boston, 1881.

Rawson, Pocket Law Lexicon, London, 1882, 1884, 1893.

Adams' Juridical Glossary (incomplete), Albany, 1886.

Kinney's Law Dictionary and Glossary, Chicago, 1893.

The line of dictionaries containing judicial definitions and dissertations on legal topics, as well as translations of words or phrases, was first foreshadowed in Cowell's Law Dictionary or Interpreter, "Nomothetes," of Words and Terms used in the Common and Statute

Laws of Great Britain, etc., folio, 1607 or 1609, with editions in 1637, 1658, 1672, 1684, 1701, 1708, and 1727.

Jacob's New Law Dictionary "explaining the rise, progress, and present state of the English law" first appeared in one volume quarto, 1729. There were editions in 1732, 1736, 1739, 1743 (abridged), 1744, 1750, 1756, 1762, 1772, 1782 (by Ruffhead and Morgan); 1797 (11th edition, by Tomlins, 2 vols.) 1809, 2 vols. "greatly enlarged." Still further amplified and published under Tomlin's name, 2 vols. octavo, 1810, appearing in new editions as "Tomlin's Law Dictionary, 2 vols., 1815, 1820, 1835; with an American reprint, 3 vols., Philadelphia, 1836. An American reprint of Jacob was published in six volumes octavo, New York, 1811.

In 1764, (with editions, 1771 and 1782, and a Dublin reprint, 1764) appeared Cunningham's New and Complete Law Dictionary, or General Abridgment of the law.

Burns' Law Dictionary, 2 vols., London, 1792, and Potts' Compendious Law Dictionary, 2 vols., London, 1803 and 1813, appear not to have been very successful.

The next English dictionary was Wharton's Law Lexicon or Dictionary of Jurisprudence, London, 1848, with editions in 1859, 1864, 1867, 1872, 1876, 1883, 1889, 1892. It was reprinted at Harrisburg, Pa., 2 vols. 1849.

In 1882, Sweet's Dictionary of English Law; Definitions and Statement of Rules, was published in London; and in 1890, Stroud's Judicial Dictionary of Words and Phrases Judicially Interpreted.

The reprints noticed above met the needs of the American bar until 1839, when Judge Bouvier published the first edition of his "Law Dictionary, adapted to the Constitution and Laws of the United States and the several states." As it incorporated all the best parts of the English law dictionaries, with careful statements of American law, Bouvier's Law Dictionary at once became, and has since continued to be, the favorite in this country. It is somewhat difficult to trace out the editions, as the publishers changed the title page with each reprint, whether it had new matter or not. Taking it for granted however, that a copyright would be taken out whenever new matter was incorporated, the copyright records show entries in 1843, 1848, 1852, 1867 and 1883. Although the last imprint claims to be the 15th edition, it would thus appear to be the 6th; and Rawle's Revision is the 7th revised edition.

Burrill's Law Dictionary was published in New York, 3 vols. 1850, with a second edition in 1859. This date was changed from time to time, apparently without change of contents.

Abbott's Law Dictionary of Terms and Phrases in American or English Jurisprudence was published at Boston, in 1879, in two volumes.

Rapalje and Lawrence's Dictionary of American and English Law was published in two volumes, Jersey City, N. J., 1883.

Anderson's Dictionary of Law, one volume, was published in 1888. The date on the title page has been changed from time to time, without other changes.

Black's New Dictionary of Law was published at St. Paul, Minn., in 1891.

And now, in the new edition of Bouvier's Law Dictionary, American lawyers have the latest development of the combination of glossary and encyclopædia, which has proved most satisfactory in use.

ENGLISH RULING CASES with American Notes.

Arranged, Annotated, and Edited by Robert Campbell, of Lincoln's Inn.

Full American Notes, citing from all jurisdictions, by Irving Browne.

To be comprised in 25 volumes. Law Sheep, $5.50 net per volume.

Delivered for $5.75 net. Vols. 1 to 17 (A to N) now ready.

The object of this series is to present: — (scope) all significant and authoritative English decisions; (time) from the earliest reports to the present time; (plan) arranged alphabetically by topics, for ready reference; (rule) a "Rule" of Law prefacing each group of cases; (old law) the early or "leading" case given in full; (new law) also the latest "ruling" case in full; (notes) the English notes abstracting collateral cases and statutes; the American notes showing accord or divergence of our law.

This plan is novel, but eminently practical. No other series gives so much sound law in such available form.

To illustrate the plan of English Ruling Cases we give an analysis of the topic

INSURANCE

Vols. 13 and 14 of English Ruling Cases are largely taken up with this subject.

The method of the Series can be understood by the following extract from the Table of Contents. The "Ruling Cases" are given in full: the notes quote or cite the principal pertinent English and American cases.

§ 1: Insurable Interest	14 cases in full;	15 pp. English notes;	21 pp. American notes
§ 2: Insurance Agents	5 " "	4 " " "	3 " " "

§ 10: General Average Loss	6 " "	2 " " "	5 " " "
§ 11: Adjustment of Losses	7 " "	2 " " "	2 " " "
§ 12: Return of Premium

The body of law thus described comprises 1100 pages, covering the topic of Insurance, with 100 leading cases reported in full, ready to take into court, 81 pages of English notes, and 128 pages American notes, citing pertinent cases in all jurisdictions.

If you want to assure yourself of the authority of such a series, send for our circulars "Value of English Decisions in the United States," and "Comparative Citation of Authorities." If you want testimony as to the merits of the series, send for our circular "Opinions of Subscribers to English Ruling Cases."

If you have a good library, but do not own English Ruling Cases, we ask you, in justice both to your own practice and to the interests of legal literature, to look into this Series.

PERSUASIVE AUTHORITY.

American law is founded on English law.

Since 1775, the law of England and that of the United States have developed from the same foundation, under similar conditions of progress.

Decisions of English courts on points not decided in our own country, and on questions (not statutory) arising from the development of modern commerce, traffic, manufacture and invention, are of great interest here.

Citations of pertinent English cases are listened to with respect by our courts, and may have great influence on their decisions. Examination of recent State and Federal reports shows that English cases are still cited oftener than any other reports, except those of the citing court.

These propositions will be accepted by good lawyers, — but the question they are apt to ask is "Granted that sound and pertinent English decisions would be useful to us, how can we distinguish the English books which are useful, from those which are useless?"

This query is natural, for the latest catalogues give titles of over six hundred text-books now in use in England, and sixteen hundred volumes of reports, — besides periodicals, digests and statutes.

There are a few books, however, which can be suggested as undoubtedly serviceable on this side of the Atlantic. Among text-books, those which deal with principles of law and equity, rather than with statutes or practice, have universal application wherever the Common Law is followed. And among books of principle, those which have been republished are undoubtedly doubled in value by good American notes. The older books are known to every lawyer. Among these Taylor on Evidence, the leading English authority on that subject, has always taken first rank, — and still holds it by virtue of the excellence of Chamberlayne's American notes to the last edition. A recent illustration of the usefulness in America of English books of principle, is Dacey's Conflict of Laws, with notes by Prof. J. B. Moore of Columbia University.

To make a selection among English reports has been even more difficult. Of late years the current Law Reports have been favorites in this country; but that set is now getting to be so large and costly, that another selection must be made by lawyers with limited resources. Fortunately a new series is now in course of publication, which solves the problem. This is English Ruling Cases. — The editor has used the term "Ruling" rather than "Leading," because the latter has come to mean the older cases lying at the root of legal doctrines, — while his scheme is to print in full, under each topic of his alphabetical arrangement, all the cases which now govern the law, new as well as old. This grouping of cases under topics, with illustrative English and American notes, is a novel idea, admirably carried out. The American lawyer who owns English Ruling Cases has on his shelves the essence of English law.

Another aid to research, on somewhat different lines is the new Digest of English Case Law, 16 vols., described on another page. It is a singular thing that no complete digest has ever before appeared in England. It is of the old-fashioned pattern, — full statement of the facts, and somewhat lengthy abstract of the decision of the court, in each case, — a satisfactory plan when one has not the original reports on his shelves.

Still another recent English publication which will interest many American lawyers — and should certainly be in every library, is the new Abridgment and Encyclopædia of English Law. The absence of American notes may affect its value, but the fact that each article is written by a specialist, and recognized authority, whose name is given in the table of contents, will add weight and value to the compilation.

FORMER ENGLISH DIGESTS.

The earliest digests of English law were the Abridgments, of which a full account will be found in another column. These fairly served the purposes of digests for over three hundred years.

The earliest book which might be designated as a digest was Ashe's Tables to the Year Books, 2 vols., folio, 1614. In the eighteenth century, digests of the law on special topics, and digests of individual reporters, or of reports in individual courts through short series of years, were published from time to time; but the series of comprehensive English digests began with Coventry and Hughes' Analytical Digested Index to the Common Law Reports, Henry III to 1 George III (1216 to 1760), 2 vols., London, 1827; reprinted at Philadelphia, 2 vols., 1832. This Index, or Digest, covered the older reports, and seems to have been considered so far sufficient and final, for Harrison's Digest and its successors, Fisher and Mews, do not go back of 1756.

In the year 1829, the first edition of Harrison's Analytical Digest of all reported Cases in the House of Lords, the several Courts of Common Law, Bankruptcy, and Crown Cases, — was published in 2 vols. The second edition of "Harrison's Common Law Digest" appeared in 3 vols., 1835: with an additional volume in 1837. The third edition, by R. Tarrant Harrison, came out in 4 vols. in 1844, with a supplement by R. A. Fisher in 1856. Harrison's Digest was reprinted in 3 vols., at Philadelphia, in 1835, with annual appendices bound up as an additional volume in 1842; and was again reprinted at Philadelphia in 7 vols. in 1853.

In 1870, R. A. Fisher published under his own name in 5 vols., what was practically a new edition of Harrison; with a 2 volume supplement in 1880; reprinted in New York as Jacobs Fisher's Digest, 9 vols., 1880-1882, with two supplementary volumes. In 1884 another edition by Mews (known as Mews' Fisher, — or Mews' Common Law Digest) appeared in 7 vols., with a supplement, 1 vol., 1889. Annual supplements to Harrison, Fisher and Mews, have been published since 1837.

In 1831, Edward Chitty's "Index to all the Cases, etc., relating to Equity and Bankruptcy from the Earliest Period," was published in two volumes. A second edition followed, in 4 vols., 1837; a third by James Macaulay, 4 vols., 1853; and a fourth by William F. Jones and Henry E. Hirst, in 9 vols., 1883-1889. The first, third and fourth editions were imported in quantities, with imprints of Phila. (1831, 1853), and Boston (1883-1889).

"The Digest of the English Case Law," 16 vols., published in November, 1898, is the first digest to include in one alphabetical arrangement, all the English reports, on both law and equity sides.

Chamberlayne's Taylor on Evidence

When you buy a work on Evidence compare Taylor with the other books, and note how thoroughly and satisfactorily each topic is treated :

- a. By the learned author in the text.
- b. By Chamberlayne in the notes.

Taylor has been the English standard for fifty years, while Chamberlayne's American notes cover 700 pages of small type, and form a treatise in themselves.

Every office ought to have a copy of Taylor on Evidence, of this edition.

Dicey on the Conflict of Laws

This topic is especially interesting in this country, whose fifty jurisdictions are perpetually in conflict.

Dicey is Blackstone's successor at Oxford, — one of the ablest living legal writers, now lecturing before the Harvard Law School.

Moore has been Assistant Secretary of State and Professor of International Law at Columbia University, New York.

The work is written on the modern method of Rule, Comment, Illustration, Citation and Note.

Schouler on Estates of Decedents

Schouler on Wills is one of the best of text books, — giving in one volume clearly, tersely and thoroughly, — the American Law of Wills.

It is so concise and readable that it is used as a text-book in many law schools; and yet so full and accurate that it is the favorite work on Wills for practitioners.

Schouler on Executors is a companion volume, equally reliable. The two books together make a comprehensive treatise on the Estates of Decedents.

THE VERNACULAR IN COURT.

Witness. — I noticed that she has a black eye.

Judge. — One moment, I don't quite follow you. What was the color of her other eye?

Witness. — I mean her husband had blackened her eye.

Judge. — What an extraordinary thing to do! Did he use paint or burnt cork or soot, or what?

Witness. — No; I mean he fetched her one and that made her eye black.

Judge. — Fetched her one! I presume you mean he fetched her a black glass eye from a dealer in such articles?

Counsel. — No, your lordship. The witness means that the women was struck in the eye, and that the result was discoloration of the adjacent flesh.

Judge. — O! Now I understand.

Witness. — She went out, and said, "I'll be back in half a jiffy."

Judge. — I don't know what kind of conveyance that is, but why didn't she come back in a whole one?

Witness. — It isn't a conveyance, my Lord.

Judge. — O, is it a — er — garment?

Counsel. — No, your Lordship. It is a common expression for a short space of time.

Judge. — Dear me! How very confusing! Go on.

Witness. — She gave me a bob.

Judge. — Dropped you a curtsey, you mean, eh?

Witness. — No, a shilling.

Judge. — I never heard a shilling called a bob before. Go on.

Witness. — And I took my hook.

Judge. — You had brought a hook with you, then?

Counsel. — He means he took his departure. Go on.

Witness. — When I saw her again she'd been on the booze.

Judge. — Is that a river?

Witness. — I mean she'd been drinking.

Judge. — Then why didn't you say so?

Witness. — I saw a policeman, and went up to him and said, "bobby —"

Judge. — You knew the policeman intimately, then?

Witness. — Never saw him before in my life.

Judge. — And yet you knew his Christian name and addressed him by it in its most familiar form.

Counsel. — A policeman is frequently called a bobby, my lord.

Judge. — Dear me! I was not aware of it, I never heard the expression before.

Counsel (to witness). — And you gave her in charge?

Witness. — Yes; but the policeman, he said, "What's your game?"

Judge. — What had you in your hand, then — a brace of pheasants, or a hare, or what?

Counsel. — O, skittles!

Judge. — O, that was the game! But how could the witness be playing skittles in the street?

The Witness (to counsel). — O, Lor'! Ain't he a treat!

Counsel. — Yes. You'd better stand down till I can get a sworn interpreter. It's not my business.

From The Green Bag.

THE BAR.

The whole topic of the Bar seems constantly to have given occasion to very remarkable mistakes, as to the meaning of legal expressions such as "Trial at Bar," "Called to the Bar," "Under the Bar," "The Side Bar," etc., such expressions having generally very distinct derivations, e.g. the barres in the old halls of the Inns of Court and the bar of the Courts of Law.

From old time in the Inns of Court the Utter-Barrister was the advanced apprentice of the law, who had passed the barre of the hall of his Inn and become one of the apprenticii ad barros, or Gentlemen of the Bar: whilst the Junior class, or Students, were kept within the barre and denominated apprenticii infra barros, Inner Barristers, or Gentlemen under or below the Bar.

On the other hand, by a curious transition, the expression "within the Bar," obtained in Westminster Hall and elsewhere, out of the Halls of the Inns of Court, an exactly opposite meaning — the more advanced of the apprentices of the law being in due form called from the Outer Bar by special favour, and generally referred to in the Courts as the Gentlemen of the Inner Bar, whilst those not so distinguished had been called the "Gentlemen of the Outer Bar."

The actual bar of the Courts, of which we have already spoken, and which, like the barre de Palais de Justice in France, gave a designation to the whole order of advocates, appears formerly to have been always sufficiently distinct: and the rules and observances relating to its custody in old times were very strictly enforced — the ancient office of Keeper of the Barre or Usher, being one of no small importance; and it is remarkable that to this day in both Houses of Parliament the words "Bench" and "Bar" have to a great extent the same meaning as when the High Court of Parliament constituted the Curia Regis, with its different Benches, and the suitors or applicants for justice, or the accused offender, came, with their Counsel standing beside them, to be heard at the Bar; this bar being always on such occasions drawn out with great ceremony, to prevent improper intrusion on either of the Benches.

The bar of the old Courts at Westminster seems to have been guarded and kept with the same forms as in the more ancient Curia Regis. In the pictures and illuminations already referred to we see the Judges on the different Benches, the officials at the tables below, and the litigants with their Counsel, the Serjeants of the Coif, standing by them at the Bar. The picture of the King's Bench, in addition to what we see in that of the Common Pleas, shows us the Prisoner at the Bar with his Counsel standing by him: and in other representations of the old Courts we have ample proof of the old use of the bar as the proper place for the pleader, the litigant, and the prisoner.

The bar of the old Curia Regis in this manner separated these who legally constituted the Court (with its official staff) from those who were not thus belonging to it, but came as litigants, suitors, or pleaders, or as witnesses, defendants, or prisoners. The Judges and other members of the tribunal sat on the Benches, whilst the litigants and advocates stood at the bar. The separation was not merely imaginary. It was made by a substantial barrier of iron or wood.

From Pullings Order of the Coif.

ABRIDGMENTS OF THE LAW.

The bench and bar found the reports so voluminous that they resorted to abridgments four centuries ago.

In or about the year 1470, R. Pynson published Statham's Abridgment. This interesting specimen of early typography is printed in characters made to resemble court-handwriting. There is no title-page, but from the character of the type, the volume is supposed to have been printed by Tailleux (of Rouen, France), for Pynson. This is apparently the first attempt to methodize the decisions of courts of law in England. It contains many cases not in the printed Year Books.

In 1516, before the series of reports known as the Year Books had been completed, Fitzherbert's "Graunde Abridgment" was printed by Wynken de Worde (or Pynson), in three part folio, usually bound as one volume. Subsequent editions were published in 1565 and 1577. Although this compilation is mainly a common place book to the Year Books, it contains original cases, and merits place as a volume of reports.

There appeared from time to time during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries abridgments of individual reports,—the Book of Assizes and other Year Books, Dyer, Plowden, Moore, Cole, Crocker, etc. Excluding these from the list, the next compendium of the whole law, in point of time was Brooke's Graunde Abridgment, first published in two parts, folio, usually bound in one volume, London, 1568. Subsequent editions or impressions appear to have been published in 1570, 1573, 1576 and 1586. This abridgment was founded on Fitzherbert, but has more titles, and much original matter.

Hughes' "Grand Abridgment of the Law Continued," 3 vols., 4to 1660-62 was intended as a supplement to Fitzherbert and Brooke. It covers "from 1 Eliz. to the present time." Only one edition was issued.

In 1668 Henry Rolle published "Un Abridgment des Cases et Resolutions del Common Ley, Alphabetically Digest desouth severall Titles," two volumes, folio with a preface by Sir Matthew Hale. This was a partial reprint of Fitzherbert and Brooke with additions. Its chief merits appear to have been style and arrangement. Only one edition appeared.

The only edition of Sheppard's Grand Abridgment of the Common and Statute Law of England, was published in four parts, bound as three volumes quarto, in 1675. Though this is the first abridgment written in English, it seems to have been a failure; perhaps (Marvin says), because the author, although well known through his Touchstone of Common Assurances and other legal treatises, was an adherent of the Commonwealth, and published his abridgment when Cromwell's friends were not amici curiae.

In 1705 D'Anvers began his General Abridgment of the Common Law, mainly a translation and continuation of Rolle. For lack of encouragement, he only published three folio volumes, coming down to the appropriate title, "Extinguishment." The catalogues give a second edition of these volumes, 1722-1737,—but the fact seems to be that the progress of the work halted along for over thirty years, and then stopped.

Lilly's "Practical Register or General Abridgment of the Law as now practised" (2 vols. folio, four editions, 1719 to 1745) was rather a text-book of practice than an "Abridgment" in the more general sense.

Nelson's Abridgment of the Common Law of England, 3 vols., folio, 1725, was "chiefly though incorrectly copied from Hughes," and like the latter, included only cases since the publication of Fitzherbert and Brooke. No second edition was issued.

In 1736 appeared the first volume of the first edition of Bacon's New Abridgment of the Law, a work which has had a hundred and fifty years of use. As originally published, it was largely founded on treatises written by Lord Chief Baron Gilbert. Matthew Bacon died before this work was completed and it was finished by Sergeant Sayer and Owen Ruffhead. Editions:—

First, 5 vols. folio, London, 1736-1759; second, 5 vols. folio, London, 1762; third, 5 vols. folio, London, 1768-1770; fourth, 5 vols. folio, London, 1778; supplement by Cunningham, 1 vol. folio, 1786; fifth by Gwillim, 7 vols. octavo, London, 1798; sixth by Gwillim, 7 vols. octavo, London, 1807; seventh by Gwillim and Dodd, 8 vols. octavo, London, 1832; American edition by Bird Wilson, 7 vols., octavo, Phila., 1811; American edition by John Bouvier, 10 vols. octavo, Phila., 1842-1846.

The edition of Sir Henry Gwillim, 1798, was carefully revised and enlarged. Several editors assisted Mr. Dodd in preparing the 1832 edition, the standard in England. Judge Bouvier's edition, which has been once or twice reprinted with changed title-page, but few other changes, is by far the best for American use.

Viner's General Abridgment of Law and Equity is said by Marvin to be "the most voluminous production of any single individual in the whole bibliography of the Common Law." Everything in the older abridgments, with much new matter, is included in this series. Story says that "its principal merit is its extent." There were two editions,—the first, in 23 vols., folio, printed at the author's residence, Aldershot, on paper made with the watermark C. V. (Charles Viner);—the second in 24 vols. octavo, London, 1791-1794. A supplement in six volumes, was published, 1799-1806.

Comyn's Digest of the Laws of England is rather an abridgment than a digest. Its method is based on a systematic and scientific distribution and subdivision of the titles of the law. Editions as follows:—

First, 5 vols. folio (Law French), London, 1762-1767; continuation, 1 vol. folio, London, 1776; second, 5 vols. folio, London, 1781; third by Kyd, 6 vols. octavo, London, 1792 [fourth by Kyd, 6 vols. octavo, Dublin, 1793]; fourth by Rose, 6 vols. octavo, London, 1800; fifth by Hammond, 8 vols. octavo, London, 1822; American edition by Day, 8 vols. octavo, New York, 1824-1826.

William's Abridgment, 5 vols., 1798-1803 only included cases at law during the reign of George III.

Petersdorff's Abridgment, 15 vols., London, 1825-1830; reprinted 15 vols., New York 1829-1832,—covering law cases from 1660 to 1824, was "never a general favorite." A supplement, in 2 vols., by Hammond, was dated N. Y., 1835. "Petersdorff's Practical and Elementary Abridgment of the Common Law," designed either as a supplement or as a separate work, was issued in 5 vols. at London, 1841-1844.

Petersdorff, or rather Bouvier's edition of Bacon, closed the line of the old abridgments; now renewed and prolonged by the The New Abridgment and Encyclopædia of the Laws of England, of which a description may be found in another column.

THE FIRST COMPLETE ENGLISH DIGEST

THE DIGEST OF ENGLISH CASE LAW.

16 Vols., Law Sheep, $96.00.

Superseding and consolidating all Previous Digests of the Reports (both Law and Equity) down to 1898; with a selection of Irish Cases.

EDITOR IN CHIEF, JOHN MEWS.

ASSISTANTS: W. F. BARRY, E. E. H. BIRCH, A. H. BITTLESTON, B. A. COHEN, W. I. COOK, E. W. HANSELL, J. S. HENDERSON, A. LAWRENCE, J. M. LELY, R. C. MACKENZIE, E. MANSON, R. G. MARSDEN, H. J. NEWBOLT, A. E. RANDALL, J. RITCHIE, J. SMITH, J. F. WALEY, T. H. WALKER, AND W. A. G. WOODS.

Until now there has been no complete English Digest. The successive Common Law Digests of Harrison, Fisher, and Mews, and the four editions of Chitty's Equity Digest, have partially, but not simultaneously, covered the field. They have to some extent duplicated each other, and to some extent they have failed to include all the cases.

Now, for the first time, all Law and Equity Cases are brought together in one alphabet, and under one comprehensive arrangement, which will enable the user of the new Digest to examine easily and thoroughly the entire range of English decisions.

Mr. Mews, the Editor, has had an experience with former digests which peculiarly qualifies him for his present work. In the list of his assistants will be recognized many names of well-known editors, authors and reporters; altogether an able and reliable staff.

American lawyers will find in this Digest so complete a skeleton of English Law, that owning it, in connection with the new Digest of American Law, will enable them to cover the field of recorded decisions, and to feel sure that investigation of a point will include all cases which can be cited, pro and con.

The English price of the set of 16 vols., bound in cloth, is £20. By importing an edition, we are enabled to offer it in this country, in our more substantial law-sheep binding, for $96.

If desired, we can furnish the set in English cloth binding for $88; or in half law calf for $104.

A NEW ABRIDGMENT AND ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF THE LAWS OF ENGLAND.

By the Most Eminent Living Authorities.

IN 12 VOLS., LAW SHEEP, AT $72.00.

THE BOSTON BOOK CO. announce that they are the American publishers of a new abridgment and encyclopædia of the laws of England, the most important English Legal Work in existence, not only on account of its size and exhaustive treatment, but also from the special and original features which characterize it.

Unlike existing Abridgments, Commentaries, and Dictionaries of the Law which are the work of a single author, this work is written by specialists in their respective branches. For the more important articles, no expense or trouble has been spared in the endeavor to secure the services of the most eminent English lawyers. In the list of contributors will be found the names of Sir Edward Fry, Sir William Anson, Sir Howard Elphinstone, Sir Walter J. F. Phillimore, Sir Frederick Pollock, His Honor Judge Shortt, His Honor Judge Smyly, and many other judges and lawyers already well known as authors, editors, or reporters.

The various subjects have been treated with such fulness, that the work makes Twelve Volumes of 500 pages each. A very slight study of the most elaborate modern text-books will reveal within how moderate a compass the legal problems with which they deal could be stated for the purposes of such a scheme as the present. Except where absolutely necessary for a statement of the Law as it exists, the authors of this work omit all reference to what is antiquarian, and incorporate no quotations from Statute or Law Report which are of easy consultation, and to which the fullest reference will in every case be given. As the Publishers are particularly desirous of meeting what Practitioners everywhere have long desired, they will not be content with a compilation of short treatises on the more imposing branches of the Law, but will endeavor to give only what, and to give everything that, is of everyday use and practical importance.

The historic Abridgments are familiar to all English lawyers, and their utility to those concerned with the state of the Law during the periods which they cover need not be insisted upon. In the long period which has elapsed since the latest of them, it has been the universal complaint of English lawyers that there has been an entire absence of anything in the nature of a Corpus Jurum Anglicorum; for although the great work of Blackstone, in its many successive editions, has furnished the student with a certain equipment of knowledge, sufficient in the main for elementary purposes, its admirers have never pretended that it, or any similar work, could satisfy the requirements of those who desiderate an Encyclopædia of English Law.

For the editorial supervision, the Publishers have secured the services of Mr. A. WOOD RENTON, M. A., LL. B., Barrister-at-Law; formerly Editor of the Law Journal; Member of the Mercantile Law Committee of the Society of Comparative Legislation.

STUDENTS' LAW BOOKS.

HUTCHINS'S WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY.

A NEW ENGLISH EDITION (the 17th) OF WILLIAMS, with AMERICAN NOTES, by Prof. H. B. HUTCHINS, of the Cornell University School of Law. In one large volume, bound in Law Sheep. Price, $4.00 net.

This is the standard students' book on Real Property. It is universally used.

The new edition is a great improvement.

The text includes both the common-law doctrine and the statutory changes.

The American editor is an experienced law lecturer.

The American Notes to this edition are pointed and practical.

The price is low for so large a volume.

Ask for, and insist on getting, Hutchins's Williams.

CHAMBERLAYNE'S BEST ON EVIDENCE. International Edition.

PRINCIPLES OF THE LAW OF EVIDENCE. With rules for Conducting the Examination and Cross-Examination of Witnesses. By W. M. BEST. Eighth Edition. With Notes to American and Canadian Cases by C. F. CHAMBERLAYNE. Sheep, $5.00 net.

This treatise, first published in 1849, has occupied a distinctive position among law books, for a PREFERENCE OF PRINCIPLES TO DETAILS, for APT ILLUSTRATIONS, and for COMPARATIVE TREATMENT of foreign systems.

The New Edition contains marked improvements even over the previous edition.

This American edition is in pursuance of the same lines of thoughtful work which have made "Chamberlayne's Best" a classic with the profession. The number of citations and illustrations of the rules of evidence has been almost doubled.

This single volume comprises a full exposition of the principles of the Law of Evidence, illustrated by the best American and English cases.

IRVING BROWNE'S MANUALS for Law Students.

BROWNE ON SALES: Elements of the Law of Sales of Personal Property. By IRVING BROWNE. Leatherette, $2.00 net; Law Sheep, $2.50 net.

BROWNE ON CRIMINAL LAW: The Elements of Criminal Law; Principles, Pleading, and Procedure for the Use of Law Schools and Students. By IRVING BROWNE. Leatherette $2.00 net; Law Sheep, $2.50 net.

BROWNE ON DOMESTIC RELATIONS: Elements of the Law of Domestic Relations and of Employer and Employed. By IRVING BROWNE. Second Edition, Revised. Leatherette, $2.00 net; Law Sheep, $2.50 net.

IRVING BROWNE, well known as a legal author, and as editor for many years of the Albany Law Journal, has been also a popular lecturer at the Albany, Cornell, and Buffalo Law Schools. His lectures in two courses—Domestic Relations and Criminal Law—have been revised and published in the form of small manuals for students, and are in great demand. To these he has now added a similar but somewhat larger treatise on Sales. All these come down to the most recent decisions, and will continue to keep pace with them.

The author's experience has admirably qualified him for compiling successful elementary law books. A lifetime spent in practising and in editing reports and law journals has made him a sound lawyer; courses of lecturing have taught him how to catch the attention and impress the memory of the average student; and constant practice with the pen has developed an easy and delightful style, which clothes the dry rules of the law with the charm of literature.

SCHOULER ON WILLS. (New Edition.)

A TREATISE ON THE LAW OF WILLS. By JAMES SCHOULER, LL.D. Second Edition, Revised, Enlarged, and brought down to date. In one Volume, Law Sheep, $5.50 net.

EVERY student of the law must master the law of Wills, — to be prepared for any line of practice.

Some good book on a topic of such universal application is an essential in even the smallest library.

The standard treatise is Schouler on Wills. The author is widely and favorably known by his treatises on Bailments, &c., and as a lecturer before several of our leading law schools.

This is one of the few law books which, while sufficiently full and thorough to serve the purpose of the practising lawyer, are yet clear and terse enough to be used as text-books for students.

ABBREVIATIONS USED IN LAW BOOKS.

ABBREVIATIONS USED IN LAW BOOKS. A full list, reprinted from the Lawyer's Reference Manual, 1883. Law Sheep, $1.50. Cloth, $1.00.

BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY: RAWLE'S REVISION.

BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY; completely revised, largely rewritten and brought down to date in every article, by FRANCIS RAWLE, Esq., of Philadelphia. Two large volumes, $12.00 net.

This is by far the best law dictionary for a student to buy, because it contains not only definitions, but is also an Encyclopædia of law, giving compact treatises on every topic. Bought during a course of law study, it answers queries, solves doubts, illustrates lectures and books, supplies material for moot-court briefs and theses; — and forms a foundation for a library when the student is admitted to the bar.

STUDENTS' LAW BOOKS.

A COMPLETE COURSE OF READING OR REVIEW.

EWELL'S ESSENTIALS OF THE LAW. By MARSHALL D. EWELL, LL.D.

THE SET, 3 vols., 12mo, sheep, $7.50; leatherette, $6.00.

SEPARATELY: Vol. I. Sheep, $3.00; leatherette, $2.50. Vol. II. Sheep, $2.50; leatherette, $2.00. Vol. III. Sheep, $2.50; leatherette, $2.00.

Vol. I. THE POCKET BLACKSTONE contains not only all that is essential, but all that is not absolutely misleading, in BLACKSTONE'S COMMENTARIES. That portion of the great legal classic which is beyond doubt obsolete is entirely omitted from this edition. Another large portion, which is merely historical or illustrative, is printed in small type, to be skipped or not, as the reader chooses; while all of the original which can be relied on now as a statement of the Common Law is printed in full. THIS EDITION OF BLACKSTONE IS BY FAR THE BEST TO PUT INTO THE HANDS OF A STUDENT.

Vols. II. and III. follow out the same idea somewhat more succinctly, and give with graphic distinctions of type the PRINCIPLES embodied in standard authorities on leading topics of the law.

Vol. II. PLEADING, CONTRACTS, EQUITY. This volume contains the substance of three standard authorities, —STEPHEN ON PLEADING, SMITH ON CONTRACTS, and ADAMS ON EQUITY.

Vol. III. EVIDENCE, TORTS, REAL PROPERTY. This final volume embodies the gist of CHAMBERLAYNE'S EDITION OF BEST ON EVIDENCE, of POLLOCK ON TORTS, and of WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY.

Among all the books of this generation published especially for the use of students, none has taken such extensive and permanent hold on popular favor as EWELL'S ESSENTIALS OF THE LAW. To the student struggling with rudiments in some remote country office, and to the law-school student "cramming" for reviews or examinations, it has been alike an efficient aid.

By omitting unessential matter and unnecessary notes, the editor has compressed into three handy volumes the substance of seven large text-books; and by liberal use of full-faced type, he has emphasized the catch-words and leading principles, so as to help a student in review.

METCALF ON CONTRACTS: New Revised Edition.

PRINCIPLES OF THE LAW OF CONTRACTS as Applied by Courts of Law. By THERON METCALF. Second Edition, by FRANKLIN FISKE HEARD. Law Sheep, $3.50 net.

This treatise on THE PRINCIPLES OF THE LAW OF CONTRACTS, by Theron Metcalf, reporter and judge of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, is by far the best elementary work on this topic for the American lawyer or law student. Since its first publication, in 1867, it has not only been a favorite text-book in law schools, but it has also been regarded by the profession as an unrivalled presentation of principles. As such it has been constantly cited with approbation in the courts.

HEARD'S EQUITY PLEADING.

A CONCISE TREATISE ON THE PRINCIPLES OF EQUITY PLEADING, WITH PRECEDENTS. By FRANKLIN FISKE HEARD. Sheep, $2.50 net; Leatherette, $2.00 net.

An elementary treatise, for the information of students and inexperienced pleaders. It is founded largely on Drewry's Equity Pleading; and as a clear exposition of the subject is far superior to Mitford, Story, or any other book.

A collection of Precedents has been added, adapted to the law of Equity Pleading as it exists to-day.

INDERMAUR'S COMMON LAW CASES.

AN EPITOME OF LEADING COMMON LAW CASES, WITH SOME SHORT NOTES THEREON. Fifth Edition. By JOHN INDERMAUR. American Edition by C. A. BUCKMAN and BOARDMAN HALL. Cloth, $1.50 net.

This is called by the author "A Guide to Smith's Leading Cases." It is more: it is Smith's Leading Cases in brief; for it is an abridgment of every case in that standard collection, leaving out four or five unimportant or local cases and adding a few others. It is particularly useful to law students, because it is printed on firm paper, with wide margins to allow room for manuscript notes.

FOSTER'S FEDERAL PRACTICE. New Edition.

A TREATISE ON FEDERAL PRACTICE IN CIVIL CAUSES. By ROGER FOSTER. Second Edition. Enlarged to two volumes. Price, $12.00 net.

The Standard authority, not only on the practice in all Federal Courts, but also on American Equity Pleading and Practice.

This new edition, thus practically enlarged, serves as a full guide to the student or practitioner in every branch of Federal Practice in civil causes.

Greater space has been given to Pleading and Practice in Equity than to other topics, on account of its importance and obscurity. Indeed, FOSTER'S FEDERAL PRACTICE includes everything in such older treatises as Mitford's Equity Pleading, Story's Equity Pleading, and Daniel's Chancery Practice which can be of practical use at the present time, besides the leading modern English and American cases on the subject.

If a set of ENGLISH RULING CASES is on the shelves of your preceptor's library, you will find that its grouped cases give forcible illustrations under every topic of the law.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Hereafter Legal Bibliography will be published quarterly, and will try to give full information as to the current law literature of the English language, with occasional items about old law books. It will be sent without charge or condition to all interested in its news, whose addresses we can get. If the recipients find it useful, and feel a sense of obligation, an occasional order will more than repay the publishers.

This number deals chiefly with law books issued during the year 1899. See Subject Index, next page.

Bouvier's Law Dictionary: Rawle's Revision. 2 vols. $12.00.

This standard work, now revised and rewritten, supersedes former editions as completely as a new edition of revised statutes supplants its predecessor.

English Ruling Cases, with American Notes.

This is the only comprehensive set of leading cases grouped under topics, with illustrative notes, — an extension of the plan long since approved by lawyers in Smith's Leading Cases and similar collections. There are to be 25 vols., of which 19 have been issued, at $5.50 per volume.

Green Bag Reprint, Vols. 1 to 10, with Index.

For the benefit of lawyers who have not taken THE GREEN BAG, or have not preserved their files, we have reprinted enough numbers of this favorite magazine to make up a limited number of sets, bound in green half-cloth, to sell at $25.00 per set, — a low price for such a cyclopædia of legal history and biography, embellished with over a thousand portraits.

If you do not now see THE GREEN BAG every month, why not send $4.00 to the Boston Book Company, and try it for a year?

Legal Bibliography.

No. 3, NEW SERIES.

BOSTON, MASS.

JANUARY, 1900.

TO OUR READERS.

With this number the character of LEGAL BIBLIOGRAPHY is changed. Heretofore it has been more an advertising sheet than a bibliography. In future it will justify its name by giving greater space to such information about recent law books as will be useful to lawyers and librarians, together with occasional bibliographical articles about older books. No attempt will be made to review or analyze new books, but all of what may be called catalogue news, now difficult for any one person to keep run of, will be brought together in these columns.

In giving this information we shall not discriminate between the books we publish or have in stock and the books of other publishers. Our aim is to give all the facts that buyers want, in the belief that a paper giving such a full record of current law literature will be prized and preserved, and will incidentally give a better medium than we have heretofore had for our own advertisements, inserted on separate pages as we should insert them in THE GREEN BAG or any other periodical.

As we must get back the cost of issuing LEGAL BIBLIOGRAPHY from increased sales, we hope that some of its recipients will feel moved to send us orders. Where this is not possible, a word of commendation or of suggestion as to how we can make our paper more useful will be gratefully received.

We should also be glad to get short letters, queries, or articles about law books or citations, with permission to print them in future numbers of LEGAL BIBLIOGRAPHY.

It has been difficult to get full and accurate information for the lists in this number. Whoever notices an omission or an error will do us a favor by pointing it out.

EVERY BOOK ON ANY TOPIC.

Having now in our hands the rough draft of the Index of Subjects for the new edition of THE LAWYERS' REFERENCE MANUAL, we can furnish complete lists of the printed literature of the English language on any topic of law, so far as it has been recorded in the printed catalogues of libraries and of booksellers from A.D. 1682 to the present time. The value of such lists to lawyers and libraries interested in special subjects is sufficiently obvious.

PATENT LAW.

Vol. 20 of ENGLISH RULING CASES, covering the topic "PATENTS," will also be sold separately (price $6.50) as LEADING ENGLISH PATENT CASES. It will be ready in February, 1900.

THE LATEST AMERICAN REPORTS, DIGESTS, STATUTES, AND LOCAL WORKS.

This list gives the last volume of each current set, the latest digest, and the last codes or revised statutes of the States, with subsequent session laws.

RAWLE'S BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY.

This work is the most important of recently published law books. Although in one sense it is only a new edition, in another sense it is a new book. While the idea, the framework, and all the dictionary or definition portion of the book are Judge Bouvier's, and stand to-day as they have been used and approved by two generations, the encyclopædic portion, including the brief elementary treatises, has been recast and rewritten, with citations of the latest cases, in the light of modern developments of the law. The work of revision has been thoroughly done by FRANCIS RAWLE, Esq., of the Philadelphia bar, an eminent lawyer, who has given not merely the strength of his name, but his conscientious personal work, to every page, — thus giving a new imprimatur to a legal standard.

This edition supersedes old editions as completely as a revision of the statutes supersedes its predecessors.

To judges and trial justices RAWLE'S BOUVIER will serve as a trustworthy manual of law and practice, for quick consultation in or out of court.

To veteran lawyers it will be a handy reminder of the law, often saving the need of referring to other books; and an authority recognized by the courts.

For young lawyers it is an inexpensive cyclopædia, a law library in two volumes.

For students of the law it gives definitions and compact statements of law on all topics; and it can be used both in study and in subsequent practice.

RAWLE'S BOUVIER is in two large volumes. Price, $12 net, or $13 delivered.

GENERAL INDEX TO PERIODICALS.

In 1888 HON. LEONARD A. JONES published AN INDEX TO LEGAL PERIODICAL LITERATURE, which has been found extremely useful, not only in libraries, but also by lawyers who have occasion to look up points not covered in the digests and text-books. The files of legal journals are full of articles on special topics, contributed by lawyers who have spent months in looking up law which they could not find stated in any existing books. Until JUDGE JONES compiled his INDEX these monographs were hidden among "back volumes."

In January, 1900, will be published a second volume, bringing the INDEX down through 1898, and adding references to articles on Legal Science, Political Science, Economics, and Sociology.

The price of Vol. 2, in half morocco, is $10.00 net.

NEW AND COMPLETE ENGLISH DIGEST.

Until now there has been no one complete digest of the English reports. Separate Equity and Common Law digests have been issued at different times, often overlapping each other, and, between them, omitting many important cases. In 1899 was published MEWS' DIGEST OF ENGLISH CASE LAW (16 vols., sheep, $96), covering both Law and Equity, and the whole range of modern English reports, from 1750 to the end of 1898.

ENGLISH BOOKS USEFUL IN AMERICA.

ENGLISH RULING CASES WITH AMERICAN NOTES.

A series of 25 vols. Vols. 1 to 18 edited by IRVING BROWNE; Vols. 19 to 25 by HON. LEONARD A. JONES. Vols. 1 to 19 are now ready; Vols. 20 to 25 will be issued at intervals of about three months. Price $5.50 per vol., or $5.75 delivered.
[Vol. 20 (ready in January, 1900) comprises PATENTS, and will be sold separately as a collection of leading cases on that subject for $6.50.]

This series groups together the early "leading" and the later "ruling" English cases, printed in full, under topics, alphabetically arranged, together with English notes abstracting less important cases and American notes pointing out the accord or difference of our cases.

This method of arranging cases, familiar to the profession through Smith's Leading Cases and White and Tudor's Equity Cases, can hardly be applied, within moderate compass, to the whole volume of American law, because we have so many coödinate jurisdictions. But in England, where all cases come up through one system of courts to one Court of Appeals, it is possible to make a selection of "Ruling Cases" which embodies the whole English law.

In view of the constant citation of English cases in our courts, ENGLISH RULING CASES — the only set of annotated cases arranged by topics and covering the whole range of law — should be in every public or private law library.

ENCYCLOPAEDIA OF THE LAWS OF ENGLAND.

BEING A NEW ABRIDGEMENT BY THE MOST EMINENT LEGAL AUTHORITIES.

Edited by A. WOOD RENTON; with an introduction by SIR FREDERIC POLLOCK. 12 vols., $72.00.

This encyclopædia differs from others in the fact that each article is written by a judge or legal author already known as an expert.

The lack of American notes will prevent its popular sale in the United States, but the set — as a clear, compact statement of the principles of the common law — should be in every public law library, and in the library of every lawyer of large practice.

THE DIGEST OF ENGLISH CASE LAW (TO 1898).

COMPILED BY JOHN MEWS, WITH THE ASSISTANCE OF NINETEEN SPECIALISTS. 16 vols., $96.00.

This is the first complete English digest. Hitherto there have been separate Common Law and Equity Digests, duplicating many cases; but still not covering the whole field. Now these are merged into one series of 16 volumes, showing the framework of the English law.

There is an annual supplement by JOHN MEWS, which we can supply (in cloth binding) for $3.50. 1898 is published; 1899 will be ready soon.

SCOTCH HOUSE OF LORDS REPORTS: Reprint.

10 vols., half-roxburgh, $75.00.

There is in course of publication the SCOTS REVISED REPORTS, a reprint of all the Scotch decisions which have present value. This series, which will run to 30 or 40 volumes, is being taken by many American libraries which do not have the Scotch reports in full. As many smaller libraries need the SCOTCH HOUSE OF LORDS CASES, — which are often cited in our courts, — and not the inferior court reports, — which are seldom cited, — we have arranged to get, separately, the volumes of the Reports which comprise the House of Lords cases. Only a limited extra number of these volumes have been printed, and it will therefore be wise for those who need these volumes to secure them now. The cost of the full set has been $550.00, these ten volumes will cost $75.00.

Why not send four dollars to the Boston Book Co., and try "The Green Bag" for a year? It will repay you in stimulus and entertainment.

THE BOSTON BOOK CO.'S APRIL BULLETIN.

Our most important item of news this month is the near publication of a new revised edition of SCHOULER ON WILLS, which is now going rapidly through the press. It will serve to keep this work in its conceded position as an American standard, and as one of the few books which must be included in a lawyer's working library. (Price, $5.50 net.)

We have also in preparation "History of the Judiciary of Massachusetts, including the Colony of New Plymouth, the Colony and Province of Massachusetts Bay, and the Commonwealth," by William T. Davis, Esq., of Plymouth.

Vol. 20 of ENGLISH RULING CASES ($5.50 net) just covers the topic "PATENTS." For the convenience of patent lawyers, who do not need the whole series, we have also published this volume separately, under the title of RULING CASES ON PATENT LAW ($6.50 net). Vol. 21 of E. R. C. will be ready early in May. As the series will be completed, as originally announced, in twenty-five volumes, the end is in sight. There will be an additional volume, to include the Index and Table of Cases needed to complete the usefulness of this compact and practical set of reports.

Commendatory reviews of MARTIN'S CIVIL PROCEDURE AT COMMON LAW (1 vol., $3.50) have appeared in the Harvard Law Review, published at the Harvard Law School; in the American Law Register, published at the Law School of Pennsylvania University; and in the American Law Review, published at St. Louis. Praise for this new book comes also from judges, lawyers, and teachers of law, and it is to be used next year at several law schools. It was written especially for students who expect to practise in "Code States," but it appears to be also well adapted for States where there is no reformed code of procedure.

The final publication of Vol. 2 of JONES'S INDEX TO LEGAL PERIODICAL LITERATURE ($10.00 net) calls renewed attention to the great number of valuable monographs, hitherto hidden in back volumes of English and American periodicals, and now rendered accessible by Judge Jones's compilation.

RAWLE'S REVISION OF BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY has already had, and is still having, a sale which proves that lawyers appreciate thorough literary work. Students who are finishing their law school course, and are about to begin practice, will find in RAWLE'S BOUVIER more late and accurate law on all topics—more conveniently arranged for ready reference and prompt use in office or in court—than the price ($12.00 net), or many times the price, can secure in any other form.

Legal Bibliography.

No. 4, NEW SERIES.

BOSTON, MASS.

APRIL, 1900.

NOTES.

Chicago Opinion. — "I would call your attention to the INDEX TO LEGAL PERIODICAL LITERATURE, by LEONARD A. JONES, VOL. 2, 1887-99, a most valuable aid, which for years has been anxiously looked for." From the Report of the librarian, Julius Rosenthal, to the Chicago Law Institute, Dec. 31, 1899.

Far Praise for Rawle's Bouvier. — Lawyers who practised in St. Louis in the "seventies" will remember Newton Crane as one of the juniors at the bar in those palmy days. He is now a full-fledged English barrister, and writes thus from his chambers, No. 1 Essex Court, Temple, London, E.C. :

"Denied access to a public American law library, I am obliged to select my books with great care, in order to have the best working tools within reach. I am amazed at the usefulness of Mr. Rawle's Bouvier. It is my first resort, and I rarely fail to find with ease the exact matter I want. It is a complete encyclopædia rather than a dictionary."

The Massachusetts Judiciary. — We shall publish — probably in May or June — a "History of the Judiciary of Massachusetts, including the Colony of New Plymouth, the Colony and Province of Massachusetts Bay, and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts," by Hon. William T. Davis, of Plymouth, Mass. Size and price will be announced later in THE GREEN BAG.

Booksellers' Extortion. — Four hundred years ago booksellers were not only kept by competition from overcharging their customers, as in these modern days, but also by the iron hand of authority. Among the statutes, "Anno. XXV., Henry VIII.," is one about "Bokes." After providing against buying to sell again, "any bokes brought from any partes out of the kynges obeysance redy bound in bordes, lether, or parchement," the statute continues :

¶ Prouyded that if any of the pryncers or sellers of prynced bokes enhans the pryse of suche bokes in such wyse as complaynt be made to the kyng / the chancellour / treasurer / or any of the chyeft iustices than they or two of them haue power to inquire thereof as well by othys of. III. discrete persons / as by other due examination. And after the same enhaunsing of pryse so by them found that than they or two of them to haue power to redresse it / and to limite pryses convenient and the party beyng therof conuynct to forfayt for every boke by them solde at such enhaunsed pryse. iii. s. iiij. d.

Could the "oaths of twelve discreet persons" be procured to convict any modern booksellers of "enhancing prices" ?

MARTIN ON CIVIL PROCEDURE AT COMMON LAW.

The following paragraphs from THE AMERICAN LAW REVIEW give suggestions as to the value, to lawyers as well as to students, of this new book :

"The author has for ten years instructed students of the University of Missouri upon the subject of this treatise. Prior to that time he had been a member of the Supreme Court Commission of Missouri, and prior to that, one of the leading practitioners at the bar of St. Louis for a period of about thirty years. His habits of investigation were thorough; his legal arguments and judicial opinions conscientious and accurate; his style succinct, and destitute of redundancy or ornament. This book is the result of a conviction, shared in by many teachers of the law and by authors of works on procedure under the modern codes, that, in order to acquire a proper understanding of the codes, it is necessary to understand the system of common law and equity procedure which preceded the codes, and which were for the most part blended with the codes.

"This book contains but little more than 400 pages of good law size; and yet on turning them over the first impression that will be produced on the mind of the reader will be a sense of what he himself does not know concerning the original rules and principles of our law. Some able instructors of the law are of the opinion that the best way to acquire an understanding of the ancient common law is by the study of the ancient judicial writs. On this conception Fitzherbert's 'Natura Brevium' would probably be the first text-book that would be put into the hands of the student. If that is a sound view, it must follow, for nearly equal reasons, that a study of the system of procedure which has preceded the modern codes and the modern practice-acts furnishes the proper introduction to the study of these later systems. This book is believed to present that ancient system of procedure, so far as it was in use in the courts of common law, in accurate outline and with sufficient fulness for the purposes of the modern student. Nor will its usefulness be confined to mere students of the law, unless we use the word 'student' in its larger sense as applicable to every worthy lawyer or judge; for none such ceases to be a student of the law while life lasts. Old lawyers and judges will open its pages with a mingled feeling of surprise, pleasure, and disappointment—surprise at the great amount of accurate learning presented in so small a compass, and with such clearness of statement; pleasure analogous to that with which a good lawyer, after many years, returns to the reading of Blackstone, or Kent, or Story; disappointment at the discovery that the reader knew so little, or had forgotten so much."

[One volume, law sheep, $3.50 net.]

NOTES.

Year Book Jingle.—In Anno Decimo Sexto of the Liber Assisarum, page 46 of the 1679 edition, these two lines are interpolated in an "Infant" case:

 { brue mora. }
 { Junca. maris. albe. pis. red. sectare priora. }

What do they mean? They sound like the "counting-out" doggerel of children's games.

The Juridical Review.—Important Changes. —In future this excellent Scottish magazine will be published in the months of March, June, September, and December. It is intended also to revive the series of portraits which used to be issued with the magazine, but which were discarded on account of their cost. The editors of the REVIEW are Mr. Wm. C. Smith and Mr. N. J. D. Kennedy, advocates. [$3.50 per year.]

Scotch Outer House Cases.—Although the greater proportion of the English reported cases are, and have been, those decided by single judges, it is only lately that single-judge cases have been reported at all in Scotland. Why this should be, it is difficult to say, as there were contemporary series of Sheriff-Court reports dated as far back as 1859, and many Outer House cases, which have never been appealed, decide important points. For some years the SCOTTISH LAW REPORTER's excellent series of reports has included an occasional Outer House case, but it was only six years ago, when the SCOTS LAW TIMES' reports were begun, that a systematic attempt was made to record these important decisions. An analysis of the first six volumes has just been made, which shows that out of three thousand three hundred and thirty-six cases reported in those volumes over one thousand five hundred are Outer House cases, and as each is initialled and vouched for by the member of the bar reporting it, the utility and importance of the series is very considerable. No library of modern reports can be in any sense complete without the set of six volumes of the SCOTS LAW TIMES. [Price of six vols., half sheep, $39.00.]

Dog-French.—Some of the old law French was so far anglicized as to resemble what school boys call "Dog-Latin." For instance, in Fletewood's "Elenchus," of Part XI. of the Year Books, among such puzzlers as

Copie de un fait nre ne ferra grat,

—which is certainly both technical and Frenchy,—occur occasional lines like this:

Butcher punished pur bendition de mesel porke.

"Measly pork" is very thinly disguised in this dress.

Caricatures of Lawyers.—We have a nearly full set of the caricatures published by "VANITY FAIR," London,—so far as they represent English judges and lawyers. Their wigs and robes and English, Irish, or Scotch lineaments, render this a striking and amusing collection. There are about 35 framed and 50 unframed portraits, and a few odds.

DIGEST OR SUBSTITUTE FOR ENGLISH REPORTS.

Libraries and lawyers who have already English reports on their shelves will find MEWS' DIGEST OF ENGLISH CASE LAW (16 vols., sheep, to lawyers, $96.00; or to libraries entitled to remission of duty, $80.00) an excellent key to their contents. Indeed, Mews' New Digest is so full — giving an unusually full statement of the case — that it serves, in a certain sense, as a substitute for the original reports.

For lawyers who do not own the English reports, but want to keep run of such important English cases as influence or have weight with our own courts, the series known as ENGLISH RULING CASES WITH AMERICAN NOTES is a treasure. The English cases which are marked out by the common consent of lawyers as "leading" or "ruling" are in this set arranged and printed in full under the alphabetically arranged topics of the law. In the English Notes subsidiary cases are abstracted or summarized, and in the American Notes sufficient citations are given to enable the American lawyer to connect the English decisions with those of the jurisdictions in which he practises.

Of the ENGLISH RULING CASES 20 volumes are now published. Vol. 21 will be ready in May; Vols. 22 to 25, completing the series, will follow quarterly; and Vol. 26, including Index and Table of Cases, will appear early in 1901. Price of the series $5.50 per volume, or $5.75 delivered anywhere in the United States.

Lawyers' Reference Manual of Law Books and Citations. — To the inquiries which constantly come to us as to the MANUAL, we have to answer that Mr. SOULE is still at work on a new edition, progressing, however, very slowly, as titles and dates require a vast amount of research and verification.

REVIEW FOR EXAMINATIONS.

Now that the law school and bar examinations are near at hand, the candidate for admission to the bar casts around for a good refresher of memory on the topics he has read up during his course of study. For this use, EWELL'S ESSENTIALS OF THE LAW will be found to give great aid. There are three volumes: Vol. 1, being a compact edition of Blackstone's Commentaries; Vol. 2, covering Pleading, Contracts, and Equity; Vol. 3, Real Property, Evidence, and Torts. Concise statements of legal principles, with catchwords in black type, enable the student to "cram" quickly and thoroughly. The three volumes sell as a set for $7.50 in sheep, or $6.00 in cloth. Vol. 1, separately, $3.00 or $2.50; Vol. 2 or 3, each, $2.50 or $2.00. Prices all net.

OLD EDITIONS OF BOUVIER.

We have been embarrassed by requests, from lawyers who wanted RAWLE'S BOUVIER but could hardly spare the twelve dollars required to buy it, for some offer of exchange for their old editions. When a book is so much changed and improved as is Bouvier's Law Dictionary, in Rawle's revision, the old editions are about as worthless and unsalable as superseded revisions of statutes.

But we do not want to cut any lawyer off from the privilege of owning RAWLE'S BOUVIER by too rigorous rules, and if any one in such a fix will write us, giving date and condition of his old edition, we will see what we can do. On a combined order for BOUVIER and the GREEN BAG — or some other of our own publications — we can often make a satisfactory trade.

THE BOSTON BOOK CO.'S JULY BULLETIN.

This is an age of reprints, which seem to have culminated in the project (see last page of this number) of a full verbatim REPRINT OF ALL THE ENGLISH REPORTS, from the Year Books down to 1865, — the year when the present system of "Law Reports" began. Think of one thousand volumes compressed into one hundred and fifty! How is the compression to be managed — and where can the projectors get enough subscribers to pay the cost? These are the questions which naturally arise in the mind of the average lawyer or bookseller. But the perusal of the very clever eight-page circular of the publishers fully answers the first question, and tends to persuade the reader to aid in solving the second query by subscribing for the reprint himself.

For a small bar library or a small law school, this is a first-rate chance, if taken now (the reprint is limited), to get all the English reports at a low price, and pay for them in small instalments. For a lawyer, the separate series can be bought as he prefers or needs them in his practice.

And for the lawyer who does not want this chronological reprint the set of ENGLISH RULING CASES offers an excellent selection of the best decisions grouped by topics.

This is a great time for the lawyer who knows how to use English precedents.

What are you going to do for summer reading? If you own the bound set of THE GREEN BAG you have a treasury of "Half-Hours with the Best Lawyers," which will solace your leisure hours from now on to October. Even the current monthly numbers will provide a few days' good reading; but the bound set will answer for the season, and leave entertainment over for winter evenings. The "reprint edition" of THE GREEN BAG costs only $27.50 for the whole eleven volumes; and the annual subscription is $4.00.

Vol. 21 of ENGLISH RULING CASES to be published in July. Its principal contents are:

Payment (8 cases).	Power (23 cases).
Payment by mistake (3 cases).	Presumption (3 cases).
Performance (2 cases).	Principal and Surety (10 cases).
Perpetuities (2 cases).	Purchaser for value without notice
Petition of Rights (3 cases).	(7 cases).
Pilotage (9 cases).

These groups of leading or "ruling cases," with full English and American notes, give the law in practical and convincing form.

We call especial attention to the topic POWER, which has not been covered in recent text-book literature.

Legal Bibliography.

NO. 5, NEW SERIES.

BOSTON, MASS.

JULY, 1900.

NOTES.

Year Book Jingle Interpreted. — In 4 Leg. Bib. N. S. we asked (Notes p. 4.):

Year Book Jingle. — In Anno Decimo Sexto of the Liber Assisarum, page 46 of the 1679 edition, these two lines are interpolated in an "Infant" case:

 brue mora.

} Junca. maris. albe. pis. red. sectare priora. }
What do they mean? They sound like the "counting-out" doggerel of children's games.

This query has been answered by one of the leading lawyers in Cleveland, Ohio, and by a judge of the Common Pleas in Pittsburgh, Pa., whose names we do not feel at liberty to print. The latter writes as follows:

Editor of Legal Bibliography:

DEAR SIR: In your number of April, 1900, p. 4, you print a query as to certain barbarous hexameters in the Liber Assisarum, p. 46.

They are not interpolated in an "Infant" case as suggested, but stand between two cases, and have no connection with either. They appear to be mnemonic verses written by some idle conveyancer's clerk in a blank space in the manuscript and printed without its being observed that they do not belong to the book itself.

The first line is made up of abbreviations of various names of divisions or parts of land and the second of similar divisions or parts of land covered with water.

They are all plain enough, except, perhaps, the red. of the second line, which probably stands for redundatas, overflowed lands.

They may perhaps be extended and translated as follows:

"Messuagium, toftum, molendinum columbarium, garreina (i.e., warren) terra pratum pastura, boscus, bruera (i.e., heath) mora (i.e., moor).

"Juncarium, mariscus, alveys (place of sedges) piscarium redundatas, follow the former (that is, put these latter words after those of the first line in drawing deeds)."

Our Cleveland correspondent translates the phrases thus:

"Mes. toft. undoubtedly means message toft or improved lands and abandoned lands; mol. might mean molendina mills; col., might come from colo or cultivated lands; garr., from garth, meaning enclosed lands; ter., from terra, lands; pra., from pratum, grazing lands; pas., from pascua, pasture lands; bos., from boscus, timber lands; brue., from bruillus, wooded lands; mora, moorlands; junca., from juncaria, rush lands; maris., from mariscus, marsh lands; alve., river beds; pis., from piscary, fishing rights."

If the manuscript from which the Liber Assisarum was printed is in existence, it would be interesting to find out whether these lines are shown, by difference in inks, or otherwise, to be an interpolation as thus suggested.

A HELP IN NEED.

A Boston lawyer recently called on us and ordered a set of JONES'S INDEX to LEGAL PERIODICALS. "The price," he said, "is high, but I must buy the book out of gratitude. I wanted to advise a client on a puzzling point of law, and could find no authorities until I struck JONES'S INDEX, where a reference to one of the old volumes of an American law periodical directed me to a complete monograph on the subject, which enabled me to give an opinion at once, and to earn a good fee with little trouble."

This reminds us of the Baltimore lawyer to whom came in distress a country friend who had a case to argue and could find no authorities on his side. The Baltimorean referred to JONES'S INDEX, which directed him to an article where half a dozen cases were cited for, and a hundred or more against, the view the rural attorney wanted to support. A month afterwards the latter burst into his friend's office and shouted: "Thanks to you and to JONES'S INDEX. I won my case!"

"What? — with the law dead against you?"

"Yes, indeed. I took my six cases, and presented them forcibly to the court, while my opponent, who thought he had a dead-sure thing, had failed to fortify himself with cases. And I won the case and pleased my client!"

The moral of these anecdotes is obvious, namely: No library is complete without Jones's Index to Legal Periodicals, 2 vols., $20 net.

The two objections made to Jones are its price and the fact that the magazines referred to are found only in large libraries. As to the price, it has to be high, because only libraries and the best lawyers are likely to buy the work, — a small constituency. As to the magazines: it is true that the complete collections of bound sets are only found in large libraries; but is it not worth while to be able to find at a glance, in your office, whether the nearest large library contains any articles which will help you out of a tight place?

And it is not difficult or expensive to get a collection of the magazines most frequently cited. Either a small bar or law school library, or a single lawyer or a group of lawyers in neighboring offices, can afford to buy, among American sets, the "American Law Journal," 6 vols.; "American Law Magazine," 6 vols.; "American Jurist," 28 vols.; "Monthly Law Reporter," 27 vols.; "American Law Register," 47 vols.; "American Law Review," 33 vols.; "Southern Law Review," 11 vols.; "Western Jurist," 17 vols.; "Albany Law Journal," 60 vols.; "Central Law Journal," 49 vols.; "Green Bag," 11 vols.; and "Harvard Law Review," 12 vols. English sets are longer and a bit more expensive, but the "Legal Observer," 52 vols.; "Law Times," 80 vols.; "Law Quarterly Review," 15 vols.; and "Juridical Review," 11 vols., are easily obtained.

NOTES.

"A White Man." — This slang phrase of commendation dates certainly as far back as 1644, for this epitaph on a benchler is engraved on a brass plate of that date in the Temple Church, London:

"Here lieth a John, a burning shining light,
His name, life, Actions, were all White."

Comparative Jurisprudence. — An interesting work, little known in this country, is Patrick Mac-Chombaich de Colquhoun's "Summary of the Roman Civil Law, illustrated by Commentaries on, and Parallels from, the Mosaic, Canon, Mohammedan, English, and Foreign Laws," published in London, in four volumes, 1849-1860. The preface states that the author's object was "to supply a deficiency in the legal literature of this country" (England), "with respect to the Roman Civil Law. On the Continent there are various works on this subject, but many are inaccessible to readers not acquainted with the modern languages in which they are written, while those which are composed in Latin, require the devotion of much time and labor to their perusal; many of them, too, are intermixed with the local laws of the countries to which their authors belong; in addition to which, it is difficult to fix upon any one work which unites the desiderata of law and legal antiquities: a deficiency which the author proposes to remedy, by combining both in one work."

Part I. is introductory, tracing the origin and rise of the old systems of law; Parts II. to VI., and the Appendix, give what is apparently the most thorough and exhaustive English translation of and commentary on the Titles of the Roman Law to be found in print.

Coke's Second, Third, and Fourth Institutes. — Coke's First Institute, familiarly called "Coke on Littleton," is much better known to lawyers than his other three Institutes (or Parts). First printed in 1628, it passed through three editions before the author died in 1634. Of these the Second edition, 1629, has been said to be the most correct. Other editions were published from time to time, by various editors, ending in England with the 17th edition, 2 vols., 1817. This has been three times reprinted in the United States — in 1823, 1836, and 1853.

The Second Institute was first published in 1642, and again in 1662; the Third and Fourth in 1644.

The Third and Fourth Institutes were reprinted in 1648 and in 1660. The three Institutes were again reprinted in 1669, in 1670-71, and in 1680-81. All these editions were in folio.

The only octavo edition of the Second, Third, and Fourth Institutes was published in 1797, to accompany the 14th edition of the First Institute. These were reissued without change (except in date) in 1809 and 1817, as companion volumes to the 16th and 17th editions of Coke on Littleton.

In the octavo edition, the Second Institute (Ancient Statutes) occupies two volumes; the Third Institute (Pleas of the Crown) one volume; and the Fourth Institute (Jurisdiction of Courts) one volume.

NOTES.

Edition de Luxe of Magna Charta. — Among the few law-books which are printed with especial regard to beauty and ornament is the "Historical Essay on the Magna Charta of King John" (and other charters), by Richard Thomson, published in London, 1829. The "Embellishments" consist of emblematic initials (each fully described in the prefatory "Descriptive List") and of engraved borders to all the pages of the book (no two alike), giving the "Armorial Ensigns" of the Sovereigns, Ecclesiastics, Nobles, etc., connected with the history of Magna Charta, especially designed for this work by W. Hughes and Messrs. Bonner, Mason, and J. Byfield.

This is an excellent book for a present to a lawyer, or from a lawyer to himself. There are various forms of the work, — ordinary size, large paper, chinese paper, etc., — and various bindings.

Colonial Law. — Our new possessions in both hemispheres introduce a new complexity into our legal relations, which requires an entirely novel line of literature in our law libraries. "Burge on Colonial and Foreign Law," 4 vols., 1838, is the English authority, — but it is scarce and high priced. C. J. Farring's "Chapters on the Law Relating to the Colonies," 2d ed., 1 vol., 1893, seems to be the latest English discussion of the subject.

On Spanish Law there are a few good books printed in the English language. Johnston's translation of "Asso y del Rio," London, 1825, and "Schmidt's Civil Law of Spain and Mexico," New Orleans, 1851, are perhaps the best.

"White's New Recopilacion of Laws, etc., of Great Britain, France, and Spain, as to Concessions of Land in their Colonies; and of the Laws of Mexico and Texas," 2 vols., Philadelphia, 1839, combines the Colonial and the Spanish features.

The latest work on the subject is C. S. Walton's "Civil Law in Spain and Spanish America, including Cuba, Puerto Rico, and Philippine Islands," 1900.

SPECIAL BARGAINS FOR JULY.

AN EXCEPTIONAL BARGAIN FOR ANY LIBRARY.

AT A GREAT SAVING BELOW USUAL COST.

We have recently bought a large library containing the following sets, which we offer in good condition at much less than their usual price. The sets can easily be filled to date, and for any library wishing these reports this is an exceptional opportunity.

The sets are as follows:

Irish Reports. Complete set of all the regular series, with Digests, Statutes, and other extras from the beginning up to 1888, — in all 222 vols.

Scotch Reports. Complete set of all the regular series (House of Lords, Sessions Cases, etc., with Digests, Statutes, Law Magazines, and other extras), from the beginning up to 1892, — in all 346 vols.

Canadian Reports. Complete sets of the Dominion Supreme Court and the Provinces of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Manitoba, and Prince Edward Island, from beginning up to 1893, all the regular series, with Digests, Statutes, and the several law magazines, — in all 558 vols.

Full particulars as to price and the exact volumes covered will be furnished on application. Although we prefer to sell the library as a whole at an exceptionally low price, we will on application consider the advisability of breaking it up.

BARGAINS IN SPECIAL SETS.

Morrison's Mining Reports. Complete set, 16 vols. Almost good as new. $50.

OTHER SECOND-HAND BOOKS.

Among the classes of second-hand law books of which we have a stock always on hand, are:

Text Books and Students' Books. Of these we have a large stock, both of last editions and of cheaper and older editions. We have not printed any recent lists of these, but propose to do so in the fall.

Rare and Quaint Old Law Books. We still have some copies of the four-page list of these books, issued in April last.

Session Laws and Statutes. We have a very large stock of sets and odds of the laws of nearly every State in the Union, and invite correspondence concerning them.

English, Scotch, Irish, and British Colonial Reports. As we make a specialty of foreign law books we can furnish or give estimates upon anything in this line at short notice.

Bound Sets of Law Periodicals. These are becoming more and more valuable from the increased use of Jones's Index to Legal Periodicals.

The original volumes (about 1,000 in all) were inconveniently variable in size and form, costing approximately $10,000.00. The reprint will be more moderate in bulk, comprising 150 books of about 1,500 pages each, uniform in size and binding, and of the best manufacture as to paper, printing, etc. Special price is made on advance orders, as follows :

For libraries entitled to remission of duties:

Full sets at $5.00 per vol.; separate series at $6.00 per vol.

For lawyers:

Full sets at $6.00 per vol.; separate series at $7.50 per vol.

Plan of publication.

The first volume will be issued in August, and later volumes will appear at least one each month. Special advance prices are offered only until October 1, after which time prices are subject to advance. Only a limited number of sets will be printed.

English reports more cited than others.

At this low price this reprint should be one of the first sets in every library, because English reports are more frequently cited in American Courts than any other except United States Supreme Court reports. Actual count of cases cited in the latest volume of each set of American reports recently showed as follows (only the 6 leading States are here noted):

United States	cited 1,669 times.	Massachusetts	cited 1,268 times.
English	" 1,594 "	California	" 805 "
New York	" 1,424 "	Pennsylvania	" 532 "

Circulars on application.

Full descriptive circulars on application, giving list of reports reprinted, sample pages, etc. The first series will be the House of Lords, 58 volumes in 11 books.

Legal Bibliography.

NO. 6, NEW SERIES.

BOSTON, MASS.

OCTOBER, 1900.

NOTES.

A Notable Article.—We call attention of intelligent lawyers to an article in the October GREEN BAG on "The Manuscripts of the Year Books." The author is L. OWEN PIKE, successor of Mr. Horwood in editing the Rolls translation of the hitherto unpublished Year Books of Edward I. and III. He has spent so many years in examining old MS. Year Books and Court Rolls that he is now the leading authority on everything which pertains to them.

Blackstoniana.—We are making up a collection of Blackstone's works, to include not only every edition of the Commentaries, but also the various editions of his other works. It is nearly complete. When it is entirely so we may give a list of works and editions in some future number of LEGAL BIBLIOGRAPHY.

In getting together this collection we have taken several duplicates of the early four-volume editions which we can sell separately.

Compiling at Full Speed.—The Arizona Revised Statutes of 1887 (902 pages) were prepared in sixty-five days. The Statutory Commission, appointed under an act approved Jan. 17, 1887, was required to report before March 4 of the same year, but was then allowed twenty days' extra time for indexing the revision and preparing it for the press. Does not this beat the world's record for statute-making?

Complicated Collation.—The 1802-1806 Law Journal of London is a puzzling publication. Apparently volumes 1 and 2, 1802 and 1803, were edited by John Morgan and T. W. Williams, and contained both reports and miscellaneous matter. Then followed, in 1804-1806, Nos. 1 to 37, edited by John Prince Smith. The different departments of this periodical were paged separately, through the various numbers, and when bound should be separated into J. P. Smith's Reports, 3 volumes; Acts of Parliament, 3 volumes; and Miscellaneous Matter, 3 volumes.

When were Head-Notes first used?—The "Reports of Cases in the High Court of Parliament," by Richard Colles (should this name be pronounced in one or two syllables?) were published in 1789 as a supplementary or eighth volume to the Dublin seven-volume octavo edition of Brown's Parliamentary Cases. Bridgman (Legal Bibliography, p. 246) says that Mr. Tomlin, editor of the London 1803 edition of Brown's P. C., "adopted the method used by Mr. Colles, of placing the substance of each case at its head; a practice since followed by John Prince Smith, Esq., in his Reports, and which we hope, from its great utility, will become general." Were head-notes first used by Colles? Syllabi in side-notes date back to the earliest printed year-books.

A MARVEL OF COMPACTNESS.

A Gigantic Enterprise.—This phrase fitly characterizes the newest scheme of republication, which comprehends all the English reports enumerated in the catalogues,—about a thousand volumes. The reprint is to have so large a page and so many pages, that six volumes of the originals, on the average, are to be compacted into one of the reprint.

Full and Accurate.—The best edition of each series of reports is to be reprinted in full. No new notes are projected, but a competent editor will watch out to correct errors in the originals, so that this should be the most accurate edition of the English reports.

Good Law to Cite.—An impression has prevailed that English cases were no longer much used in this country, but actual count of cases cited in the latest reports of all the States shows that English precedents are cited to-day in our courts oftener than any others except cases from the United States reports. In many of the States, English cases are cited oftener than any other cases except those of the State itself.

Weighty with the Court.—It is evident from this showing that a pertinent English decision will be listened to with respect by any of our courts, and that a set of English reports is an excellent thing to have on the shelves. Indeed, the proper order of purchase would seem to be: first, the reports of your own State, second, (perhaps) the United States reports, next, (certainly) English Reports.

Economy of Cost.—By making a large page, by securing advance subscriptions, by printing from type (without making plates) only enough copies for subscribers, the publishers are able to sell the full reprint for six dollars a (reprint) volume, and even less to libraries. This is less than a dollar a volume for the originals, which have been selling for ten times as much.

Economy of Space.—A great merit in these days of overcrowded bookshelves will be the compactness of the reprint. Any scheme that will give more law in less space will be hailed as a relief by lawyers and by librarians. The reprint will only take about a third of the space required for the originals.

Limited Edition.—It is well to note clearly the fact that the reprint is not to be stereotyped. This means that the lawyer who does not subscribe early may find the edition exhausted when he finally makes up his mind to have it, and that the prompt subscriber will not see prices go down below what he pays, as if the market could be flooded with successive impressions from stereotype plates.

Separate Courts.—If a lawyer hesitates at subscribing for the full set, he can enter a subscription, at a slightly higher rate, for any court or courts. The House of Lords Reports come first, — most important of all, — as being appellate decisions. The fifty-eight original volumes will appear in eleven. As these are coming monthly this series should be finished within a year.

Choice of Alternatives. — It is now possible for a lawyer who wants the English reports to have a triple choice. If he distrusts selected cases, and wants everything, the new reprint gives it. If he cannot wait for the monthly volumes of the reprint and wants everything right away, MEWS' DIGEST OF ENGLISH CASE LAW is new enough and full enough to furnish a fair substitute for the reports.

The Very Best Cases. — If again he does not care for the whole round of English decisions, but wants only the best, he has RULING CASES WITH AMERICAN NOTES, which gives him the cases of proved and recognized authority, so conveniently arranged under subject-headings that they furnish a brief in themselves, and can be taken into court and read just like the original reports.

INTERESTING AS WELL AS VALUABLE.

Libraries and lawyers will be apt to buy DAVIS' HISTORY OF THE JUDICIARY OF MASSACHUSETTS (published November 1; bound in cloth; price $3.00 net) because of its historic value; but they will find in it also much that is readable and entertaining. The introductory chapter has a fine flavor of reminiscence, and is full of sketches and stories of the eminent lawyers whom the author has known or heard. Thus he says of Daniel Webster:

"He was not, as many who have never heard him suppose, a fluent speaker. A fluent man is rarely, if ever, concise, but Mr. Webster's sentences were composed of selected words, and always compactly framed. He would in extemporaneous speech often hesitate, and he had a little trick of scratching his right ear until the word he wanted came to his tongue. Like the skilful workman, who, not content with the stones lying near to his hand, turns them over and selects one which will best fit the place in the wall which he wants to fill, he picked out from the entire vocabulary the word which expressed his meaning, and thus made his sentences the best examples of rhetorical art.

"Mr. Webster in speaking always stood square upon his feet. Neither Powers, the sculptor of the statue in the Massachusetts State House yard, nor the sculptor of the statue recently dedicated in Washington, would have represented him with one knee bent if he had ever seen him on his legs. There is a statue or statuette by Thomas Ball, which shows the attitude in which he invariably stood."

Here is a good anecdote from the introductory chapter: "There was an implacable warfare between F. and R. Judge Abbot told me that R. came into his office one morning wringing his hands in great glee, and said, 'Great times in hell this morning, Judge! F. died last night.'"

A NEW SCHOULER ON WILLS.

Very few modern text-books hold their place as firmly in professional favor as this standard book — probably because there are few as lucid, as terse, and yet as thorough. The author and the publishers show confidence in the continuance of this favor by issuing (August, 1900) the Third Edition, revised by the author personally, and brought down to date. The price remains as before, $5.50 net.

Two books a young lawyer is safe in buying when he starts practice are SCHOULER ON WILLS and RAWLE'S REVISION OF BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY.

SCHOULER CHEAP FOR STUDENTS.

As there are many law students who prefer SCHOULER ON WILLS to other books on the topic, but do not have the practitioner's need for the very latest cases, we have concluded to offer the remainder of the Second Edition (not so very ancient, as it was published in 1892) at $2.50 per copy.

Whimsicalities of Irish Witnesses . . John De Morgan.

The Manuscripts of the "Year Books." Luke Owen Pike.
London Legal Letter.

Editorial Department.

Subscription $4.00 per year. Single number 50 cents.

PARLIAMENTARIA JOCOSA.

The "gayety of nations" will be brightened by a book now in press, entitled "The Gavel and the Mace, or Parliamentary Law in Easy Chapters" (cloth, $1.25). The author is no less a person than Hon. Frank W. Hackett, Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

"A correct and reasonably complete guide to the approved practice in our various legislative bodies," the preface states, is herein "made readable, interesting, and entertaining" by the introduction of humor. It is not the broad fun of "Puck" and "Judge," but a quiet pervading humorous treatment,—a sort of genial literary smile. Here, for instance, are a few specimens taken at random:

"The earth moves, and man seconds the motion."

"Man has a mania for huddling together his fellow-men, and presiding over them."

"A deep-seated craving in man is to get the floor, or to get himself appointed on a committee."

"Meetings may be divided into two great classes—those where a collection is taken up, and those where it is dispensed with."

"After a meeting has been called together it is unparliamentary for one to keep on making a noise, unless he furnish the noise in the shape of a speech."

If all readers who relish humor, and all citizens who go to the Legislature, or take part in public meetings, should buy this book, the sale will be enormous.

INCLUDE THESE IN YOUR LISTS.

In making purchases of text-books, we commend:

RAWLE'S REVISION OF BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY. 2 vols. Net	$12.00
SCHOULER ON WILLS. 3d ed. Net	5.50
TAYLOR ON EVIDENCE: CHAMBERLAYNE'S NOTES. 3 vols. Net	12.00
DICKEY ON THE CONFLICT OF LAWS. Net	6.50
SHELDON ON SUBROGATION. 2d ed.	5.00
FOSTER'S FEDERAL PRACTICE. 2d ed. 2 vols.	12.00

WHICH IS YOUR CHOICE?

When you make the next addition to your library, you can cover the important field of English reports,

- I. By subscribing to the new REPRINT; thus:
For full set of 150 volumes, per volume, $6.00
For House of Lords' Cases only, 11 vols., per volume 7.50
- II. By buying MEWS' DIGEST OF ENGLISH CASE LAW (now complete), 16 vols., 96.00
- III. By taking ENGLISH RULING CASES WITH AMERICAN NOTES, 21 vols. (out of 25)
now ready, per volume 5.50

Or you can take all three, MEWS' DIGEST to cover briefly everything at once, the full REPRINT to give you eventually the entire round of English law, and the RULING CASES to illustrate the principles of law by the best cases grouped under topics.

RAWLE'S BOUVIER IN TRADE.

So many copies have been sold of RAWLE'S REVISION OF BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY (two large volumes, $12.00 net), that perhaps most of the readers of this paragraph have it already on their shelves. If not, are you hesitating about buying it, because you have a former edition? In a work of such encyclopædic character it is more important than it is with treatises confined to a single topic to have the very latest and best edition. If you want RAWLE'S BOUVIER, and do not quite want to waste your old edition, write to us, and we will try to allow you something for it in trade.

Legal Bibliography.

No. 7, NEW SERIES.

BOSTON, MASS.

JANUARY, 1901.

EDITORIAL.

Quid pro Quo.—We send you LEGAL BIBLIOGRAPHY without charge, but its cost is considerable, both in cash and in time; for all this information cannot be collected without constant labor and correspondence. As we must get back our cost somehow, we suggest that every librarian or lawyer who uses this paper send us at least annually an order for books or a subscription to THE GREEN BAG.

Bibliographic Help.—Besides this, we hope readers may send us from time to time scraps of information as to old or new law books,—memoranda as to errors in law books or law catalogues,—or any other items of interest about legal literature, which can be printed in future numbers of LEG. BIB. for the information of other lawyers and law librarians.

This is an Annual Summary.—This January number contains more information than the numbers of April, July, and October, in that the "Index of Subjects" covers all the books of the year 1900. If used in connection with the similar index in our January, 1900, number, the reader will have a key to the textbook publications for two years back to supplement his last law book catalogue.

This number also has tables giving the last volume published of each current set of reports and periodicals, together with the latest digests and statutes in every State and country.

How to use Leg. Bib.—The use of these lists in libraries is obvious. Lawyers also—even those just beginning practice—will find this paper helpful if they read every number, and watch the lists for books especially useful in the cases they have in hand, or in the line of practice they mean to follow. Our lists are intended to cover not merely the books we want to sell, but every law book published.

For Further Information.—Of course the bare title of a book does not often give information enough to warrant buying it at once. But if the title is inviting, we can always send on application a circular describing the book, or can answer specific questions about it.

Fuller Book News and Criticisms.—Or, the investment of four dollars a year will bring you the monthly issues of THE GREEN BAG. This entertaining and stimulating periodical is the "organ," so to speak, of the leading law publishers, who describe fully in its advertising pages every month the new publications they issue. Furthermore, THE GREEN BAG in future will make a prominent feature of reviews of new law books by specialists, which will enable readers to judge whether the claims of publishers are justified by the merits of their books.

NOTES.

Blackstoniana.—The collection of Blackstone's Works, of which we spoke in 6 LEG. BIB., was sold before we could prepare a list of editions for publication. For such a list we must now wait until we can make up another collection equally complete. There are some interesting features to be brought out, for instance, early rival editions by different editors; and the antenatal germ or genesis of the Commentaries in Blackstone's "Analysis of the Law of England."

Ancient Study of the Law.—The elementary treatises used by English law students four hundred years ago are thus quaintly described in the preface to a law book published in 1534:

Wylliam Bastell to the gentylmen studentes of the law. — How commoduous and profitable unto gentilmen studentes of the law, be these thre bookes, that is to wit. Natura breuium, The olde tenures, & the tenures of magster Hytlylton, experience probeth and the bookes them selfe declare. For lyke as a chyldre goynge to scole, fyrste lerneth his letters out of the a, b, c: so they that entende the study of the law, do fyrste study these. iii. bookes, as in whiche be conteyned many the groundes, principles, and maximis of the lawe.

Latin Law Versicles.—John of Salisbury, a contemporary of A. Becket, has the following verses on the origin of the term "Chancellor":

"Querendus Regni tibi Cancellarius Angli
Primus sollicita mente petendus erit.
Hic est qui Regni leges cancellat iniquas
Et mandata pii principis æqua facit.
Siquid obest populo. vel moribus inimicum,
Quicquid id est. per eum desinit esse nocens."
1 Colquhoun's Roman Civil Law, 273, note.

Can any recent A.B. among our readers put this into English verse?

And here is a metrical peroration to the "Prologus Johis rastell," of the first edition (1514?) of "Liber Assisarum":

"Si iuuat anglorum reuerendas discere leges
Et cupis ex paruo discere multa libro
Chalcographi Rastel studiosos nosce labores
Et libru assidue. plege, doctus eris."

Error in Fact.—English lawyers are not always infallible. The Attorney General, arguing in the Queen v. Millis (10 Cl. & Fin. 546), says: "In Lyndewoode's Provinciales, which was written in 1446, though not published till 1679 . . . etc." As a matter of fact Lyndewoode was printed in 1483; and a dozen times thereafter in England before 1679.

NOTES.

Competition among Booksellers.—John Worrall, Bell Yard, in the preface to his 1746 catalogue says :

I have always been careful of offending my Brethren and therefore fixed the full Price of most Books especially the old Ones, they being often very scarce, not intending to impose on any One, but, to shew their utmost Price; this I am sensible has hurt my self most, it being insinuated by some of the Trade, that they under-sell the Booksellers at Temple Bar, and when it is in their Favour, produce my CATALOGUE as their Voucher. Whereas the Booksellers near Temple Bar, being Proprietors of the Copies of a great Part of the Law Books and having more frequent opportunities than Others of buying Libraries in that Science, can afford and do sell them New or Old of any Editions whatsoever as cheap if not cheaper than others.

Old-fashioned Diction.—The formal and grandiloquent style of letter writing and dedication in the eighteenth century is shown in this letter, found in a first edition of Branch's Maxims (1753), recently received by the Harvard Law School Library :

HON'BLE SIR. I should not presume to dignify anything of my own, by presenting it to so learned and Honorable an inspection, but the materials of this Collection being in themselves noble, and the offspring of your Illustrious Predecessors in Judicature, my arrangement of them in greater number than I had ever seen them, made me hope I should not displease by this mean, but very grateful, earnest, of being with the utmost respect,

Hon'ble Sir

Your ever obliged & most dutiful Servant,

THO. BRANCH.

The Hon'ble Sir Michael Foster.

NEW EDITOR FOR THE GREEN BAG.

With the January, 1901, number of THE GREEN BAG, HORACE W. FULLER, who has edited it with such ability for twelve years, retires from the editorial chair, and is succeeded by Thomas Tileston Baldwin, who speaks of the change, editorially, as follows :

"THE GREEN BAG regrets much the retirement of Mr. Fuller from the editorial chair, after twelve years of faithful service. His well-trained legal mind, his excellent literary taste and judgment, his sense of humor, and his large and pleasant acquaintance among the men of his profession, have all been important factors in the success which has attended his work. Mr. Fuller had both the good fortune and the responsibility of taking editorial charge at the start, and of carrying out on original lines the attractive, but untried, plan of publishing a magazine devoted to the lighter side of the law. He has worked out this interesting experiment, shaping the course of the magazine with rare good judgment; and it is a pleasure to make hearty acknowledgment in the editorial columns of the important part which Mr. Fuller's work has taken in bringing about the success of THE GREEN BAG. How successful he has been in his task of giving to the profession an entertaining and readable magazine, a glance through the files will show.

"The policy of THE GREEN BAG, under its new editor, will continue to be the same, essentially, as it has been in the past. The deeper and more serious problems of the law are dealt with in admirable ways by many contemporary legal magazines and journals. Their province it is to aid the lawyer directly in his work; while our aim is to provide a magazine which shall be of interest to the intelligent lawyer in his leisure moments. We bespeak the help of the members of the profession in accomplishing this purpose; for while it is true that most of the time and the energy of the lawyer in active practice must be given, of necessity and rightly, to his professional work, it is equally true that many members of the bar (even some of its busiest members) have the inclination, and, in some way, do find the time, for labor in the wide field of what may be called light legal literature. That is the field which this magazine aims to cover; and we beg our brethren at the bar to bear THE GREEN BAG in mind when they have ripe for publication any article, of a not too heavy or technical nature, which would prove of interest to other lawyers. Then, too, there are always current a goodly number of bon mots, witty stories, and interesting anecdotes, which for the credit and the gayety of the profession should be preserved; to say nothing of the genuine historic value which attaches, oftentimes, to anecdotes of the leaders of the bench and bar. No one person, not even THE GREEN BAG, can hear, remember, or invent more than a very small number of such sayings, stories, or anecdotes—though the seemingly inexhaustible supply of them kept on tap by some of our witty after-dinner speakers seems to disprove this statement; but if each of our readers, when one of these good things comes his way, will capture it, put it on paper, and send it to THE GREEN BAG, its editor and its readers will rise up and call him blessed."

To this request the publishers add theirs—namely, that all lawyers who like to have such an exponent of the culture, literary taste, and humor of their profession, support it by their subscriptions. The list of subscribers is never too full to take in one more.

U. S. HISTORY, 1783-1865.

The best national history for home and reference use is JAMES SCHOULER'S HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES FROM THE ADOPTION OF THE CONSTITUTION TO THE CLOSE OF THE CIVIL WAR, REVISED EDITION. (6 vols., cloth, $13.50.) Lawyers who have used SCHOULER ON WILLS and SCHOULER ON EXECUTORS know what a readable style he has, and also his reputation for accuracy and thoroughness. These qualities commend the work to legal approval.

Text Books and Cases for Law Students.

Introduction or Review.

Ewell's Essentials of the Law (Vol. 1, Pocket Blackstone. Sheep, $3.00; cloth, $2.50. — Vol. 2, Pleading, Contracts, Equity. Sheep, $2.50; cloth, $2.00. — Vol. 3, Evidence, Torts, Real Property. Sheep, $2.50; cloth, $2.00. — Or the three volumes together, sheep, $7.50; cloth, $6.00) is a capital condensed statement of the law, so printed in different kinds of type as to help the student in "cramming for exams."

All Round Book of Reference.

Rawle's Revision of Bouvier's Law Dictionary (two large volumes, sheep, $12.00) contains not only definitions, but also concise monographs on every point of law, — easy to find, to read, to understand, and to remember. It aids a student in study, and makes a compact and practical foundation for a law library when he begins to practise.

Explanation of Citations.

Law books are full of abbreviated citations, which puzzle not only the beginner, but even the experienced lawyer. Abbreviations used in Law Books (sheep, $1.50) will furnish a key to all such puzzles.

Wills and Executors.

Schouler on Wills (sheep, $5.50) and Schouler on Executors (sheep, $5.50) have both just passed to a third revised edition. "Schouler on Wills" is well known as the clearest and best book on the topic, concise enough for the student, yet full enough for the lawyer.

A few remaining copies of the second edition of "Schouler on Wills" (1892) can be sold to students for $2.50.

Common Law Pleading and Procedure.

The new elementary treatise on Civil Procedure at Common Law, by Judge Alexander Morton, Dean of the Missouri Law School, is a capital presentation of the basic principles of all kinds of pleading (sheep, $3.50).

Domestic Relations, Criminal Law, Sales.

Irving Browne's three treatises on these topics (each sold for $2.50 in sheep, or $2.00 in cloth) are clear and plain statements of principles, intended for the use of students alone.

Equity Pleading.

Heard's Equity Pleading with Forms (sheep, $2.50; cloth, $2.00) is another clear and concise elementary treatise for students.

Real Property.

Williams on Real Property is a standard book on this subject, and the late edition annotated by Prof. H. B. Hutchins, Dean of Michigan Univ. Law School, is by far the best one for use in the United States (sheep, $4.00).

Principles of Evidence.

Chamberlayne's International Edition of Best on Evidence (sheep, $5.00) has an established reputation for clear statement and accurate notes.

Principles of Contract.

Heard's Edition of Metcalf Contracts (sheep, $3.50) is a reissue of the well-known treatise by Judge Metcalf of the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

International Law.

Snow's Cases on International Law (cloth, $3.50), prepared for use in Harvard University, are now used in many of the American colleges and law schools.

Theses and Moot Court Cases.

In briefing a Moot Court Case, in studying a topic, or in preparing a thesis, do not fail to look at the cases and notes grouped under the topic involved, in English Ruling Cases with American Notes, a series of 25 volumes, which you can probably find in your library or in your town.

Entertainment and Stimulus.

And do not fail to get hold of and read every month a copy of The Green Bag (subscription, $4.00 per annum), which will give you glimpses at the dignity and eloquence of the legal profession.

A GREAT SET OF LEADING CASES.

The best set for a lawyer to add to his library is ENGLISH RULING CASES WITH AMERICAN NOTES — a series which groups the best cases under topics alphabetically arranged, thus presenting good law in a striking and unusual form. To show the value of the set, we quote recent letters from two leading lawyers:

"The E. R. C. are of great practical use in our library. A valuable part is the really admirable statement of the Rules established by the cases." — CHAS. QUARLES, Milwaukee, Wis.

"The E. R. C. are in my judgment indispensable. I subscribed for the set on its first announcement, and each volume has added to my appreciation, until I now give it first rank." — CHARLES H. ALDRICH, Chicago, Ex-Solicitor Gen., U. S.

DETAILED FACTS ABOUT THE NEW

Full, Verbatim, Annotated Reprint of English Reports.

1. Full and Verbatim, without Omissions. All the regular Reports of Courts of Record from 1307 to 1865. Some 1,000 original volumes in 150 large octavo books, in full sheep binding.
No other full reprint has ever been issued.
2. Original pagination clearly preserved. Any citations are as easily verified as in original volumes, with further advantage of modern type instead of old English type and Norman French.
3. Annotations briefly show if any decision has been overruled, distinguished, etc., and also refer to other similar cases.
4. The Lord Chancellor, Master of the Rolls, and Attorney General act as a Consultative Committee of Editors. This assures thoroughness and official standing never given any other reprint.
5. Table of Cases in each volume and a general table in the last volume of each series (or Court).
6. Uniform Size saves Shelf Room. The Reprint is easier for use than the irregular-sized originals. It is more easily shelved in consecutive order, occupying only about the space of a set of U. S. S. C. Reports.
7. No Mixing up of Reports. Reprint is published in consecutive order by Courts. Each volume is distinctly labelled, and each series (or Court) clearly distinguished. All this greatly simplifies the verification of a citation to the exact Court, Volume, and Page.
8. One-tenth Original Cost in easy monthly payments. The originals are very scarce, but the Reprint is temporarily offered for advance subscription at these prices:

Entire Set {	$6.00 per book.	Separate Series {	$7.50 per book.
--------------	---------------------	-------------------	---------------------

Reduction to libraries furnishing certificate.
9. Limited Edition. No plates are made, and limited number of sets printed. Prices will soon be advanced. Book 1 ready this month, and later books one each month.
10. English decisions are more cited than any others, except U. S. S. C. decisions, by our American Courts. This is shown by actual count, and figures will be furnished on request.
11. Exchange allowance for old editions can perhaps be made on receipt of lists. Such allowance must necessarily be small.

QUID PRO QUO.—If you get information from this paper as to books needed in your library, is it not fair to order them from us? We send it free, and can cover cost only through the orders it brings us.

RECREATION AND DIVERSION.

There are two occasions when a lawyer wants some sort of light, refreshing, interesting reading:

One, when he has nothing to do,—when no clients come,—when he is in a lazy mood.

The other, when he is tired and overworked,—when he has too much to do, when records, briefs, law-books, clients, all weigh heavy on his jaded and irritable nerves.

In either case The Green Bag is a friend in need. Its monthly numbers offer a variety of light literature on topics with which he is in touch, but which are not serious enough to suggest the hard work of the law. He reads; the wrinkles vanish from his brow; the smiles gather around his eyes and lips; his fatigue vanishes; his worries evaporate,—and in an hour he comes back to work, a new man!

This is what The Green Bag can do for its readers.

Do you take it? If not, why not send us four dollars, and try it for a year?

A FINE PORTRAIT FREE.

To the subscribers to THE GREEN BAG for the year 1901 we send (as a receipt for their four dollars' subscription) a fine etching of Chief Justice Jay, $7\frac{1}{2} \times 9$ inches, mounted on cardboard 17×22 inches,—an effective picture for framing.

This etching, made for us in March, 1901, we send without charge to all paid-up subscribers (new or old). To those who are not subscribers to The Green Bag we will sell it for $3.00.

THE GREEN BAG is a monthly magazine, established in 1889.

Its contents include everything of special interest to lawyers, except decisions and elementary essays.

It includes legal history, biography, eloquence, anecdote, poetry, romance, wit, and humor.

Each number is embellished by a full-page frontispiece, and by illustrations (generally portraits) in the text.

Its subscription price is $4.00, payable in advance.

A bound set of The Green Bag (12 volumes) is a great addition to a lawyer's library,—being a store-house of good leisure-hour reading and portraiture.

Until recently, however, the bound volumes cost $5.00 apiece, and a full set at $60.00 was somewhat beyond the average lawyer's means.

Just at present, by reprinting several numbers, we are able to offer full sets, 12 vols., quarto, solidly bound in green half-cloth, for $30.00.

Why not consider buying this set?

EDITORIAL.

New Retail Salesroom.—For the convenience of lawyers we have opened a branch salesroom in the basement of Barristers' Hall, directly opposite the front entrance to the Court House on Pemberton Square.

The Newest Generation.—This is "swarming time" with the law schools. During the next month about five thousand students will be graduated and will start at the foot of the ladder of fame. If each one does his duty and equips himself with RAWLE'S REVISION OF BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY, he will be ready for any kind of case or client.

A New Catalogue.—To be ready for the rush, we are getting out a new CATALOGUE OF LAW BOOKS, giving a price list of all text-books now in the market, with a new feature in the shape of a chronological index, which will show at a glance how late and up-to-date each book is.

Unexpected Success.—We are rather surprised at the prompt and wide response to our announcement of a FULL REPRINT OF ALL THE ENGLISH REPORTS. We thought some of the smaller libraries might take it, and a few lawyers; but the large libraries are also subscribing because they can duplicate their present collection in small space at less than the cost of rebinding their original copies, and a large number of lawyers are entering their names for the whole set or for separate courts.

Danger of Supply Running Out.—We have already had to increase our order for the United States market fifty per cent., and as the REPRINT is not electrotyped, and only a limited edition has been printed, we expect to see shortly our supply cut off. The English price has already been raised, — but we will not raise ours yet, though reserving the right to charge new subscribers a higher rate at any time without notice.

Marshall for the Last Time.—The echoes of "Marshall Day" have not yet died away, for THE GREEN BAG will give in its April and May numbers an interesting résumé in the form of a connected biography of the principal memorial orations, delivered on that anniversary throughout the country. The frontispiece of the April number is a reduction of Klackner's beautiful reprint of St. Memin's life-size portrait of Chief Justice Marshall, with a tinted background, which gives a striking effect to the picture.

Good Books Cheap.—To be quite in the fashion of the day, we have issued a cheap edition of the recent (third) editions of JAMES SCHOULER's standard treatises on WILLS and on EXECUTORS, binding the two volumes in buckram, and selling them together for eight dollars, thus bringing them right down within the means of the young lawyer starting in practice.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

For Year-Book Scholars.—From Providence we get this question. Can any of our readers locate the citation?

"In the introduction to Merewether and Stevens on Corporations (p. xxxviii) it is stated that the first case in which the courts of law (p. 1013) laid down the modern doctrine as to municipal corporations, occurred in the sixth year of Edward IV., 1466, when it was held in the Common Pleas that 'if the King gave land in fee-form to the good men of the town of Dale the corporation was good. And so likewise where it was given to the burgesses, citizens, and commonalty,' etc. Upon turning to the page referred to, 1013, headed 'Ninth Year-Book Ed. IV.,' the marginal reference is '1467, Fol. 76, H. T.' a case of trespass turning on above point. I find that Hil. Term, anno VI., E. IIII. has but 12 folios. Can you throw any light on the subject, or tell me where I can find this case of the men of Dale?"

The First Edition of Coke's Reports.—Has any one of our readers a sure-enough first edition of all of Coke's Reports? If so, pray send us a note of the dates of first publication of Parts I. to IV.

The "Lawyers' Reference Manual" says: "Parts I. to XI. were first published in French at different times between 1602-1615 (Lincoln's Inn Catalogue), or 1607-1615 (Harvard Law Library). Parts XII. and XIII. were not published until 1656-1659.

But Ames and Herbert (Typographical Antiquities, p. 1304) say that Thomas Wight printed the first part Jan. 1, 1600.

We have imprints as follows:

Part I. 1609.	Part VII. 1608.
" II. 1610.	" VIII. 1611.
" III. 1610.	" IX. 1613, 1615.
" IV. 1610, 1618.	" X. 1614, 1618.
" V. 1605, 1607, 1612.	" XI. 1616, 1619.
" VI. 1607.

Part V. appears to be in two divisions, with separate title-pages. Apparently the following are first editions:

Part V. 1605.	Part IX. 1613.
" VI. 1607.	" X. 1614.
" VII. 1608.	" XI. 1616 (?).
" VIII. 1611.

Evidently our Parts I. to IV. are reprints. If Ames and Herbert are right, we might conjecture annual Parts I. to IV., from 1600 to 1604 (with one year skipped), as the first issues.

From the dates noted above it would appear probable that as each volume appeared in its turn, the publishers reissued the previous volumes with a new date corresponding with that of the last volume then issued.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

More Light on Norman-French Law. — Mr. Harwood, in his preface to the octavo Year-Book of 32-33 Edward I., refers to a work not generally known in America, as being important from the light it throws on some of the sources of English law. It is entitled:

"Les Olim, ou Registres des Arrets . . . St. Louis, Philippe le Hardi, Philippe le Bel, Louis le Hutin, et Philippe le Long," 4 vols., quarto, Paris, 1839-1848.

Is there a copy of this work in any of our law libraries? We have a copy on our shelves, but have not seen another in America.

Changes in Periodicals. — THE NORTH CAROLINA LAW JOURNAL (new), Nos. 1 to 7, had a page in which the printed matter measured about $4\frac{1}{4} \times 7\frac{1}{4}$ inches. With No. 8, October, 1900, the page was diminished to $3\frac{3}{8} \times 6\frac{3}{8}$ inches. The volume when bound will, therefore, be irregular in size.

Nov. 15, 1900, there was issued in Dublin No. 1, Vol. I, of THE NEW IRISH JURIST AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT REVIEW, to be issued weekly with two systems of paging, one for editorial matter and one for reports, in each number.

In January, 1901, THE CAPE LAW JOURNAL, which had been published under that title for seventeen years at Grahamstown, Cape of Good Hope, assumed the name of THE SOUTH AFRICAN LAW JOURNAL.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Practical Appreciation. — A firm of lawyers writes us from Pleasanton, Alameda Co., Cal.: "We receive your valuable LEGAL BIBLIOGRAPHY, and as an appreciation we send you herewith $4 for subscription to THE GREEN BAG, to commence with the next number."

This is the kind of letter which encourages us in compiling, printing, and mailing the quarterly numbers of LEGAL BIBLIOGRAPHY.

From an Old Subscriber. — Here is appreciation, founded on experience, from a leading lawyer of St. Louis, Mo.: "THE GREEN BAG continues to be interesting, and affords me both pleasure and instruction. I hope your subscription list is increasing, and that lawyers throughout the country are becoming better acquainted with this entertaining and interesting periodical."

Value of the English Reprint. — From San Antonio, Texas, comes this letter: "I am very anxious to secure your VERBATIM REPRINT OF ENGLISH REPORTS. Your publication will do more to revive true legal learning than anything that has been given to the profession in a century. The present trouble in the United States to-day is that we have too many worthless reports, written by judges who have no opportunity to correct the original sources of legal knowledge and learning. But a small percentage of the present generation of lawyers have ever had an opportunity to look into an English report. I bid you God-speed and wish you abundant success."

PUFFS.

Key to Blind Citations. — If you ever run across citations that puzzle you, the little volume entitled ABBREVIATIONS USED IN LAW BOOKS ($1.50) will set you right and solve your doubt without further search. It is the reader's and briefer's handy guide.

Massachusetts Courts. — Wm. T. Davis's History of the Judiciary of Massachusetts (cloth, $2.50) is the kind of book not often published; usually neglected while in print and obtainable, and then eagerly sought for at extravagant prices when the edition is exhausted and the book out of print and scarce.

Common Law Pleading and Procedure. — The best introductory book on this topic is the recent work by Judge Martin of the Missouri State University Law School (sheep, $3.50). Being written mainly for the use of students who are to practise in code States, it had to be simple, clear, and concise. It is all this, and fills admirably the requirement of giving our young lawyers a good knowledge of the essence of the old system, to qualify them thoroughly for understanding our reformed procedure.

Our Bargains. — If you are buying books, study our lists the first thing, and write us promptly for what you want. One great trouble with our "Bargain Lists" is that the lawyers who get the first copies of each number of LEGAL BIBLIOGRAPHY are apt to corral the best bargains, which we cannot usually duplicate.

Good Stayers. — Most law books are like most novels, ephemeral. They sell (if at all) for a while, and then the sale stops. A few are perennial. They sell at the outset and their sale continues, even when one would think the market must be filled and saturated. Such a book is BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY. The demand for RAWLE'S REVISION is just as great as ever, — a regular steady sale all over the country. Part of this sale comes undoubtedly from young lawyers just admitted, — but there are also an amazing number of older lawyers who do not wake up to the merit of a new book or a new edition until every one else has bought it.

Want to Swap Books? — We do a good deal of trading new books for old. For instance, we take old editions of BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY in part trade for the new edition. We will make a proposition to trade for almost any old books offered to us. We have got an overstock of a few books (such as Pulling's "Order of the Coif," an interesting historical work, treating of early English legal customs) which we will trade for almost anything we can sell. Have you the trading instinct? If so, suggest your swap.

Quick Work. — THE ENGLISH REPORTS REPRINT was announced last summer, but not actually started until January. The volumes were to appear monthly, — and so far they are prompt per programme. Vol. 4 will be out this month. Thirty days for setting up, correcting, printing, and binding a volume of fifteen hundred double-column pages of fine clear type is a good record of work — fifty pages a day, right along.

[The following extract is taken from a singular book entitled "The Biographical History of Sir William Blackstone," published at London in 1782.]

THE LAWYER'S FAREWELL TO HIS MUSE.

(Written in the year 1744, by Sir William Blackstone, Knight.)

This celebrated poem, being replete with good sense and elegance of language, as well as harmony of versification, and printed, we believe, only in a miscellaneous collection, consisting of several volumes — for these reasons, we shall gratify our poetical readers, at least, we hope, by the insertion of a genuine and correct copy of it.

AS, by some tyrant's stern command,
A wretch forsakes his native land,
In foreign climes condemn'd to roam
An endless exile from his home;
Pensive he treads the destin'd way,
And dreads to go, nor dares to stay;
'Till on some neighb'ring mountain's brow
He stops, and turns his eyes below;
There, melting at the well-known view,
Drops a last tear, and bids adieu:
So I, thus doom'd from thee to part,
Gay Queen of Fancy and of Art,
Reluctant move, with doubtful mind,
Oft stop, and often look behind.

Companion of my tender age,
Serenely gay, and sweetly sage,
How blithesome were we wont to rove
By verdant hill, or shady grove,
Where fervent bees, with humming voice,
Around the honey'd oak rejoice,
And aged elms, with awful bend,
In long cathedral walks extend!
Lull'd by the lapse of gliding floods,
Cheer'd by the warbling of the woods,
How blest my days, my thoughts how free,
In sweet society with thee!
Then all was joyous, all was young,
And years unheeded roll'd along;
But now the pleasing dream is o'er,
These scenes must charm me now no more,
Lost to the field, and torn from you —
Farewell! a long, a last adieu!

Me wrangling Courts, and stubborn Law,
To smoke, and crowds, and cities draw;
There selfish Faction rules the day,
And Pride and Av'rice throng the way;
Diseases taint the murky air,
And midnight conflagrations glare;
Loose Revelry and Riot bold
In frighted streets their orgies hold;
Or, when in silence all is drown'd,
Fell Murder walks her lonely round:
No room for Peace, no room for you —
Adieu, celestial Nymph, adieu!

Shakespeare, no more thy silvan son,
Nor all the art of Addison;
Pope's heav'n-strung lyre, nor Waller's ease,
Nor Milton's mighty self must please.
Instead of these, a formal band
In furs and coifs around me stand
With sounds uncouth, and accents dry,
That grate the soul of Harmony.
Each Pedant Sage unlocks his store
Of mystic, dark, discordant lore,
And points with tott'ring hand the ways,
That lead me to the thorny maze.

There, in a winding, close retreat,
Is JUSTICE doom'd to fix her seat;
There, fenc'd by bulwarks of the LAW,
She keeps the wond'ring world in awe;
And there from vulgar fight retir'd,
Like Eastern Queens, is more admir'd.

O let me pierce the secret shade
Where dwells the venerable Maid!
There humbly make, with rev'rent awe,
The Guardian of BRITANNIA'S Law,
Unfold with joy her sacred page
(Th' united boast of many an age,
Where mix'd, yet uniform, appears
The wisdom of a thousand years),
In that pure spring the bottom view,
Clear, deep, and regularly true,
And other doctrines thence imbibe
That lurk within the sordid scribe;
Observe how parts with parts unite
In one harmonious rule of right;
See countless wheels distinctly tend,
By various laws, to one great end;
While mighty ALFRED'S piercing soul
Pervades and regulates the whole.

Then welcome business, welcome strife,
Welcome the cares, the thorns of life;
The visage wan, the pore-blind fight,
The toil by day, the lamp at night,
The tedious forms, the solemn prate,
The pert dispute, the dull debate,
The DROWSY BENCH, the babbling Hall,
For thee, fair JUSTICE, welcome all!

Thus, though my noon of life be past,
Yet let my setting sun at last
Find out the still, the rural cell
Where sage Retirement loves to dwell!
There let me taste the home-felt bliss
Of Innocence and inward Peace;
Untainted by the guilty bribe;
Uncurs'd amid the harpy-tribe;
No orphan's cry to wound my ear;
My honor and my conscience clear;
Thus may I calmly meet my end,
Thus to the grave in peace descend.

A FINE PORTRAIT FOR FRAMING.

We have issued some effective pictures in former years, as premiums for subscriptions to THE GREEN BAG; but the most effective of all, we venture to say, is the etching of Chief Justice Jay, just published.

This striking portrait, 7½ X 9 inches, mounted on card-board 17 X 22 inches, we will sell for $3.

Or, we will present it free of charge to every old subscriber — or to any new subscriber who sends us four dollars for this year's subscription.

ENGLISH REPORTS ALTERNATIVES.

The excellent law decided in the principal Courts of England—so often cited in our own Courts—is now available to American lawyers in either of the following forms:

Full Reprint.—A limited subscription verbatim reprint of all the English reports has just been begun—to include 1,000 original volumes, A.D. 1307 to 1865 (without condensation, and with notes), in 150 books,—to issue one book per month. Price $6.00 per book, to subscribers for the whole set, or $7.50 per book for any separate court. The first series will reprint the House of Lords Reports (1694—1865), 58 volumes in 11 books.

Complete Digest.—For those lawyers who cannot wait for the reprint, but want now on their shelves a key to all the English Reports, we can offer Mews' New Digest of English Case Law (16 vols., $96.00), which for the first time digests all the Law and Equity reports in one series. It is the kind of digest that gives very full statement of cases and abstracts of decisions—thus taking the place (so far as a digest can) of the original reports.

Leading Cases.—Or—for lawyers who like to found their researches and arguments on bed-rock principles—we offer English Ruling Cases with American Notes (25 vols., $5.50 per vol.)—the only series in which the very best cases, reprinted in full, are grouped under topics of the law in Encyclopædic form, and so fully annotated with English and American notes as to show how to trace out any line of argument. The editor gives not only the older or “leading” cases under each topic, but also the later “ruling” cases which now best state existing law.

Common Law Encyclopædia.—Another excellent book for a library,—for a law school,—or for a lawyer in good practice, is the New Abridgment and Encyclopædia of English Law (12 vols., $72.00), in which each topic of the law is treated in a concise monograph by some well-known specialist on the subject, whose name is given, thus lending the weight of authority to every article. This set has no American notes, but is very useful here as a reminder of Common Law principles.

PLAN OF ENGLISH RULING CASES.

This set, which is thought by many good judges to be THE BEST SERIES OF REPORTS FOR A LAWYER TO OWN AND USE, is founded on the idea that LEADING CASES, GROUPED UNDER TOPICS, form the most solid foundation for an argument or a brief.

This idea is not new; in SMITH'S LEADING CASES, WHITE AND TUDOR'S CASES IN EQUITY, and other similar collections, it has been familiar to generations of lawyers.

In ENGLISH RULING CASES, however, it has been perfected and expanded. The improvement has come, first, in giving more cases, thus increasing the size of the series as far as ECONOMY OF SPACE AND COST will allow, and second, in giving not only the oldest (or LEADING) case on each topic, but also the RULING case — the latest decision in which a principle of law has been defined or restated, modified or developed, thus constituting a new precedent.

The topics of the series are arranged ALPHABETICALLY, AS IN AN ENCYCLOPEDIA OF LAW. Under each topic comes a "Rule" of law, derived by the editor from the doctrine of the subjoined cases. Thus, in Vol. 23, under the head of "SALE OF GOODS; Contract. — Statute of Frauds," is given the RULE. — Where a contract is intended to result in the transfer, for a price, of the property in goods from one of the parties to the other, it is a contract for the sale of goods.

After the Rule comes the leading case, or several cases, "leading," modifying, or "ruling," PRINTED IN FULL, and thus ready to be taken into court and read as authority.

After the group of cases illustrating the topic and the Rule comes AN ENGLISH NOTE, usually abstracting at some length a number of cases of secondary importance.

Then, to finish the topic, there is given AN AMERICAN NOTE, of greater or less length, as our decisions happen to accord with or differ from those of the English courts. These notes do not undertake to give original or thorough discussions of the topic. Their purpose is mainly to point out to the reader a number of American cases, in different jurisdictions, in which the topic is treated, and through which it can be traced in line of our own decisions.

A better understanding of the plan of the series may, perhaps, be imparted, by giving this extract from the Table of Contents of Vol. 23, covering the "SALE OF GOODS":

SECTION I. — CONTRACT. STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

1861. No. 1. Lee v. Griffin. (Contract. — Sale of goods. — Work and labor. — Statute of Frauds.)

ENGLISH RULING CASES WITH AMERICAN NOTES is a series of 25 volumes, of which 23 are now published. Vols. 24 and 25, with an Index Volume completing the set, will be issued during the year 1901.

Price per Volume, $5.50.

Concise Manuals for Law Students.

For Introductory Reading or Review.

EWELL'S ESSENTIALS OF THE LAW. 3 volumes.

SEPARATELY: Vol. I. sheep, $3.00; cloth, $2.50. Vol. II. or Vol. III. sheep, $2.50; cloth, $2.00. THE SET, 3 vols., 12mo, sheep, $7.50; cloth, $6.00. (All these prices net.)

Vol. I. The Pocket Blackstone contains all that is essential in BLACKSTONE'S COMMENTARIES. That portion which is obsolete is entirely omitted. Another portion, which is merely historical or illustrative, is printed in small type, while all which can be relied on now is printed in full.

Vols. II. and III. follow out the same idea somewhat more succinctly, and give with graphic distinctions of type the PRINCIPLES embodied in standard authorities.

Vol. II. Pleading, Contracts, Equity. This volume contains the substance of STEPHEN ON PLEADINGS, SMITH ON CONTRACTS, and ADAMS ON EQUITY.

Vol. III. Evidence, Torts, Real Property. This final volume embodies the gist of BEST ON EVIDENCE, POLLOCK ON TORTS, and WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY.

The editor has compressed into three handy volumes the substance of seven large text-books; and by liberal use of full-face type, he has emphasized the catch-words and leading principles, so as to help in review.

To the student struggling with rudiments in some remote country office, and to the law-school student "cramming" for reviews or examinations, it has been alike an efficient aid.

MARTIN ON CIVIL PROCEDURE AT COMMON LAW.

An Elementary Work on Actions, Defences, Pleading, Trial. The Underlying Principles of Pleading and Procedure, in Code States and Common Law States alike.

CIVIL PROCEDURE AT COMMON LAW. By ALEXANDER MARTIN. Price $3.50 net.

The author has had experience to qualify him especially for writing this book. Educated at Harvard Law School, he commenced practice in 1858 at St. Louis. Although Missouri had adopted a Code, the United States Courts at that time still followed the Common Law Procedure, so that he had occasion to use both systems in actual practice. He remained at the bar in St. Louis from 1858 until 1889, except 1883-1885, when he was a judge of the Supreme Court Commission. In 1889 he took charge of the Department of Law of Missouri State University, where he has since taught procedure in a Code State to students from Code States.

METCALF ON CONTRACTS: New Revised Edition.

Principles of the Law of Contracts as applied by Courts of Law. By THERON METCALF. Second edition, by FRANKLIN FISKE HEARD. Law sheep, $3.50 net.

HUTCHINS'S WILLIAMS ON REAL PROPERTY.

New English Edition with American Notes By Prof. H. B. HUTCHINS, of the Michigan University School of Law. Sheep, $4.00 net.

This is the standard student's book on Real Property. The American editor is an experienced law lecturer. The American Notes are pointed and practical.

CHAMBERLAYNE'S BEST ON EVIDENCE. International Edition.

Principles of the Law of Evidence. By W. M. BEST. With Notes to American Cases by C. F. CHAMBERLAYNE. $5.00 net.

This single volume comprises a full exposition of the principles of the Law of Evidence, illustrated by the best American and English cases.

See also other pages for Notices of Rawles' Revision of Bouvier's Law Dictionary and Schouler on Wills.

IRVING BROWNE'S MANUALS.

Browne on Sales: Elements of the Law of Sales of Personal Property. Cloth, $2.00 net; sheep, $2.50 net.

Browne on Criminal Law: The Elements of Criminal Law, Principles, Pleading, and Procedure. Leatherette, $2.00 net; law sheep, $2.50 net.

Browne on Domestic Relations: Elements of the Law of Domestic Relations and of Employer and Employed. Second edition. Cloth, $2.00 net; sheep, $2.50 net.

A lifetime spent in practising and in editing reports and law journals made Mr. Browne a sound lawyer; courses of lecturing taught him how to catch the attention and impress the memory of the student; and constant practice with the pen developed an easy and delightful style, which clothes the dry rules of the law with the charm of literature.

SNOW'S CASES ON INTERNATIONAL LAW.

By FREEMAN SNOW. Cloth, $3.50.

Prepared for use at Harvard University.

HEARD'S EQUITY PLEADING.

A Concise Treatise on the Principles of Equity Pleading, With Precedents. By F. F. HEARD. Sheep, $2.50 net; leatherette, $2.00 net.

1307 TO 1865 IN 150 BOOKS.

WHILE THE OPPORTUNITY LASTS.

1. A Full Verbatim reprint beginning with the Year Books. No other full reprint has ever been made.
2. Original Pagination clearly preserved, Reporters' names distinctly labelled and volumes systematically grouped without mixing up. Its modern type is far better than the old English and Norman-French of most originals.
3. Citations are thus more easily and completely verified to the exact volume and page than is possible with mixed-up partial reprints, or with the irregular sized and irregularly shelved originals.
4. Annotations show if decisions have been overruled, criticised, approved, or otherwise considered in later cases — a very essential advantage over the originals or other reprints.
5. Official standing is given by the co-operation of the Lord Chancellor, Master of Rolls, and Attorney General with Board of Editors. No previous official set has ever been published.
6. One-tenth the shelf-room occupied by originals accommodates this Reprint, — about the space of a set of U. S. S. C. Reports.
7. Less than $100 a year in monthly payments as published covers the cost. Volumes will appear at least one each month.
8. Separate Series (or Courts) will be sold if desired, but no odd volumes. Special advance price, in full sheep binding, entire set, 150 books, $6 each; separate series, $7.50 per book. Price will soon be advanced. It has already been advanced in England.
9. A limited edition is already nearly exhausted and no plates are made for further printing.
10. Its Completeness, Annotations, Convenient size, Modern type, and Minimum Cost make this Reprint the most serviceable and popular set of English Reports ever published.

Books 1 to 4 ready April 1st. We reserve right to advance price at any time without further notice. Circulars and sample volumes sent on request, and any inquiries answered. Address

Legal Bibliography.

NO. 9, NEW SERIES.

BOSTON, MASS.

JULY, 1901.

NOTES.

Removal.—In April we announced the opening of a branch office in Pemberton Square. As this will accommodate our city customers and callers, we propose to get better and larger quarters for our ever-increasing stock of books, by moving in September next to Francis Street, three miles out toward Brookline.

It is such a job to move 150,000 volumes of books that we would like to sell as much as possible of our stock before we go to our new quarters. Hence the lists in this number. This is a good time to buy anything we have on our shelves.

Full Reprint of English Reports.—We have been notified that we can only count on getting a few more copies of this REPRINT, and as it is not stereotyped, we call attention of lawyers and librarians to the fact that it may go out of print at any time.

A Complete Collection of Blackstone.—We have finally succeeded in getting together what appears to be a complete collection of all the editions of Blackstone's Commentaries that have ever been issued. We doubt if another set as complete exists in the world. Just as it is, in the original bindings, we value it at $500.

New Books.—We shall have ready about August 1 the seventh edition of ARNOULD ON THE LAW OF MARINE INSURANCE, edited by E. L. de Hart and R. I. Simey, 2 vols. English price in cloth binding, £3.3.0 (equivalent, with duty, to $18.60). We have imported a quantity of this work at a price which enables us to sell the set of two volumes, bound in handsome half calf, for $15.00.

In October we shall issue a new (third) and thoroughly revised edition of WOOD ON THE LIMITATION OF ACTIONS, with notes by JOHN M. GOULD. Size and price will be announced in 10 LEG. BIB.

We have received and reissued the balance of the edition of AMES ON FORGERY, an interesting work published in 1899 by an expert in handwriting. It is bound in cloth, and sells for $2.50.

We also reissue SAMUEL M. ISRAELI's excellent little monograph on THE LIABILITY OF SHAREHOLDERS under statute imposing liability additional to that for stock subscribed. Bound in cloth, 75 cents.

The latest volume issued of ENGLISH RULING CASES WITH AMERICAN NOTES was 23. Volume 24, covering the topics from Search to Telegraph, will be ready in July, and Volume 25, finishing the alphabet, probably in September. There will be one volume of Supplementary Cases and Notes, and one volume containing Index and Table of Cases.

The volumes of the FULL REPRINT OF ENGLISH REPORTS come along with great regularity. Vol. 7 is just out, leaving only four more volumes to finish the House of Lords Cases.

NOTES.

Good Notes.—In Vol. 24 English Ruling Cases will be found many excellent notes on topics not so well treated anywhere else. For instance, on Spes Successionis (5 pages), covering all the American cases; and on Telegraphs (5 pages), especially the discussion of Negligence in Transmission and Delivery, wherein our doctrine differs from that of the English courts.

Answers to Queries.—From the librarian of an English college we get the following:

"I notice one or two queries in your Legal Bibliography No. 8, which I am able to answer to some extent:

"i. 'For Year Book Scholars.' The case of the Men of Dale will be found in the Year Book for Hilary Term vii. Edward IV., fol. 26 (the true date being Hil. Term viii. Edw. IV. See note on fol. 25).

"Fee-form is of course a misprint for fee-farm.

"ii. 'Coke's Reports,' 1st part (see its Preface), was published in 1600; 4th part, 1603; 5th part, 1605.

"iii. 'Norman-French Law.' The three volumes (bound in four) of Comte Beugnot's 'Les Olim ou Registres des arrêts tendus par la Cour sans les règnes de Saint Louis, de Philippe le Hardi, de Philippe le Bel, de Louis le Hutin, et de Philippe le Long,' form part of the 'Collection des Documents Inédits sur l'histoire de France, publiés par ordre du Roi et par les Soins du Ministre de l'instruction Publique.'

"Tome i. (published 1838) covers 1254-1273.

"ii. (" 1842) " 1274-1318.

"iii. I. (" 1844) " 1299-1311.

"iii. II. (" 1848) " 1312-1318."

From a Canadian librarian: "In answer to the query from Providence in 8 Leg. Bib. I beg to point out that the citation in question is to be found in the 9th Y. B. Edw. IV., anno vii. Trin. Term 7. In our edition (1680) this is at p. 14 of year 7.

"The marginal reference in Merewether & Stephens is later, on page 1013, and refers to the case found in Anno vii. H. T. 3 (p. 26). In the marginal reference 76 is evidently a mistake for 26."

Similar information comes from a correspondent in Pittsburg.

A letter from Syracuse points out that the case of the Men of Dale is referred to in 1 Kyd on Corporations, 62, note f, "21 Ed. 4, 56;" and a letter from Toledo, O., cites, "Shepherd on Corporations" (1659) and "The Law of Corporations" (1702) with references to the same case in 4 Edw. 4, 14; 21 Edw. 4, 14, and 21 Edw. 4, 56.

A professor in the University of Wisconsin points out that "Les Olim," though perhaps unknown in our law libraries, can be found in any university library that is strong in the sources of French history.

ANALYSIS OF LAW LITERATURE.

EQUITABLE GEBÄUDE,
BERLIN, GERMANY, June 1, 1901.

CHARLES C. SOULE, ESQ.:

MY DEAR SIR: Recalling our conversation in Boston in regard to Legal Bibliography, I beg to enclose you herewith a "Tentative Analysis" of the whole province of Jurisprudence. The idea was first suggested by the difficulties which I encountered when, after having studied English and American Law, I turned my attention to the study of Roman and German Law here in the University of Berlin. My first attempt to get a clear introductory idea of existing continental systems of law resulted in a hopeless tangle, and to get out it became necessary for me to start at the beginning and trace the modern systems to their source. The central idea, therefore, of this scheme is the grouping of the main divisions of the general subject of Jurisprudence (in its widest sense), as far as possible, in the order of their historical evolution. A glance at the Outline Analysis of Jurisprudence (herewith) will show the manner in which it has been attempted to work out this evolution: The starting point is the abstract idea of Law, then the first concrete examples of the application of legal principles starting with the laws of antiquity, and then coming down to the nations of the present day. A comparison of these different systems gives us the heading "Comparative Jurisprudence" so called. This comparison brings out the points of agreement and disagreement between the laws of different states, thus giving us the next heading of "Conflict of Laws or Private International Law," from which one proceeds naturally to the youngest branch of existing jurisprudence, "International Law," still in process of formation and development.

Having got thus far, the next problem to be solved was the matter of the sub-divisions under each main heading. The usual divisions of English law are not and cannot be of universal application, and yet in such a scheme as this it seemed necessary that the arrangement of the sub-divisions should, as far as possible, be uniform under all the main headings, in order to lend symmetry to the whole scheme. Moreover, these sub-divisions should follow one another in some sort of logical sequence. The best arrangement I have thus far been able to contrive is that which commences with Bibliography, after which come the History and Philosophy of the subject; then the Dogmatic Works (under which may be grouped systematically the whole body of the positive law); next the Sources and Repositories of the Law (including statutes, decisions, etc.); and finally such other sub-divisions as may seem necessary. Among these latter sub-divisions will be found that of Side Lights of History, etc., for the newer scholarship is placing much stress upon the value of the evidence afforded indirectly by other branches of human knowledge.

The purpose of such an analysis is twofold: First, from the point of view of the student of Comparative Jurisprudence, it is very essential that one should have a correct perspective, or, perhaps still better, a "bird's-eye view" of the whole subject, showing the inter-relation of the different branches of jurisprudence, and their comparative or relative importance, not confined to one country alone, but embracing the whole family of nations and the whole course of legal evolution. Secondly, from the point of view of the bibliographer and librarian, the matter of the classified arrangement of books has of late aroused very keen interest, as is evidenced by the schemes of classification worked by Melvil Dewey, Charles A. Cutter, and others.

For the purpose of the student there need be no restraint or limit to classification, the very act of analyzing being of the greatest value. It is, however, questionable whether such a minute analysis is practicable, or even desirable, in the arrangement of a library; and the best method, so far as I have been able to judge, is a classification into a few simple, logical, obvious headings, and a subject and author catalogue under each heading.

I may add that of the various schemes for classification which I have thus far seen, all appear to me to be more or less defective. For instance, the English and American schemes make no adequate provision for Roman and Continental Law; and the authors of Continental Schemes seem to have forgotten that there is such a thing as Anglo-American Law.

The whole scheme as presented herein is of course tentative, especially the working out of the details of sub-divisions under the main headings, and I cannot resist the hope that any suggestions which may come to your notice may also be brought to mine.

Looking forward with interest to your valued criticisms, I remain,

Yours faithfully, JAMES H. VICKERY

[Not having space for the full scheme, we give here the general outline and three of the sub-divisions as samples.]

NOTES.

An American Lawyer in Germany.—Mr. Vickery (the writer of the letter printed in this number, concerning an "Analysis of Jurisprudence," as a basis for the collection or arrangement of a library of Comparative Jurisprudence) was for three years Secretary to the United States Embassy in Germany. Having just opened an "American Law Office" in Berlin, in connection with leading lawyers in New York, he has had his attention called especially to continental, or modern, civil law as viewed from our American standpoint. His letter will be read with interest.

New Law Periodicals.—We notice two new ventures in this line, both taking up again names of noted periodicals of the last generation. One is "Bench and Bar, a Monthly Legal News Journal," a quarto of 16 pages issued on the 15th of each month, and started at Chicago in January, 1901. The other is "The Southern Law Review," to be published monthly from June 1, 1901, in Atlanta, Ga., under the editorship of Hon. Wm. R. Hammond.

Have you a Library at Home?—If you have a good collection of general books in your private library, let us suggest that you add to it a set of THE GREEN BAG, 12 vols. bound ($30.00). In no other way can you get so much legal history, biography, humor, and miscellany, nor such an interesting collection of legal portraits. A lawyer who has a home library of two or three hundred volumes, without THE GREEN BAG, is hardly doing his duty toward the light literature of his profession.

Strong Words of Praise

. . . FOR . . .

ENGLISH RULING CASES.

Best set of leading cases accessible. — C. F. LIBBEY, Portland, Me.

Complete, scientific, and accurate. — H. M. HEATH, Augusta, Me.

Complete key to English and American law. — J. H. SENTER, Montpelier, Vermont.

Superior to anything of the kind. — WALTER ADAMS, Framingham, Mass.

The fountain-head of the law. — JOHN K. BEACH, New Haven, Conn.

Scholarly, practical, reliable and useful. — MOOT, SPRAGUE, BROWNWELL, and MARCY, Buffalo.

The whole body of the unwritten law. — J. E. HOWELL, Newark, N. J.

The cream of judicial learning. — MARSHALL BROWN, Pittsburgh.

The needs of every lawyer supplied. — C. W. CULLEN, Georgetown, Del.

Labor reduced to a minimum. — H. P. DART, New Orleans.

The annotations are of surprising value. — CHAS. QUARLES, Milwaukee.

Scope eminently practical, and the work good. — C. A. ALDRICH, Chicago.

Exceedingly valuable library of the law. — F. N. JUDSON, St. Louis.

Very useful, accurate, complete and exhaustive. — J. H. BROWN, Denver.

The "English Ruling Cases" will be completed in 25 volumes this Fall. One volume of Supplementary Cases and notes, and a volume containing Index and Table of Cases will follow shortly, thus covering all the leading English cases from earliest time to date. They are topically arranged, with a rule of law prefacing each group of cases, the early leading case and the latest ruling case given in full, with English notes abstracting collateral cases and statutes. The American notes show the accord or divergence of our American law, and are very complete, thorough, and of surprising value.

The price is $5.50 per volume, or $5.75 delivered. Descriptive circulars sent on application, or sample volume for examination.

LITERARY LUXURY FOR LAWYERS.

Do you see the GREEN BAG every month?

If not, you miss a deal of pleasure.

When the magazine was started it was described on the cover as "a useless but entertaining magazine." The editor objected to the word "useless," so we struck it out. But perhaps the original phrase, after all, is a good description of the GREEN BAG, which never contains any such reports, or digests of text-book matter, as would be of practical use in court.

But everything else in literature that appeals to the lawyer in the line of his professional tastes is to be found in this "entertaining" magazine. Legal history, biography, criticism, ethics, philosophy, antiquarianism, poetry, anecdote, humor, — all these find place in its pages. Every monthly number contains a variety of interesting contents which both recreate and stimulate the appreciative reader, while the illustrations augment the attractions of the text.

The contents of the October number represent the character of the periodical. They are :

Lord Alverston, Lord Chief Justice of England (with portrait).

The Nation and the Anarchists. By Prof. EUGENE WAMBAUGH, of Harvard Law School.

An Interesting Case of Disputed Identity. By BAXTER BORRET.

Women among Mohammedans. By R. VASHON ROGERS.

Lombroso in Science and Fiction. By GINO CARLO SPERANZA.

A Century of English Judicature (illustrated). By VAN VECHTEN VEEDER.

Sic Transit Gloria Placitorum (verse). By ROBERT WYNESS MILLAR.

The Cited. By GEORGE H. WESTLEY.

Early Criminal Trials.

Chapters from Biblical Law. By DAVID WERNER AMRAM.

London Legal Letter.

Editorial Department.

Any single number of the GREEN BAG can be bought for fifty cents. The annual subscription is four dollars.

A set of the GREEN BAG, twelve quarto volumes, is a treasury of legal history, biography, miscellany, and portraiture. Just now it can be bought for $30, net. No better present can be found for a lawyer, — no more interesting an addition to a home or office library.

It has been well said that "the first luxury a young lawyer should indulge in is subscription to the GREEN BAG."

Why not try it for a year? Four dollars sent to THE BOSTON BOOK Co., 83 to 91 Francis Street, Boston, will insure one year's good reading.

NOTES.

[Almanac for October.]

Courts are resuming.

Clients are coming.

Lawsuits are booming.

Fees will be humming.

Law schools beginning.

Law students wending.

Lecturers chinning.

Moot courts impending.

About — now — buy — books!

The one essential book, for a judge, an experienced lawyer, a young lawyer, or a law student, is BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY.

Old editions of BOUVIER are like old editions of Revised Statutes — superseded by the last edition.

RAWLE'S REVISION OF BOUVIER is the only thorough up-to-date encyclopedic law dictionary.

If a client asks puzzling questions, look in RAWLE'S BOUVIER and get an answer right away.

If a staggering point is made against you in trial, look in RAWLE'S BOUVIER.

If you have a case in hand so novel that you cannot find law to suit you in the books, examine ENGLISH RULING CASES WITH AMERICAN NOTES.

If you feel that your case is a good one, but the decisions seem against you, go back to first principles and consult ENGLISH RULING CASES WITH AMERICAN NOTES.

You can probably find a set of ENGLISH RULING CASES in the nearest law library, or in the library of the leading lawyers of your neighborhood.

If it is not available near you, why not consider getting it for your own library? It is the only set of reports which gives leading cases in full, arranged by topics and elucidated by notes.

ENGLISH RULING CASES is noteworthy for one rare fact. In the outset the publishers proposed a set of 25 volumes, and Vol. 25, now in press, finishes the alphabet. No expanded series there!

The reprint of the ENGLISH HOUSE OF LORDS' CASES will be finished in October. The price of that set (H. L.) will then be raised to $8.50 per volume. Subscription to the full series of the English Reports Reprints will remain at $6 per volume for the present.

NEW CATALOGUE FREE.

We shall have ready in a few days a new edition of our law-book catalogue which we will send without charge to any prospective book-buyer.

If you would like a copy, check the item on the private mailing card enclosed with this paper, and mail the card to us.

REMOVAL.

Having outgrown our present quarters, we move in October our offices and most of our stock to a large building numbered 83 to 91 Francis street (Longwood District), Boston, near the Brookline border.

This location is three miles from the Court House, outside the business centre, — and very near where the Harvard Medical School is to erect its new buildings.

Our reason for making this move is that we have to carry a large and constantly increasing stock of books, and not only need more space right now, but must face a constant pressure of expansion. As is well known, we try to carry, in addition to late and live law books, all out-of-print and rare books which libraries or lawyers are likely to want. — law periodicals, session laws, old English books, foreign legal literature, — even the almost forgotten treatises which are cited in the early reports. All these, together with our miscellaneous periodical department, and our publishing stock, require a great deal of room. This we will get in the Francis-street building, which was once a school-house and affords not only ample accommodations for the present, but also (occupying a quarter-acre lot) ample opportunity for additions to the building as our stock grows.

Any blue Brookline subway cars go past Francis street. The blue Ipswich-street Brookline cars go nearest, as they run on Brookline avenue, within a few rods of our new building. From the Huntington-avenue cars the building is distant about an eighth of a mile. Get off at Francis street, and you will find us near Brookline avenue.

But Boston lawyers or lawyers visiting Boston can find about all they are likely to want at our law sales-room in the corner basement room of Barrister's Hall, right opposite the front entrance to the Court House on Pemberton square. Here we have a sample stock of law books, a salesman, and telephone communication with our Francis-street offices.

DELIVERY CHARGES.

As there seems to be some misunderstanding in regard to payment of express and freight charges, we will re-state our rule — thus: when the buyer makes full payment for his purchase in advance (that is, when cash accompanies the order) we pay the delivery charges. In all other cases the purchaser is expected to pay them.

In other words the custom is for the purchaser to pay for delivery; but when he saves us expense and book-keeping by remitting in advance, we reciprocate the courtesy by assuming the express or freight charges.

ENGLISH REPORTS ALTERNATIVES.

"The high quality of English decisions is well known. English judges have for centuries been among the best educated and trained of their generation."

English reports have heretofore been so expensive that they have been available only in large libraries, and frequently here only in incomplete or undesirable form. Three exceptional alternatives, as follows, place them within reach of all at moderate cost.

1. The Complete Verbatim Reprint. — Covering all English decisions 1307 to 1865.
2. The English Ruling Cases. — Covering bed-rock principles.
3. Mews Complete English Digest. — A ready key to reports elsewhere available.

PRACTICAL COMMENDATIONS EPITOMIZED.

The Complete Verbatim English Reprint.

Nothing to criticise. Am particularly pleased. — SENECA HASELTON, Burlington, Vt.
Admirably planned. Execution good. — PHILIP P. WELLS, Librarian Yale Law School.
Of the greatest practical benefit. — COULT & HOWELL, Newark, N.J.
Equal to originals. Mechanical work excellent. — Prof. C. W. NEEDHAM, Washington, D.C.
Fulfil every expectation. Indispensable for principles. — F. N. PARKE, Westminster, Md.
You deserve the gratitude of the profession. — Prof. WM. TRICKETT, Carlisle, Pa.
Highly meritorious. What every good office should contain. — C. W. BUNN, St. Paul.
All that could be desired. Arrangement superb. — JESSE B. ROOTE, Helena.
Of greater value than originals. Important annotations, more convenient, uniform size. — GEO. J. MARTIN (Librarian), San Francisco.
With original paging, aids to reference, and annotations they seem more valuable than originals. — Prof. LUCIUS W. HOYT, Denver.

English Ruling Cases.

Best set of leading cases accessible. — C. F. LIBBEY, Portland, Me.
Complete key to English and American law. — J. H. SENTER, Montpelier, Vt.
Scholarly, practical, reliable, and useful. — MOOT, SPRAGUE, BROWNELL, & MARCY, Buffalo.
The whole body of the unwritten law. — J. E. HOWELL, Newark, N.J.
The cream of judicial learning. — MARSHALL BROWN, Pittsburgh.
Labor reduced to a minimum. — H. P. DART, New Orleans.
The annotations of surprising value. — CHAS. QUARLES, Milwaukee.
Eminently practical, and work good. — C. A. ALDRICH, Chicago.
Useful, accurate, complete, exhaustive. — J. H. BROWN, Denver.

ENGLISH REPORTS ALTERNATIVES.

THE COMPLETE VERBATIM ENGLISH REPRINT.

From 1307 (including Year Books) to 1865, about 1,000 volumes in 150 Books.

Price entire sets, $6.00 per book; Separate series, $7.50 per book.

Special Terms to Law Libraries.

1. A full verbatim reprint, without omissions.
2. Original paging preserved, as cited in digests and elsewhere.
3. Annotations show cases overruled, etc., and cite other references.
4. Editorial Board comprises best talent of England, including Lord Chancellor, Lord Chief Justice, Attorney General, and others.
5. Binding, printing, and paper excellent.
6. Uniform size, clearly labelled and compactly shelved.
7. Limited edition, without stereotype plates, already largely exhausted.
8. Prices subject to advance as supply diminishes.
9. Annual cost less than $75, distributed in monthly payments as books are published.
10. Separate series (or courts) sold to fill gaps, but no odd volumes. House of Lords series (58 vols. in 11 books) finished this month.

THE ENGLISH RULING CASES,

With American and English Notes.

All significant and authoritative or "leading" cases grouped under topics of law in Encyclopædic form, with the established "Rule" of law prefacing each group of cases. The older or "leading" cases given in full, with the later "ruling" cases which now best state existing law. Intermediate cases are cited as far as they differ from the "leading" or "ruling" cases, making a logical chain of argument grounded on bed-rock principles.

FULL AMERICAN NOTES

show accord or divergence of our American law, with the comments of our American courts and writers. Full English notes abstract collateral cases and statutes.

Price, $5.50 per volume, full sheep.

Set comprises 25 volumes, completing the alphabetical arrangement: 24 volumes now ready, and volume 25 to appear before end of year. An index volume and appendix volume, bringing latest cases up to date, will be published during 1901.

MEWS DIGEST OF ENGLISH CASE LAW

From Earliest Time to 1898.

Price, 16 vols., full sheep, $96.00. [Special terms to law libraries.]

Never before has there been a complete English digest covering simultaneously all Law and Equity cases under one alphabetical arrangement. It so fully states the case and abstracts the decision as frequently to take the place (so far as a digest can) of the original reports. It is equally serviceable with either original editions of the Reports or the new Complete Verbatim Reprint.

THE LIMITATION OF ACTIONS.

We take pleasure in announcing for publication in November a new (third) edition of WOOD ON THE LIMITATION OF ACTIONS AT LAW AND IN EQUITY, revised and brought down to date by JOHN M. GOULD. The late H. G. Wood had the power of finding the exact cases, and selecting from them just the points which the practising lawyer wanted. Though possibly lacking in literary finish, — and in the genius which sometimes makes the author himself an authority, — he possessed the safer and the more practical faculty of tracking down the most pertinent and persuasive cases on each topic that he treated. His books have for this reason been much more useful to lawyers than other books which claim greater merits of construction.

The editor of this edition is favorably known to the legal profession as the author of Gould on Waters, Gould and Tucker's Notes on the U.S. Statutes, and other law books. He has gone over the text of the last edition in the same spirit which would have animated the author if he had lived; has carefully revised the text and the citations; has developed certain phases of the subject not adequately treated before, has added new notes wherever it seemed necessary, and brought the citations down to date, adding nearly fifty per cent. to the number of cases cited. He has improved the Appendix by making a condensed statement of the Statutes of Limitations of the various States, instead of printing the statutes in full.

Although the text and the citations are much more extensive than in previous editions, Mr. Gould has thus saved so much space in the appendix that we are enabled to offer this third edition IN ONE VOLUME (the second edition was published in two volumes), thus saving to the user, both in space and in money. The volume is thick, but not unwieldy, is bound in law sheep, and sells for $6.50 net.

We commend this edition as being not only the latest and best work on an important topic, but also as an instance where the editor has saved lawyers money and shelf-room by compressing two volumes into one (without loss of essential usefulness) instead of expanding two volumes into three, as is somewhat the fashion of the day.

Marine Insurance. — We have received and nearly sold out our importation of the new edition of ARNOULD ON MARINE INSURANCE. (2 vols., half calf, $15.00 net.) Announced in 9 LEG BIB.

Vol. 25 of English Ruling Cases with American Notes, ready about November 1, will complete the alphabetical list of topics. Only the index volume is needed to complete the series.

THE BEST ALL-ROUND LAW BOOK.

There is one book that the student can profitably use in his course, — the young lawyer can take as the foundation and reliance of his early practice, the experienced counsel can turn to for a ready reminder, — or the judge can consult for law that will not be overruled.

This indispensable law book is an encyclopædia, with definitions of law terms and phrases, and with short but clear and sound articles on all points of the law.

It has been known to all lawyers for fifty years as BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY, and has stood at the head of American legal literature all that time.

It has been recently revised, enlarged, remodelled, and brought thoroughly down to date by FRANCIS RAWLE, ESQ., of Philadelphia.

The price of RAWLE'S REVISION OF BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY (2 large volumes, law sheep) is $12.00 net.

Although old editions are superseded by Rawle's Revision, we will take them in part trade for the latter, if desired.

WILLS AND EXECUTORS.

SCHOULER ON WILLS and SCHOULER ON EXECUTORS, well known as the standard works on the Law of Administration, have both passed recently to THIRD EDITIONS, carefully revised and brought down to date by the author. Separately, and bound in law sheep, each of these treatises, filling one volume, sells for $5.50 net.

We, however, sell the two volumes together bound in buckram for $8.00 net.

For the convenience of students, and of lawyers who do not care so much for the latest cases, we are selling the remaining copies of SCHOULER ON WILLS, Second Edition (1892), bound in law sheep, for $2.50 net.

ESSENTIALS FOR STUDENTS.

An excellent introduction to the study of the law — or companion through a course of law reading, — or aid before examinations — is the little series known as EWELL'S ESSENTIALS OF THE LAW.

Vol. 1 is a POCKET BLACKSTONE, containing all of the great classic which is now good law. It sells separately in sheep for $3.00, or in cloth for $2.50 net.

Vol. 2 is an epitome of PLEADING, CONTRACTS, AND EQUITY; Vol. 3, of EVIDENCE, TORTS, AND REAL PROPERTY. Each of these volumes sells separately for $2, cloth, or $2.50, sheep.

We sell the three vols. of EWELL'S ESSENTIALS together in cloth for $6.00, or in sheep for $7.50.

Vol. 10 of the Full Reprint of English Reports, published in October, almost completes the House of Lords Series. The Privy Council reprint will begin in December. This great enterprise is now moving on smoothly and regularly.

Legal Bibliography.

NO. 11. NEW SERIES.

BOSTON, MASS.

JANUARY, 1902.

NOTES.

Omissions in our Catalogue.—No catalogue can be perfect,—and we are sorry to say that we accidentally omitted from our new catalogue two recent books, Page on Wills, 1901, $6.00, and MacLennan on Interpleader, 1901, $5.00. If you are keeping the catalogue for reference, please add these books in the alphabetical list and also in the index.

A Substitute for Money.—Do you want THE GREEN BAG or some of the books we advertise, but feel that you cannot afford them? Perhaps you have books or magazines on your shelves you do not need. If so, make a list of them, with short titles and dates, and see if we cannot arrange a trade.

Law Journals.—We can use volumes or numbers of leading journals such as the Harvard Law Review; Yale Law Journal; American Law Register (since 1892); Law Student's Helper; Insurance Law Journal; Medico, Legal Journal; American Law Review and others.

Send in lists of what you have, and if your items fit into our stock we will make you an offer.

Realistic Indexing.—A new clerk, in indexing a lot of our old English law books, came across the title "Doctor and Student." Not pausing to think that there can be a Doctor of Laws as well as of Medicine, he entered St. Germain's classic under the title "Medical Jurisprudence."

More "Dog French."—This amusing instance of the gradual merging of the old Law French into English is quoted from 188^b Dyer (note) by Pollock in his First Book of Jurisprudence, and by Maitland in "English Law and the Renaissance."

"Richardson, Ch. Just. de C. B. al Assises at Salisbury in Summer 1631, fuit assault per prisoner que * * ject un Brickbat a le dit Justice, que narrowly mist."

"Ject un Brickbat" is good!

OUR NEW CATALOGUE SENT FREE.

We have just issued the Twelfth Edition of our Catalogue of Elementary Books in general use, enlarged and corrected to date. This is intended to cover the whole field of text-book literature now useful and available to American lawyers, with brief or "running" titles.

The Index is compiled upon a novel plan, which we think will be very useful to busy lawyers. The books under each legal topic, instead of being entered alphabetically by authors—the usual way—are listed chronologically, with prices. This method shows at a glance the relative age and price of all the "live" books on each topic, and thus enables a prospective buyer to give a shrewd guess at their relative value to him.

This Catalogue will be sent without charge to any one who asks us for it.

NOTES.

Query for Literary Sharps.—A correspondent asks: "In 13 Law Magazine 400 (1835) is an excellent review of Merewether & Stephens' History of the Boroughs, and Municipal Corporations in the United Kingdoms, signed M. Who was M? Could it have been Macaulay?"

A Helpful Index.—The original feature of our new Catalogue of Elementary Law Books is the Index, in which the books on each topic are arranged chronologically. At a glance the reader can see the relative date of the books, as well as their relative price, and so get a rough idea of their relative value.

The Lore of the Law.—An article on "Year Book Bibliography," reprinted from No. 8, Vol. 14, of the Harvard Law Review, will be mailed (without charge) to any lawyer interested in old English law literature, who will send his name and address to Charles C. Soule, care of the Boston Book Co.

More Marshall.—Collectors of Marshall literature should not fail to get and file away the two numbers of THE GREEN BAG (April and May, 1901) which contain a very interesting resumé, with copious extracts, of the principal orations delivered in various cities on "John Marshall Day." Excellent portraits of Marshall accompany the articles. These two numbers can be supplied for one dollar.

Another Ohio Claim.—In Fiske & Co.'s "Continuous Law Book Catalogue" we find this entry (p. 361): "PUFFENDORF'S NATURE & NATIONS, by Samuel Puffendorf of Delaware, Ohio, English Edition. 1 vol. 8°. 447 pp. Sheep. London, 1879."

Can this be our old friend Puffendorfius, author of the somewhat celebrated work "De Jure Naturae et Gentium," the last English edition of which was published (according to the catalogues) in London, folio, calf, 1749?

INTERPLEADER.

It is not very often that we can commend to our customers a Canadian book as the best one to use in this country, but there is a signal exception in the case of MACLENNAN ON INTERPLEADER ($5.00 net), a treatise published in Toronto in November, of which we have imported an edition.

The usefulness of this book on our side of the border lies partly in the fact that it is the latest book and (with the exception of one small English treatise) the only book on the topic, and partly in the fact that United States cases are cited more than any others. The Table of Cases shows by count:—

Australian cases cited	40
Irish and Scotch cases cited	78
Canadian cases cited	350
English cases cited	630
UNITED STATES (Federal and State)	747

This preponderance of citations renders MACLENNAN ON INTERPLEADER, like most of the Canadians who come to the United States, a very useful immigrant.

MORE PRAISE FOR THE GREEN BAG.

"Certainly continue me as one of the subscribers of THE GREEN BAG. I have them in bound volumes from the first issue. The field covered by this magazine is nowhere else gleaned, and I receive the monthly issue with the greatest pleasure."—D. C. Fraser, New Glasgow, Nova Scotia.

"I was one of the first that subscribed to THE GREEN BAG, and it has always been a welcome visitor in my office and home."—Michel A. Hartigan, Hastings, Nebraska.

LAW WRITER AND HISTORIAN.

James Schouler is not only a favorite legal writer (see advertisement, elsewhere in this paper, of his treatises on Wills and on Executors) but he also stands high as a historian. His "History of the United States from the Adoption of the Constitution to the Close of the Civil War" (6 vols., cloth, $13.50) is said by critics to be "an excellent work," "scholarly and attractive," "the best work covering this period."

Lawyers who have good private libraries ought to give Schouler's History as prominent a place on their shelves as they give to Macaulay and Hume and Bancroft.

NOTES.

Picturesque Spelling.—The typewriter seems to suggest and accentuate eccentricities in spelling. The latest slip that has come to our notice is "byzy" for "busy." Try that on the typewriter and see how fascinating it is. Isn't there far more character and meaning in the incorrect than in the correct form?

Who Was the Sculptor?—The librarian of the Law Association of Philadelphia, apropos of the Marshall articles in THE GREEN BAG, writes thus:—

"If your investigations reveal who made the Marshall bust in our library, I would like very much to know it. In the 'thirties a sculptor named Coffee, of Albany, N.Y., offered something of the kind."

A Catalogue Always Up-to-Date.—Each quarterly number of LEGAL BIBLIOGRAPHY undertakes to give title and price of the law books published during the previous quarter. Whoever gets and keeps our new Catalogue, therefore, and enters his name with us for future numbers of LEG. BIB., can keep fully informed as to current law literature.

Mediæval Publishers' Tricks.—The issue of old books with new dates is not entirely a modern sin. In 1553 Richard Tottell, just beginning to publish law books, found some copies left over of William Rastell's Registrum Brevium, originally published in 1531. Tottell printed for it a new title-page with the date 1553, but forgot to cancel the old colophon (which bore the 1531 imprint of Rastell), and thus left for posterity proof of his "little dodge."

Lay Periodicals.—Besides law-books, we deal in sets of general periodicals for libraries. The back numbers of nearly all periodicals are out of print, so that we have to glean here, there, and everywhere to make up sets. Have you on your shelves, in closets, or in the garret at home, any old magazines or Proceedings of Societies? If so, make a list of them, and send it to us. Perhaps they may have an exchange or a cash value which would make the labor well worth while.

THE GREEN BAG COMMENDED.

Across the continent—three thousand miles—comes this cheering letter, which we take the liberty of printing in full. Such cordial—and entirely unsolicited—praise falls like balm on editor and publishers, who are struggling with the problem of how to make a law periodical sufficiently interesting to get and keep a profitable list of subscribers:—

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Dec. 28, 1901.

Publishers "Green Bag":—

GENTLEMEN,—I inclose herewith $4.00, subscription for 1902. Having subscribed for THE GREEN BAG from the initial number, I have a right to testify concerning it. It has always been useful as well as entertaining. To enumerate a small proportion of the papers therein which have possessed both of the qualities mentioned would occupy many pages. Among them, however, none has pleased me more than the series under the title of "A Century of English Judicature," by Van Vechten Veeder. To a thorough knowledge of the subject, the writer brings the charms of literary taste and skill—a combination too rarely found in the hasty journalism of our day.

I remain,

Very truly yours,

HENRY H. REID.

LEGAL VIEW OF THE SCHLEY COURT.

Charles E. Grinnell of Boston, whose interesting analyses of the Bram case and the Maybrick case will be remembered, is to have in the February (1902) number of THE GREEN BAG comments upon the Schley Court of Inquiry from a lawyer's point of view. Not undertaking to argue the case itself, he will discuss the difference between the methods of Courts of Inquiry and those of Civil Courts, and their comparative values in arriving at knowledge of facts and trustworthy opinions, as distinguished from legal justice.

The number containing Mr. Grinnell's article will be mailed separately for fifty cents. Subscription to THE GREEN BAG for one year is four dollars, payable in advance.

A CHECK-LIST OF REPORTS.

Instead of printing a list of reports—which is of comparatively little use to the majority of lawyers,—with our new catalogue we have issued separately a LIBRARY CHECK-LIST OF AMERICAN, ENGLISH, IRISH, SCOTCH and CANADIAN LAW REPORTS, DIGESTS, STATUTES and SUBSEQUENT LAWS, printed with broad margins to allow ample space for checking up a library.

This Check-List we will send in duplicate, without charge, to any of our regular customers to whom it would be useful, on condition that he will return one copy with an accurate check of the reports in his library, so that we can keep run of his gaps and wants, and thus serve him more intelligently in the future.

ENGLISH ELEMENTARY WORKS, ETC.

Published since Oct. 1, 1901, or now in Press.

Size 8vo or 12mo, and binding cloth.

Any book on this list can be delivered to lawyers in the United States at the rate of thirty cents, or to libraries on certificate at twenty-five cents, to the shilling.

ANNOTATIONS

With each case the volumes and pages of Mews' Digest are first cited, where can be found all cognate and collateral references. Then follow citations to later decisions considering particular phases (as distinctly noted), or to decisions overruling, distinguishing, &c., &c. Thus is given with each case its subsequent history and authority to date.

"This set of books is going to be one of the best things out."—JOHN T. CONDON, Dean of University of Washington.

American Notes

TOPICALLY arranged in Encyclopædic form, covering the whole range of English decisions from earliest times to date. 25 volumes now ready, completing the alphabetical grouping. An Index volume (with Table of Cases) for entire set ready early in 1902. Price $5.50 per volume in full sheep.

All the best English Cases in full are here grouped under subject headings, with notes and references to other lines of English and American decisions, making

A logical sequence of "bed-rock" principles, supported by corroborative decisions

ready for use in Court.

Upwards 2,000 leading cases in full with abstracts of about ten times as many English cases, and references in the notes to upwards 30,000 American Cases.

EACH GENERAL TOPIC OF LAW is logically laid out into its natural sub-divisions, and under each sub-division come

PLAN

- 1.—A "Rule of Law," or clear general statement of the principles involved.
- 2.—Older or "Leading Case" in full, to which the principles can be traced.
- 3.—Later Cases modifying or qualifying the principle.
- 4.—The latest or "Ruling Case" in full, as now followed by the Courts.
- 5.—Full English Notes, referring to and abstracting all other significant English cases on the topic, not deemed worthy to be reprinted in full.
- 6.—Full American Notes, showing accord or divergence of our law, citing American cases and connecting the English cases with our own lines of decisions.

EDITORS

The American Notes are by IRVING BROWNE and HON. LEONARD A. JONES, while the English Notes and Cases are prepared by ROBERT CAMPBELL (of Lincoln's Inn)—all names that guarantee excellence.

BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY,

Rawle's Revision, is not merely a dictionary — it is a collection of alphabetically arranged, compact, accurate, lucid treatises on every topic of the law, with comprehensive citations brought down to date.

It is really a brief encyclopædia of the whole law, affording handy and instant solution of puzzling questions.

Rawle's Revision is so much later and more thorough that it entirely supersedes former editions.

For Students: Martin on Common Law Pleading and Procedure. $3.50 net.

The Latest Authority on the Limitation of Actions.

A third edition has just been issued of WOOD ON LIMITATIONS OF ACTIONS AT LAW AND IN EQUITY.

Wood on Limitations has been the leading book on this topic for twenty years.

The new edition is prepared by John M. Gould, well known as an experienced legal author, and has been revised, improved, and brought down to date on the lines the author would have followed if he were still living.

Gould's WOOD ON LIMITATIONS should be added to every public or private library which undertakes to keep up with the best elementary treatises.

BOOKS FOR BEGINNERS AT THE BAR.

THE MOST ESSENTIAL REFERENCE BOOK.

What books does a young lawyer need when he "hangs out his shingle" and begins practice?

First of all, undoubtedly, the statutes of his own state. Many successful lawyers have had no other books to start with.

But even the novice ought to have also some comprehensive work as a vade mecum, to which he can turn for ready reference when his first clients come with puzzling problems. Is there any one book of moderate compass and cost which meets this need?

Fortunately there is such a book, recognized by all lawyers and judges as standard,—and so recently revised as to show the present state of the law on every subject. This book is Rawle's Revision of Bouvier's Law Dictionary—not so much a dictionary, in the usual sense of the word, as an encyclopedia of the whole law. It is in two large volumes, and can be bought for $12.00 net.

With his State Statutes and Bouvier, the young lawyer is ready for clients. If he can afford more books, he will naturally select the best treatises on the topics of most general use, such as Schouler on Wills (sheep, $5.50 net), Schouler on Executors (sheep, $5.50 net)—sold both together in buckram binding for $8.00,—Wood on Limitation of Actions ($6.50), and so on. Our Catalogue of Elementary Law Books in General Use (sent free on application) will show what books there are on each subject.

THE MOST USEFUL SET OF REPORTS.

If the young lawyer has money to put into a good library at the outset,—or after he begins to get fees,—he will need a set of reports. Text-books are helpful in investigation; but actual precedents are what one must cite in court to win cases.

Generally speaking, the reports of one's own state are needed first. But when a young lawyer goes into an office where these reports are already on the shelves, or to a town where there are several sets in neighboring offices, he can often do better for himself, and strengthen the combined resources of the office or the bar, by getting some other set not already close at hand.

In selecting such a set, he wants that one which will give the best cases—oftenest cited—and surest to be listened to with respect by the courts. There is one set which stands preëminent in these qualities, namely, English Ruling Cases with American Notes.

In this series of twenty-six volumes, the leading ("ruling") cases out of the whole range of the English reports are grouped under alphabetically-arranged topics of the law, with excellent notes citing a wide range of additional English and American decisions.

This is the only set of reports in which the best cases (reprinted in full, and thus ready to be read in court) are grouped under topics in such a way as to form the foundation of a strong argument. The notes indicate lines of according cases in all our various American jurisdictions.

As English cases are cited oftener in our courts than those of any single American state, any judge must concede the force of such time-tried cases as are gathered together in this series.

The special value of such a set to any lawyer who prepares or tries cases is self-evident.

Twenty-four volumes, embracing the whole alphabet of subjects, are already published. The final volume, containing the Index and Table of Cases, will be ready in May or June.

The price of the set is $5.50 per volume, or $143.00 net.

Allow us to suggest that you buy this set, or induce your senior partner, or your prosperous neighbor, to buy it.

NOTES.

The Startling Typewriter.— In dictating a letter recently, we spoke of a "pithy and pointed recommendation." The phrase came out, "Pythian-pointed." This reminds us of a friend in the early days of typewriting, who tried to learn the art himself. After assiduous practice, he allowed "that it was a great invention, with only one serious drawback," which was that "the blamed machine didn't know how to spell."

The Spelling of Great Men.— This again suggests the quaint ending of the Table of contents to the American 1771 reprint of Blackstone's Commentaries:—

✍ If any READER of this Edition meets with some WORDS uncommonly spelled, he is requested, not hastily to blame the American EDITOR; because Report sayeth, the LAST British EDITION was corrected under the immediate Inspection of the learned AUTHOR, and it has of late been the Practice of several great Men to spell many Words in their own peculiar Manner.— Therefore, the American EDITOR, to make the American EDITION, a perfect Transcript of the LAST British EDITION, hath adhered to it as literally as possible."

Misplaced Courtesy.— Business correspondence is occasionally enlivened by flashes of conscious or unconscious humor. Thus a letter recently came to us, addressing the President of the Company as "Reverend." At first this seemed a not very courteous joke,—but when it was noted that the letter came from a Hindu or Mohammedan in India, the inference followed that he used the word "Reverend" as we do "Honorable."

Crabbed Copy.— Printers' errors are often amusing and exasperating,—but in justice to the patient compositor many of these must be blamed to the bad handwriting of the author. In this category, probably, ranks the error many of our readers must have noticed in 11 Leg. Bib., by which the heading "English, Irish and Scotch Reports" appeared "English, Irish and French."

American Land Systems.— A Scotch friend writes us for some book or article describing "the American Land System." We find good descriptions of the Public Land System of the United States, but cannot discover any sketch of our private land tenures and transfers which could be intelligible and satisfactory to a foreigner. Can any reader refer us to such an explanation either in separate form, or as a chapter in some larger work?

Fry's Case.— On page 64 of the January 1902 number of THE LAW QUARTERLY REVIEW, there is a reference to "Fry's Canadian Prisoner's Case." This important constitutional case "The Queen v. Batchelor" was tried in 1839—and the decision rendered by Lord Chief Justice DENMAN. It covers Habeas Corpus, and Colonial Law;—and Fry's report of the case has an introductory essay on Habeas Corpus. The case was published in London at the time in pamphlet form, for 6s. 6d. We have a copy in stock which we can sell for a dollar.

THE SCHLEY COURT REVIEWED.

The March number of THE GREEN BAG (sold separately for fifty cents), is almost entirely taken up by a very interesting article entitled A LEGAL VIEW OF THE INQUIRY GRANTED TO REAR-ADMIRAL SCHLEY AND OF OTHER INQUIRIES BY MILITARY COURTS. BY C. E. GRINNELL.

Many readers will remember Mr. Grinnell's keen analyses of the Bram Case and the Maybrick Case. In this article, without discussing the facts or the merits of the case, he comments on points of practice and procedure. The captions to his sections are as follows:—

Conflicting Principles—Courts of Inquiry—Dewey's Dissent—Sampson's Equity—Right to Exclude—Open Sessions—Appeal to the President—Exclusion of Command—Task of Judge Advocate—Bias in Examinations—Ingenuity in Advocacy—Evidence of Opinion—Hearsay Evidence—Cross-Examination—Court's Attention—Court's Control—Instructing the Court—Points of Practice—Naval Peculiarities—Disqualifying Howison—Rulings and Arguments—Characteristic Powers—Value of the Case—Legal Results.

WHAT A LAW STUDENT OUGHT TO BE.

In the sententious little volume entitled "The Lawyer, His Character and Rule of Holy Life," in which Edward O'Brien outlines the character of the model lawyer, he has these suggestions as to Choice of a Calling:—

"Ere yet he presents himself a probationer before the guardians of her temple, he pauses and weighs well his fitness for so high and holy a calling.

"And first, he asks, if he have bodily health sufficient hereto? Intense study over the midnight oil, or by the first light of morning's dawn, the disquietude of hot and crowded courts, the exhaustion of long and arduous addresses to judges and juries, the care and anxiety attendant upon the conduct of complicated and weighty causes, demand from the Lawyer a bodily frame strong, enduring, and elastic. Be it he have this:

"Secondly, he asks, has he strength of mind sufficient hereto? Not alone the infinite mazes of artificial laws are to be mastered in books; not alone the ill-digested facts of complicated causes, are to be seen through and disentangled, and again in lucid order detailed to the judge or the jury: but the weapons of sophistry wielded by the arm of perverted talent, and the artful devices of chicanery, falsehood, and fraud, sustained by intellectual strength and moral turpitude, are to be warded off and defeated. Be it he have strength of mind for this;

"Thirdly, he asks, has he the moral strength sufficient hereto? Has he patience to undergo, in diligent accumulation of legal store, the tedious discipline of unemployed and unrewarded years: has he temper to endure the irritating attacks of opposing counsel, or the harsh and unmerited reproofs of petulant judges: has he courage to persevere in a good cause against the false affirmations, the wily insinuations, the audacious practices of wicked and ungodly men?"

THE LINES OF A GOOD JUDGE.

[In an article on Sir William Blackstone in 1 American Jurist, we find these twelve characteristics of a good judge. From the context we cannot make out whether they are Blackstone's or Bacon's. Can any reader tell, us?]

1. A judge, in maintaining the laws of the realm should be rather heartstrong than headstrong.
2. He should draw his learning out of his books, not out of his brains.
3. He should mix well the freedom of his own opinion with the reverence of the opinions of his fellows.
4. He should continue the study of his books, and not spend upon the old stock.
5. He should fear no man's face, and yet not turn stoutness into bravery.
6. He should be truly impartial, and not so as men may see affection through fine carriage.
7. He should be a light to jurors to open their eyes, but not a guide to lead them by the nose.
8. He should not affect the opinion of pregnancy and expedition, by an impatient and catching hearing of counselors at the bar.
9. He should speak with gravity, as one of the sages of the law; and not be talkative, nor with impertinent flying out, to show learning.
10. His hands, and the hands of those about him, should be clean, and uncorrupt with gifts, from meddling in titles, and from serving of turns, be they of great ones or small ones.
11. He should retain the jurisdiction of the court within the ancient mete stones, without removing the mark.
12. Lastly, he should carry such a hand over his ministers and clerks, as that they may rather be in awe of him, than presume upon him.

WE BE THREE POOR BARRISTERS.

Round, "We be three poor Mariners."

We be three poor Barristers,
With minds but ill at ease,
Because we never are retained
In any kind of pleas.
We pace the House around, around, around,
Where litigants abound, abound, abound,
Where fees are rife,
Yet for our life
We cannot take a pound, a pound, a pound.

Ah! little do their clients know,
Who trust to legal skill,
What injury their doers do,
Employing whom they will,
And leaving us around, around, around,
No chance to be renowned, renowned, renowned,
Though we have store
Of wit and lore
That might the world astound, astound, astound.

We wonder what their agents think—
Or if they think at all—
Who still employ these little men,
With voice so thin and small,
You scarce can hear the sound, a—sound, a—sound,
While we walk idly around, around, around—
With lungs to make
The rafters shake
And vaulted roofs rebound, rebound, rebound.

As for the clerk of evil fame,
Accursed let him be,
Who tempteth meaner souls than ours
To plead for half a fee—
With emphasis profound, profound, profound,
We execrate the hound, the hound, the hound,
As to and fro
Each day we go
Across the Earthen Mound, a—Mound, a—Mound!

Yet not because we're thus forgot
Downhearted shall we be;
The pluckless soul may yield to grief—
We'll live in jollity!
We'll pass the glass around, around, around,
And thus dull care confound, confound, confound,
Nor heed the fee
So long as we
With mirth and glee abound, abound, abound.

NEW LAW CATALOGUE.

We have recently issued, and will send free of cost on application, a new catalogue of ELEMENTARY LAW BOOKS IN GENERAL USE.

This catalogue gives a very full short-title list (arranged alphabetically by authors) of current text books. The Index gives the topics of the Law, alphabetically arranged, and under each topic, the books bearing upon it chronologically arranged, thus showing their sequence in point of time.

The Greatest Work in Law Literature.

Since sending to press our latest circular about the FULL REPRINT OF THE ENGLISH REPORTS, we have received the following additional commendations.

It seems a great pity that the edition of the Reprint is so limited. Out of the sets allotted to the United States we have only enough left to supply one-third of the inquiries received,—should they result in actual orders.

When we have to announce "edition all subscribed for,—no more orders can be filled;" there will be many dilatory lawyers and libraries badly disappointed.

I have received all the volumes of your "Full Verbatim Annotated English Reports" so far published. They are in every way desirable, and cannot be too highly commended. When the Reprint is completed it will constitute the greatest single work in the history of law literature.

Thomas Taylor, Jr.,
Master in Chancery, Chicago, Ill.

I am very much pleased thus far with the Full Verbatim Annotated English Reprint. I wish, however, they might come along a little more rapidly even than they have been coming.

Hon. John M. Olin,
Madison, Wis.

No thorough investigation of a legal principle can be made without resort to the English courts, and until the publication of your reprint only the lawyers living at the seats of state government or in large cities could get access to these reports without the expenditure of a very large sum of money. You have done the profession great service.

Thomas H. Franklin,
San Antonio, Texas.

The members of the Marion Bar Association are very enthusiastic in praise of the Full Verbatim Annotated English Reports and I find it much in demand.

William F. Johnson,
Librarian of Marion County (Ohio) Law Library Association.

Your verbatim report of the English Reports has been in use in the Grand Rapids Law Library for some time. The members of this Library have found the work complete and very serviceable. They uniformly commend the publication. You are entitled to great credit for bringing out the publication, and have conferred a great favor on the bar. There is no criticism of the work here.

Mark Norris,
Grand Rapids, Mich.

The Full Verbatim Annotated English Reprints ordered through your house is meeting with great favor. Many of the attorneys who work in this library are quickly becoming acquainted with its merits and are making use of the volumes now on our shelves. The convenient form, completeness and annotations are features of this work that appeal strongly to the busy practitioner.

E. A. Nelson,
State Librarian, St. Paul, Minn.

I regard the Annotated Reprint of the English Reports not only as a work of great merit, but of particular value to those libraries which have been unable to secure the original editions by reason of their excessive cost or out-of-print condition. The Reprint is in many respects more valuable for reference than the original prints, and the undertaking deserves the encouragement of all the important law libraries of this country.

S. B. Griswold,
State Law Librarian, Albany, N. Y.

I take great pleasure in saying a good word for the Annotated Reprint of English Reports for which I subscribed and of which I have now received fifteen volumes. By a careful examination of the volumes I have received, I have become convinced that this publication will prove of incalculable value to the Bar. It will afford them, at much less expense and in much more useful form than could be otherwise obtained, the early English Reports complete. The better type, the clean volumes, valuable annotations and convenient arrangement in volumes, all tend to make them much more serviceable than would be a collection of the several Reports included in this publication. I do not feel that I could afford to be without them.

Hon. Nathaniel C. Sears,
Justice of the Appellate Court, Chicago, Ill.

I am a subscriber to your English Reprint, and I desire to express my satisfaction at the quality of the work which has been done by you,—both the physical work and the mental work. It is a great pleasure to know that one has in his library all the cases in England, and not merely insufficient (and many times incomplete) selections or abstracts from them. I make frequent references to them, and find them invaluable. I had, before I subscribed for this set, several hundred volumes of English reports, but this is a substitute for all of them, and is infinitely more satisfactory than they have been.

Hon. W. A. Blount,
Pensacola, Fla.

I desire to express my satisfaction with your Full Verbatim Annotated English Reprint. This work is especially valuable now when, owing to the multiplicity of reports, economy in shelf room must be practiced. The volumes of your Reprint while commodious in size, are also compact in space. Of course no word of commendation need be spoken of the substance of these invaluable reports, but you are to be congratulated on the mechanical perfection marking your present edition. I have noticed with pleasure the industry of your annotators, which greatly assists the practitioner in knowing what law was and is. As an instance, I take at random the case of Wekett vs. Raby, Vol. 1, page 104, decided in 1724, and the notes of your annotator show us that it was approved as late as 1891, in In Re Appleby, 3d Chancery, 422. I have placed the volumes of the Reprint next to my English Ruling Cases, and consider these publications a valuable addition to my library.

Wm. Michael Byrne,
U.S. District Attorney, Wilmington, Delaware.

I have now received at your hands fifteen volumes of the Full Verbatim Annotated English Reprint of the English Reports and I cannot forbear expressing to you the sense which I have of their value to the lawyer. It is necessary, however, that I discriminate. Today the average lawyer, preparing a brief, does not undertake to erect his case upon any reasoning based on the principle which ought to govern it, but, instead, labors with a mechanical diligence to discover some case somewhere (it matters not where), which shall be as closely identical with his own as possible, and, armed with the arbitrary power of precedent as with a bludgeon, expects victory with somewhat of the confidence of the bully. To the average lawyer, therefore, as I have described him, this set of Reports is worth just as much as and no more than any other: the authority of a Cottenham or a Mansfield is on a par with that of any country practitioner elevated to the bench because of his qualities as a "mixer" and because of the political necessity of recognizing, in the distribution of office, the Rob Roy neighborhood where he lives. But to the student or the studious practitioner (and thank God there a few left,) who can realize the necessity of law as a system of general principles to be applied to the intricate complexity of human life for its government; who can rise even higher and realize the immense wrong and damage which are inflicted upon society by doing "justice," as it is called, (not reflecting that the primary meaning of the term is "in accordance to law,") between party and party without regard to the logical application of general principles, themselves derived from the profoundest consideration of the true well being of the community,—to such the value of this publication is very great. If the only object of the lawyer, today, is to make money, I would not advise him to purchase your republication, for the reports of Kamschatka will do just as well, if any reports are needed; but if his object be to form or retain the legal mind, I do not know of a better investment.

F. W. Griffin,
Kansas City, Mo.

PLEADING.PROCEDURE.

The Best Book for Students on these topics is Martin's Civil Procedure.

Civil Procedure at Common Law, by Alexander Martin, LL. D., Dean of the Law Department of the University of Missouri.

ONE VOLUME, LAW SHEEP, $3.50 NET.

I. THE BEST BOOK.—The publishers feel confident that in this book they are submitting to the legal profession the best elementary treatise now extant on Civil Procedure at Common Law.

Judge U. M. Rose, President of the American Bar Association, in passing on its merits, says: "It is the most satisfactory presentation of the subject I have ever seen."

Professor E. B. Kinkead, of Ohio State University Law School, says: "There are points in the book superior to any other book on this subject."

Judge John F. Phillips, of the U. S. District Court of Western District of Missouri, says: "It presents the philosophy of theory with common sense of practice. And it is so admirably expressed that few men, fond of judicial literature, can begin its reading without going to the end with pleasure and profit."

Judge Elmer B. Adams, of the U. S. District Court of Eastern District of Missouri, says: "The student of law as well as the practitioner, will do well to make this treatise a hand-book for ready reference."

II. ESSENTIAL TO A STUDENT.—A treatise of this character is necessary to all students undertaking to learn either code procedure or any of the modified systems of common law procedure. Students pursuing the case system cannot dispense with it.

On this point the Harvard Law Review says: "Some knowledge of the old forms of procedure is essential to an intelligent reading of cases in any subject, and the intending student could make no better preparation for work under the case system than a careful study of this book."

An eminent contributor to the January number (1902) of the Law Quarterly Review of London, and who is an earnest advocate of the case system of instruction, says: "I think the student's work in case law should go hand in hand with the study of the best students' text-book in the particular branch of the law which engages his attention. But the student must use the text-books to supplement and complete his reading of the Law Reports, and not as a substitute for such reading."

III. PERSONAL ACTIONS.—The ordinary personal actions at common law are carefully defined and described, their historical development clearly disclosed, and their leading features accurately delineated. Nothing so completely done can be found in any other treatise.

The Harvard Law Review says: "The historical part of the subject is particularly well covered." "The work indeed is thoroughly accurate and systematic." "Particularly commendable are his discussions of the origin of detinue and of the nature of debt."

The American Law Register says: "There are two especially interesting and exhausted chapters—those upon the nature of assumpsit and trespass on the case."

IV. REAL ACTIONS.—It is the only book obtainable by students which contains an accurate classification and an elementary presentation of the ancient real actions, which lie at the basis of the law of real estate in English jurisprudence. This presentation is prefaced with the common law theory of rights in land, which will materially assist the student in surveying it from the standpoint of the pleader.

Professor William L. Murfree, of the University of Colorado, now deceased, in commenting on this treatise, says: "I am particularly gratified with the matter on 'Real Actions.' I have seriously felt the want of such a condensed presentation in my work with the class in real property."

V. DEVELOPMENT.—The personal and real actions which have come down to modern times, such as assumpsit, replevin, ejectment, dower partition, and forcible entry are considered in their modern aspects, and in most cases accompanied with elaborate notes, disclosing their origin and development in history.

VI. FORMS.—It is the only treatise which contains a complete set of forms of writs, covering all the ordinary real and personal actions, and forms of declarations and pleas in all the personal actions.

VII. GENERAL ASSUMPSIT.—The vexed question of maintaining general assumpsit for part performance of an express contract is greatly simplified in an elaborate note, to which the Harvard Review alludes as "an excellent discussion of general assumpsit for performance." The practitioner will find it convenient to consult this note which condenses the discussions on the subject both ancient and modern.

VIII. CITATIONS.—The language of the text is constantly accompanied with citations of cases, and long recognized authorities in law and legal history, which will enable the student to extend his inquiries on every subject treated of in the book.

EBB-TIDE IN PRACTICE.

The practice of law has its periods of ebb and flow in prosperity, like other professions and trades. This periodicity does not entirely depend upon the size of the bar, for it seems to date back to days when the number of practitioners must have been small. For instance, Maitland quotes ("English Law and the Renaissance," 1901) from Stow's Annals thus:—

"This year (1557) in Michaelmas Terme men might have scene in Westminster Hall at the Kinges bench barre not two men of law before the justices: there was but one named Foster, who looked about and had nothing to doe, the judges looking about them. In the Common Pleas (Common Pleas?) no more Sergeants but one, which was Sergeant Bouloise (Benlowes?) who looked about him; there was elbow roome enough, which made the lawyers complaine of their injuries in that terme."

This slack state of practice either had short orbits of recurrence or dated back for a generation; witness the same author's quotation from Ellis's Letters:—

"In 1536 John Rastell the lawyer and printer of law books complains to Cromwell that in both capacities he is in a bad way: he used to print from two to three hundred reams in two years; he used to make forty marks a year by the law and now does not make forty shillings."

A Companion Set to the Century Digest.

THE FIRST COMPLETE ENGLISH DIGEST
MEWS' DIGEST OF ENGLISH CASE LAW.
16 VOLS., LAW SHEEP, $96.00.

Superseding and consolidating all Previous Digests of the Reports (both Law and Equity) down to 1898; with a selection of Irish Cases.

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF, JOHN MEWS.

Assistants,—W. F. Barry, E. E. H. Birch, A. H. Bittleston, B. A. Cohen, W. I. Cook, E. W. Hansell, J. S. Henderson, A. Lawrence, J. M. Lely, R. C. Mackenzie, E. Manson, R. G. Marsden, H. J. Newbolt, A. E. Randall, J. Ritchie, J. Smith, J. F. Waley, T. H. Walker, and W. A. G. Woods.

Until now there has been no complete English Digest. The successive Common Law Digests of Harrison, Fisher, and Mews, and the four editions of Chitty's Equity Digest, have partially, but not simultaneously, covered the field. They have to some extent duplicated each other, and to some extent they have failed to include all the cases.

Now, for the first time, all Law and Equity Cases are brought together in one alphabet, and under one comprehensive arrangement, which will enable the user of the new Digest to examine easily and thoroughly the entire range of English decisions.

MR. MEWS, the Editor, has had an experience with former digests which peculiarly qualifies him for his present work. In the list of his assistants will be recognized many names of well-known editors, authors, and reporters; altogether an able and reliable staff of specialists in different subjects.

The Digest of each case is very full, giving both statement of facts and abstract of decision, so that the reader gets so good an idea of the case that in nine cases out of ten he does not need to refer to the original report.

American lawyers will find in this Digest so complete a skeleton of English Law, that owning it, in connection with the new Digest of American Law, will enable them to cover the field of recorded decisions, and to feel sure that investigation of a point will include all cases which can be cited, pro and con.

The English price of the set of 16 vols., bound in cloth, is £20. By importing an edition, we are enabled to offer it in this country, in our more substantial law-sheep binding, for $96.

A LAW LIBRARY IN TWO VOLUMES.

*Students,
Beginners at Practice,
Busy Lawyers,
Judges on the Bench,
Trial Justices, Prosecuting Attorneys,*

will find Bouvier's Law Dictionary: Rawle's Revision (2 volumes, $12.00 net) to be a compact, concise, full, thorough, late, and reliable Enclopedædia of the Whole Law, to be kept at hand for consultation in office or in court, when a doubtful question of law comes up suddenly and requires prompt decision.

No one book, in such brief compass, and at such low cost, covers so many needs of the student, lawyer, and judge, as Rawle's Revision of Bouvier.

It is too well-known to need printed commendations. If you do not know the work, or this edition, any prominent lawyer or judge will tell you about its merits.

SURE BASIS FOR SUCCESSFUL ARGUMENTS.

Most of the cases that bring fees and reputation are those which present novel facts, to which it is difficult to fit exactly any of the decisions cited in the text-books or digests.

In preparing such cases the lawyer has to go back to "bed-rock," and found his argument on leading cases which embody accepted principles of law.

Where shall he go to find most surely and quickly such a foundation for a convincing plea? If he gropes through digests and text-books—examining every case cited from fifty different series of reports—he will waste weeks of valuable time.

If he is wise, however, he has on his own shelves the one set of reports which will give him at once the basis of his brief—English Ruling Cases with American Notes (26 volumes, including Index, $143.00). Here he finds, arranged under subject-headings (reprinted in full, and ready to be read in court), the great cases which all courts recognize as authority—with notes which enable him to follow out the principles laid down in the leading cases—through any modifications, and into the precedents of any jurisdiction.

English Ruling Cases

with American Notes

NOW COMPLETED. 26 Volumes and Index. Price $5.50 per volume in full sheep.

Under topical arrangement, just as wanted in briefing a case, with each general subject of law logically laid out into its natural subdivisions, the treatment is as follows:—

PLAN

- 1.—A “Rule of Law,” or clear general statement of the principles involved.
- 2.—Older or “Leading Case” in full, to which the principles can be traced.
- 3.—Later Cases modifying or qualifying the principle.
- 4.—The latest or “Ruling Cases” in full, as now followed by the Courts.
- 5.—Full English Notes, referring to and abstracting all other significant English cases on the topic, not deemed worthy to be reprinted in full.
- 6.—Full American Notes, showing accord or divergence of our law, citing American cases and connecting the English cases with our own lines of decisions.

Ready for use in Court is thus presented a logical sequence of argument based on bed-rock principles, and comprising

UPWARDS 2000 LEADING CASES PRINTED IN FULL.

UPWARDS 20000 OTHER CASES FULLY ABSTRACTED.

UPWARDS 30000 AMERICAN CASES CITED IN THE NOTES.

Complete Digest of English Case Law

By JOHN MEWS.

From Earliest Times to 1898, in 16 volumes. Sheep, $96.00.

[Special Terms to Law Libraries and to Subscribers for the Full Verbatim English Reprint or for English Ruling Cases.]

Until now there has been no complete English Digest covering simultaneously both Law and Equity Cases under one alphabet.

All Law and Equity Cases are here brought together under one alphabetical arrangement, so completely digested as oftentimes to do away with the necessity (so far as any digest can) of consulting the original decisions.

Cites equally well to either the original paging retained in the new Verbatim Reprint of English Reports, or to original editions.

Legal Bibliography.

No. 13. NEW SERIES.

BOSTON, MASS.

JULY, 1902.

NOTES.

Inquirer.—No, there has been no new edition of RAWLE'S REVISION OF BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY. We have changed the outside lettering by adding a third label lettered, "A CONCISE ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF THE LAW," but there is no change of contents.

Too Blamed Particular.—We got recently a check from a customer, which lacked the usual formality of a signature. When we called his attention to this omission, he returned the signed check with the remark, "You are very particular about your checks, it seems to me!"

Advance in Price.—THE FULL VERBATIM ANNOTATED ENGLISH REPRINT (Limited edition) is so nearly exhausted that the price is now advanced to $8.50 per book on separate series of House of Lords and Privy Council as now completed. Subscriptions to the entire set are however open for a short time longer at the old rate of $6 per book, but so few sets are left that this price must soon be advanced, and later wholly withdrawn. DON'T DELAY IF YOU WANT THE SET! SPECIAL TERMS TO LIBRARIES.

Blackstone's Commentaries.—In trying to make up a Bibliography of this classic, we find a hiatus between the 15th edition by Christian, 1809, and an 18th edition by John Williams, 1821-2, 1822, or 1823 (all three dates are given in different catalogues). The regular 16th edition by Coleridge appeared in 1825; a "New Edition" in 1826, an 18th edition in 1829 by Lee, Hovenden and Ryland, and a 17th edition in 1830.

Can any reader explain this mix-up? And especially can any one give us dates and editors of any other editions between 1809 and 1823? We know about the "New Edition" by J. F. Archbold, which was dated 1811, but there must have been one or more other editions between these dates to justify the numbering of Williams' 1821-23 edition.

Was there not one edition (or more) published about that time in "Bell's Legal Classics?"

Save your Rent.—Housing a large law library means considerable expense of shelving and rent. Condensation, if without any omission, and especially if in more convenient form and with helps to greater usefulness, means saving of rent and economy in use.

THE FULL VERBATIM ANNOTATED ENGLISH REPRINT in 150 books occupies only 40 feet of shelving as against 300 feet occupied by the 1000 original volumes. It is clearly labeled and of uniform size for convenient shelving, instead of incomplete labeling and variable size that means shelf confusion. Yet it makes no omissions, preserves original paging, and has valuable annotations with each case that save half the labor of investigation. These are important considerations for all who use and wish to own an English library.

NEW BOOKS IN PRESS.

We expect to publish the following books during the summer and autumn:—

ENGLISH RULING CASES. Index and Table of Cases (26th and Final Volume) to the Series called. 1 volume, about 800 pages. Law Sheep, $5.50 net.

WILLS ON CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE, with American notes by CHARLES F. CHAMBERLAYNE, author of the excellent annotations to recent editions of BEST ON EVIDENCE and TAYLOR ON EVIDENCE.*

CASES ON THE CONFLICT OF LAWS, by PROF. J. H. BEALE, JR., of Harvard Law School (just appointed Dean of the new Law School of Chicago University). 3 vols. Cloth. $10.50 net.

SNOW'S CASES ON INTERNATIONAL LAW. A new and enlarged edition, by PROF. JAMES E. SCOTT, of the Law Department of the University of Illinois.*

CASES ON COMMON LAW PLEADING (a companion volume to MARTIN'S COMMON LAW PROCEDURE, by OWEN D. YOUNG, Lecturer on Pleading at Boston University, and JAMES T. KEEN.*

STROUD'S DICTIONARY OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE AS INTERPRETED BY THE JUDGES. A new and enlarged edition, with copious reference to American cases.*

* Price to be announced later.

Praise from Prominent Practitioners.—As an example of commendations of RAWLE'S BOUVIER which come to us from judges and leaders of the bar all over the United States, we take the liberty of quoting this paragraph in a recent letter from Edward H. Rogers, Esq., of New Haven, Conn.:—

"The recent edition of BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY, revised by MR. RAWLE of Philadelphia, is one of the most valuable books which I own. It is not only a complete dictionary, with clear and concise definitions of legal terms and principles, but it is also an invaluable digest, particularly available for quick and accurate work."

Helps to Judges and Lawyers.—When the Court wishes to investigate early decisions as cited in briefs of counsel, it is an invaluable help to find these early decisions fully and concisely annotated with their whole subsequent history to date,—whether they are still live law, or whether they have been overruled, or otherwise weakened as present authority. The counsel using these annotations knows whether his citations and authorities will stand the test of the Court. Without such helps both Court and counsel must run down these early decisions to date through various channels, at great expense of time and labor, with frequent chances for error.

This is one of the many important features of the FULL VERBATIM ANNOTATED ENGLISH REPRINT, and Judges or lawyers using it have a great advantage over those who have access only to the originals without annotations.

Corrigenda.—Bancroft-Whitney Co. of San Francisco kindly call our attention to the fact that the citation on p. 569 of RAWLE'S REVISION OF BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY, Vol. 2 (title "Papers"), reading 42 Pac. 216, should be 24 Pac. 216. Better overhaul your Bouvier and correct the citation accordingly.

Legal Bibliography.

No. 14. NEW SERIES.

BOSTON, MASS.

OCTOBER, 1902.

PORTRAITS OF GREAT ENGLISH JUDGES.

We have now in press, and shall issue about as soon as this paper reaches its readers, a handsome circular of forty pages, bound in cloth inlaid with small portraits, and containing fifteen full page half-tone portraits of famous judges. The letter-press of the circular contains complete information in regard to English Ruling Cases with American Notes, and is intended to advertise that series, which has just been completed by the publication of a twenty-sixth volume containing a Subject Index and Tables of English and American cases reported in full or cited in the notes.

The judges whose portraits are given are —

Sir Edward Coke.	1552-1633
Sir Matthew Hale.	1609-1676
Lord Chancellor Hardwicke.	1690-1764
Chief Justice Mansfield.	1704-1793
Sir William Blackstone.	1723-1780
Lord Chancellor Thurlow.	1732-1806
Lord Chancellor Loughborough.	1733-1805
Chief Justice Ellenborough.	1750-1818
Lord Chancellor Eldon.	1751-1838
Lord Chancellor Lyndhurst.	1772-1863
Lord Chancellor Campbell.	1779-1861
Lord Chancellor Cottenham.	1781-1851
Sir Frederick Pollock.	1783-1870
Chief Justice Cockburn.	1802-1880
Chief Justice Russell.	1832-1900

If the printers and binders do their parts well, this book will be a very handsome and effective brochure, worthy of respectful consideration from even the busiest counsel and the most eminent judges. It will not be for sale, but we shall be glad to send it without charge to

1. Anyone who owns ENGLISH RULING CASES or the FULL REPRINT OF ENGLISH REPORTS.
2. Anyone who will seriously consider the purchase of either of these sets.
3. Anyone who will send us a cash order for at least $10.00 worth of books mentioned in this number.

A Debt of Liberal Patronage.—We print (with blushes) the conclusion of a letter recently received from J. T. HOLMES of Columbus, O., as follows:—

"The lawyers of America owe your house a debt of gratitude (not to refer to the debt of liberal patronage) for those most attractive English and English-American law books—ENGLISH RULING CASES; the ENGLISH ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF LAW; MEWS' DIGEST OF ENGLISH LAW;—and, greatest of them all, the ANNOTATED REPRINT OF ENGLISH CASE LAW, now in progress of publication."

INTERESTING READING FOR LAWYERS.

No articles in THE GREEN BAG have ever attracted more attention and praise than the series by Van Vechten Veeder, entitled "A Century of English Judicature," which ran through the numbers of the year 1901-2. We are glad to be able to promise two more series of articles in THE GREEN BAG by Mr. Veeder during the coming year. He describes them thus in a recent letter:—

"One series will be called A CENTURY OF FEDERAL JUDICATURE. It will be a sketch of the justices of the Supreme Court of the United States along the lines of my former sketch of English Judicature. The case bibliography will be somewhat exhaustive. Marshall, Story, Taney, Curtis, Miller, Field, Bradley, and Gray will be fully treated. Washington, McLean, Grier, Nelson, Clifford, Wayne, Chase, Strong, Waite, and Blatchford will also receive due attention. Of the present justices I shall give only an exhaustive list of leading opinions.

"The other articles will be entitled THE JUDICIAL HISTORY OF INDIVIDUAL LIBERTY. It was suggested by Justice Miller's statement in Ex parte Bain, 121 U. S. 12, that in the construction of the language of the Constitution we should place ourselves as nearly as possible in the condition of the framers of that instrument. Referring to Article V. of the Constitution he said that the framers had undoubtedly been for a long time absorbed in considering the arbitrary encroachments of the crown on the liberty of the subject, and were imbued with the necessity of providing proper safeguards for the future. The article will therefore illustrate the encroachments which the framers had in mind in formulating their doctrine of individual liberty, by systematic examination of the English State Trials for treason, conspiracy, sedition, and criminal libel, &c. The subject will be treated in three divisions: from Tudor times to the English Revolution; from the Revolution to the adoption of the United States Constitution; and, as illustrating what the founders succeeded in avoiding, from 1789 to present times."

NEW LAW BOOKS.

We shall publish in October the following books:—

Conflict of Laws.—CASES ON THE CONFLICT OF LAWS, by PROF. J. H. BEALE, JR., of the Harvard Law School (who is to be Dean of the new Law School of the University of Chicago). 3 vols., half sheep, $10.50 net. This is an excellent collection, giving about 400 common-law cases, and also 75 cases from European countries, Egypt, and South Africa. About 1500 other American, English, and Canadian cases are cited in the notes, besides a large number of foreign decisions. This appears to be a much larger collection of authorities than are cited in any previous book. As in other Harvard case-books, no head-notes are printed with the cases, but the "Summary" of about 50 pages is an excellent guide to their use. (See Contents, etc., on p. 10.)

International Law.—Prof. James B. Scott of the University of Illinois started several months ago to prepare a new edition of SNOW'S CASES ON INTERNATIONAL LAW. He has developed so much new matter, however, and made such changes, that we have decided to call the work SCOTT'S CASES ON INTERNATIONAL LAW, FOUNDED ON SNOW. His principal improvement has been in substituting decisions of the courts, in instances where DR. SNOW gave dicta from text-books or other sources,—thus stating and supporting every proposition in the words of the judges. We hope to publish this important work about October 15th. The volume will be larger than its predecessor—will be bound in cloth,—and will sell at the same price, $3.50 net.

Admiralty.—We have imported a limited edition of the THIRD EDITION of WILLIAMS AND BRUCE'S JURISDICTION AND PRACTICE OF THE ENGLISH COURTS OF ADMIRALTY; revised by Hon. Mr. Justice Gainsford Bruce, and C. F. Jemmett, B.C.L.—in one volume, bound in half-calf, to sell for $9.00 net. As our American literature of Admiralty is meagre, this new edition will interest all practitioners in that branch of the law.

English Statutes.—CHITTY'S STATUTES OF PRACTICAL UTILITY—a set of 13 volumes—was published in 1894. Annual supplements have been issued, but the multiplication of thin volumes is so irritating that owners of the set will be glad to get the CONSOLIDATED SUPPLEMENT, 1895 TO 1901, which we have just issued in one volume, sheep, price $10.00 net.

Completion of Ruling Cases.—As announced elsewhere in this number, we have completed ENGLISH RULING CASES WITH AMERICAN NOTES by the publication of a twenty-sixth volume containing an Index and Tables of Cases, prepared by Richard Manson and revised for American use by John M. Gould (author of Gould on Waters, etc.). This is bound in sheep, uniformly with the set, and sells for $5.50 net.

We are sorry to say that YOUNG AND KEEN'S CASES ON PLEADING (intended as a companion volume to MARTIN'S COMMON LAW PROCEDURE AND PLEADING) and CHAMBERLAYNE'S American edition on WILLS ON CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE are not yet ready. We hope to announce their publication in the January number of LEG. BIB.

We would remind readers who are making full purchases, of the THIRD EDITION OF WOOD ON LIMITATIONS, recently issued in one volume ($6.50 net), with revision and notes by JOHN M. GOULD, and MACLENNAN ON INTERPLEADER ($5.00 net), a Canadian work citing American cases.

We again explain that the additional label on the back of RAWLE'S BOUVIER, lettered "A CONCISE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF THE LAW," does not indicate any further changes in the contents of the work, but is only intended to call more prominent attention to the encyclopædic features of this most useful work.

INTERNATIONAL LAW.

Although International Law has been repeatedly declared by English and American courts to be part of the Municipal Law of their respective countries (Barbuit's case, 1737, before Lord Talbot; Triquet v. Bath, 1764, 3 Bur., 1478, before Lord Mansfield; The Scotia, 1871, 7 Wall., 170; The Paquette Habana, 1899, 175 U. S. 677), writers on International Law have usually contented themselves with a theoretical treatment, citing, more or less aptly, cases (in the footnotes), provisions of treaties, opinions of diplomats and text-book writers. But the views of text-book writers are not law, and as Mr. Justice Gray said in The Paquette Habana, "Such works are resorted to by judicial tribunals, not for the speculations of their authors concerning what the law ought to be, but for trustworthy evidence of what the law really is." Or, as Lord Salisbury once said: "International Law depends generally on the prejudices of the writers of text-books."

If then, as Mr. Justice Gray maintains, "International Law is part of our law, and must be ascertained and administered by courts of justice of appropriate jurisdiction, as often as questions of right depending upon it are duly presented for their determination," it would seem high-time to treat International Law as a regular branch of Municipal Law, as it is passed upon by the courts, is made by the courts and is recorded in judicial reports.

PROF. JAMES B. SCOTT of the University of Illinois, in undertaking to prepare a new edition of SNOW'S CASES ON INTERNATIONAL LAW, endeavored to find adjudicated cases on all points treated by the author. His search was so successful that he determined to change the method of treatment to conform to this view of the subject. The new collection,—while founded on DR. SNOW'S excellent work, and using much of its material,—will be so much altered in substance and in treatment, that it will be published under PROF. SCOTT'S name.

Scott's Cases on International Law are wholly derived from adjudicated cases of English and American courts, and although text-books are not neglected, they are not cited in the text, but in notes. Opinions of diplomats and diplomatic incidents are likewise relegated to the foot-notes and the principles which the text-writers and diplomats sought to enforce are to be found in actual decisions of the courts, which are printed in the text. In this way the fundamental principles of International Law are derived from the decided cases.

As some subjects do not lend themselves so easily to this treatment, they are cited in the foot-notes under the appropriate case. Foreign cases are but sparingly cited in the notes, but in the syllabus prefixed to the book, references are given to foreign authorities in which these diplomatic incidents and foreign cases generally are amply discussed. The syllabus supplements the cases by specific references to English, American, French and German works of authority, and at the end of each section of the syllabus, references are given to articles in English, American and foreign journals.

Through this treatment fundamentals of the science may be learned from the decisions of the courts which form the text; while the syllabus will place the literature of the subject at the disposal of the reader so that the book will serve not only as a text-book but as a guide to further systematic study.

ILLUMINATION OF THE LAW.

A point of noticeable difference between the decisions of English and of American courts is that the latter are generally written by one judge, after discussion by the court in conference, and may be luminous or the reverse, according to the legal and literary ability of the writer; while in English cases it frequently happens that several judges express their opinions, agreeing as to conclusions, but differing as to reasons for the decision. Each judge in a straightforward, matter-of-fact way tells why he concurs. The result is much more many-sided, comprehensive, and suggestive than under our method.

Take, for instance, at random, the case of Ilott v. Wilkes, 25 English Ruling Cases 85, topic, "Tort." The "Rule" of law deduced from the cases by the editor (which is really a terse syllabus) is this: "Where a person for the protection of his property sets instruments which are dangerous to a trespasser, it seems that by common law the right of action of a trespasser who is hurt by such instruments depends on whether he has notice of their being there or not." After statement of the facts and argument of counsel, Abbott, Ch. J., gives his opinion at length, merely on ground of notice, that action cannot be maintained. Bayley, J., concurs, disclaiming any desire to encourage by his opinion the practice of placing spring-guns, with or without notice, but agreeing, so long as such practices are legal, that due notice precludes ground for action. Holroyd, J., concurs mainly on the ground that after notice the springing of the gun was the trespasser's own action for which the owner of the property could not be held liable. Best, J., also concurring, goes further than his colleagues and maintains that spring-guns are not only legal, but necessary, as means for preventing intrusions upon property and destruction of game. Here are four judges, agreeing as to their decision, but so arguing on the facts and the law as to bring up many different phases of the question involved.

In appeal cases before the House of Lords this characteristic becomes even more marked. In Cox v. Hickman, for instance, (19 E. R. C. 323, topic "Partnership") the Lord Chancellor put the following question to the judges: "Are the defendants in this case liable as acceptors of the bills of exchange declared upon?" Justice Blackburn, Baron Channell, Justice Crompton, Justice Williams, Justice Whitman and Chief Baron Pollock replied separately; and later Lord Campbell (Lord Chancellor), Lord Cranworth and Lord Wensleydale delivered separate opinions. Here are nine different opinions on the question whether an agreement to share profits necessarily constitutes a partnership.

This illuminating quality of English decisions gives them distinctive value apart from their weight as precedents.

A Literary as well as Legal Author.—JAMES SCHOUER, well known to lawyers as the author of standard treatises on WILLS, EXECUTORS, ETC., is equally well known to general readers through his interesting "History of the United States from the Adoption of the Constitution to the Close of the Civil War" (6 vols. cloth, $13.50). The critical "Nation" says of this work that there is "no narration of such ample historical scope," and John Fiske calls it "an excellent work, filling a place which no other book pretends to fill."

CYC—DIC.

To emphasize the fact that RAWLE'S REVISION OF BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY (2 vols., $12.00) is an encyclopædia as well as a dictionary, we added, on the back of each volume recently bound, a third label lettered, "A Concise Encyclopædia of the Law."

MR. RAWLE, in his preface says:—

"This work, as originally prepared in 1839, was more strictly a dictionary of the law. The edition of 1867 was prepared by many hands, and was somewhat of a legal encyclopædia as well as a law dictionary. The edition of 1883 added a large amount of new matter along both lines, but more particularly in the way of an encyclopædia. In the present edition it has been the editor's aim to make the work a complete dictionary of the law, and also to develop it still more fully on its encyclopædic side, extending very largely the lines on which the editions of 1867 and 1883 were based, and he has endeavored by re-arranging titles and by cross-references to unify and harmonize the whole.

"So far as the prescribed limits permit, the important topics of the law have been treated fully, especially those in which the law has shown marked development in the last fifteen years. The present edition contains over 4,000 new works and titles. The new topics (other than mere defined words) and those which have received new treatment number several hundred."

This increasingly encyclopædic character of its contents (together with its established reputation for fullness and accuracy) explains the hold which BOUVIER has on the profession, as the most valuable work in law literature.

TRADES ON BOUVIER.

RAWLE'S REVISION OF BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY is so far superior to previous editions (over a third of the matter is entirely new) that lawyers ought to get it—just as they get every new revision of their State Statutes. But many lawyers cling fondly to their old editions of Bouvier, and hesitate to pay $12.00 for RAWLE'S REVISION. They ought to give away the old books to young lawyers or students, and buy the latest authorities for their own practice.

But where they dislike to throw or give away the earlier editions, we will meet them half way by allowing as follows in part trade for old editions of BOUVIER, in good sound condition:—

Editions prior to 1867	we allow	$2.00,
" 1867 to 1882	"	3.00,
" 1883 or later	"	4.00,

making balance due us for RAWLE'S REVISION $10.00, $9.00 and $8.00 respectively, purchaser paying delivery of his book to us, and if he sends cash balance with orders we paying delivery charges of our book to him.

Price already raised.—We warned lawyers when the FULL REPRINT OF THE ENGLISH REPORTS was begun, that the only way to get any Separate Series was to subscribe before the series began. We were thus able to furnish the House Lords Series and the Privy Council at $7.50 per volume, to original subscribers. There are only a few of these two series left. We can supply them (for the present) at $10 per volume for the H. L. Series, and $8.50 for the P. C. The Chancery Series (Vol. 1 ready about Oct. 10) can still be subscribed for at $7.50 per volume.

A BREEZY PREFACE ON CASE LAW.

MR. MANSON'S Preface to the Index Volume (published this month) of ENGLISH RULING CASES, is rather more readable than the average Introductions to law books. We quote from it as follows:—

Matthew Green in his poem "The Spleen," written early in the Eighteenth Century, describes—

"Law grown a forest where perplex
The byeways and the brambles vex;
Where the twelve verderers* every day
Are changing still the public way.
And if we miss the way and err,
We grievous penalties incur;
And wanderers tire and tear their skin,
And then get out where they got in."

If this was so when Green lived, the description is much more true to-day, when case law and statute law have multiplied a hundred-fold,—when new provinces, such as mercantile law, insurance, company, and patent law, have been added to the common law, and when the Anglo-Saxon race has spread to all parts of the world. To this legal labyrinth there is but one clue—the clue of principle. "Legal principle," as Professor Jethro Brown well said in his address on the "Purpose and Method of a Law School" (Law Quarterly Review, Jan., 1902),—"legal principle is the thing of supreme importance and value." Led by this guide, from the "mists and errors and tempests of the vale below," to use Lord Bacon's words, we ascend the mountain of truth, and from its vantage ground can survey the whole domain of law lying mapped out at our feet. But knowledge of principle, this wide vision, how are we to attain to it? Professor Brown again gives us the answer, "The study of case law is the one way to know the law." This is his deliberate opinion, and it is shared by most of those who have thought the matter out. America has now, in large measure, made the study of decided cases the principal basis of instruction from the beginning of the course, and in matters of legal education America leads the way. What are the alternatives? There is the text-book—or its oral counterpart, the lecture. There is the digest. There is the moot. Undoubtedly a legal treatise may be instructive and illuminating to a high degree. So, too, to the practitioner on the track of cases, a digest is invaluable as collecting and arranging, in alphabetical, or some other intelligible order, "the codeless myriad of precedent." But in the text-book the law is too condensed for the immature student; in the digest, there is wanting the thread of principle to string together the loose units. The moot is merely an acted case. In the case law method of teaching, exemplified in "Ruling Cases," we have the advantages of the text-book and the digest combined, with something superadded. The law in cases is teaching by examples—the simplest way of all. Each leading or ruling case is an object-lesson, inculcating and illustrating just one principle of law. It is indeed for that very reason that it is chosen, because it sets forth this one principle most clearly and comprehensively, disengaged from any special circumstances. The student can thus concentrate his whole attention upon it. First, there are the facts, so far as material, which give rise to the claim, succinctly stated. Then the question of law is argued whether those facts disclose a legal right of action; and authorities are cited, one side by counsel affirming, the other side denying the right; and, if well argued, not only the rule, but the reason of the rule, is elicited and emphasized. Then the judge, as judicial arbitrator, declares the law after a critical appreciation of principle and precedent. In this way the leading principle on some branch of law is impressed indelibly on the mind, and it is helped often by an interesting "setting." It may be Lord Barnard's unroofing of Raby Castle to spite his heir, associated with the doctrine of equitable waste, or the romance of the young Englishman who married a Metabele girl with native ceremonies, or the perversity of the Six Carpenters who would not pay for their liquor.

When once we have clearly grasped such a ruling principle, we can easily go on and follow the various extensions of the principle, the exceptions and qualifications each again argued out and illustrated in a concrete case. But the best proof of the popularity and success of the method is its growing adoption. Thus, besides the classic works, Smith's Leading Cases in Common Law, and White and Tudor's Cases in Equity, many recent American or English Collections of Cases carry out this method of case-law-teaching systematically, applying it not fragmentarily to isolated portions of law, but comprehensively and completely to the whole field of American and English case law.

Incidentally, in these volumes, we come upon a bit of history or antiquarianism or some jeu d'esprit, showing all the brighter for a somber background. For instance, there is Sir George Rose's celebrated epitaph on Preston, the great conveyancer, wittily reproducing the various terms of art familiar to the lawyer:—

"Stern death hath cast into abeyance here
A most renowned conveyancer:
Then lightly on his head be laid
The sod that he so oft conveyed.
In certain faith and hope he sure is.
His soul, like a scintilla juris,
In nubibus expectant lies,
To raise a freehold in the skies."

In the volume dealing with Perpetuities, and the rule against them as affecting executory devises, occurs the case of Cadell v. Palmer. A literary interest attaches to this case, because it is identified, in the tradition of Chancery Bar, with the suit of Jarndyce v. Jarndyce, in Dickens's well-known description of the old Court of Chancery. "The only odd thing about the description," says Mr. Campbell, "is that the absurdity of the procedure is in no way exaggerated. Exaggeration would be impossible." . . .

In Volume XXIV., at p. 135, we find the masterly speech of Lord St. Leonards, in the House of Lords, in Egerton v. Brownlow, dealing with executed and executory limitations in a settlement and conditions against public policy. The subject is not a popular one, but what an intellectual feat they are, these twenty-six pages of closely reasoned argument! No wonder Lord St. Leonards was the pride of the English Bar, and that when he took his seat as Chancellor in 1852, in the old Hall of Lincoln's Inn, an unparalleled crowd assembled to honour him.

* The number of judges in Green's day was twelve.

LEGAL ANECDOTES.

[From a gossippy book by Cyrus Jay entitled, "The Law: What I have Seen; What I have Heard; What I have Known" (London, 1868), we make the following quotations.]

"Parts and poverty," said Lord Chancellor Talbot, "are the only things needed by the law student."

"Pray, my lord," asked a fashionable lady of Lord Kenyon, "what do you think my son had better do in order to succeed in the law?"—"Let him spend all his money; marry a rich wife and spend all hers;—and when he hasn't a shilling in the world, let him attack the law," was the advice of the old Chief Justice.

Mr. Dallas said in one of his speeches,—“Now we are advancing from the starlight of circumstantial evidence to the daylight of discovery; the sun of certainty has melted the darkness.” To which Curran retorted, “When a man cannot talk sense, he talks metaphor.”

Mr. Serjeant Best was the best counsel in dowager cases that could be employed. It was said of him that owing to his West-of-England countenance, his blue coat with brass buttons, and his general appearance, the jury believed every word he said. Mr. Tilson used shrewdly to say, “never employ a cunning parchment-looking barrister, for a jury will as a rule always think he is deceiving them.”

An old barrister was giving advice to his son who was just entering upon the practice of his father's profession. “My son,” said the counselor, “if you have a case where the law is clearly on your side, but justice seems to be clearly against you, urge upon the jury the vast importance of sustaining the law. If, on the other hand, you are in doubt about the law, but your client's case is founded on justice, insist on the necessity of doing justice, though the heavens fall.” “But,” answered the son, “how shall I manage a case where both law and justice are dead against me?” “In that case,” replied the old man, “talk round it!”

I recollect Serjeant Manning, a very nervous man, arguing a case before the judges of the Common Pleas. He had a large number of books before him, almost sufficient to constitute a library. While he was reading the report of a case, a number of the volumes tumbled off the table. He said, “My lords, it is reported in two other books in these exact words.” Mr. Justice Maule asked, “Are you sure it is exactly the same?” “Certain, my lord.” Whereupon Maule replied, “Why hunt for the other books? Read the same case twice more out of the one you have in your hand.”

The fault of the present day is, that the majority of barristers think more of fees than of law. Formerly it was all law, and the fees were left to Providence. I once heard an old counsel say that there were three stages in a barrister's life. When he is first called to the bar, and full of spirits and ambition, he cares for nothing but the brief. In the second stage, when he has got a great deal of practice and is well-known to the profession, he cares for both briefs and fees. The third stage, when he has become Q. C., acquired a great reputation, and made a large fortune, he cares only for the fees, and nothing for the briefs—the sight of them makes him almost sick.

The late Lord Ellenborough was an excellent judge, and looked well on the bench. I recollect him sitting on the old court of Q. B.,—the counsel who argued before him being first-class men. Lord Brougham was then one of the juniors behind the bar. I remember on one occasion Brougham pronounced a word improperly; Lord Ellenborough alluded to it, and Brougham said, “That is the way Walker pronounces it.” Lord Ellenborough replied, “Who's Walker?”

When a witness was perjuring himself in every sentence he uttered, Lord Ellenborough said to him, “You fellow! your swearing is a waste of wickedness!”

As a speaker of the House of Lords, Thurlow was distinguished for the dignity with which he enforced the rules of debate. Upon one occasion he called the Duke of Grafton to order, who, incensed at the interruption, insolently reproached the Chancellor with his plebeian origin and recent admission into the peerage. Previous to this time, Thurlow had spoken so frequently that he was listened to by the House with visible impatience. When the Duke had concluded his speech, Thurlow rose from the woolsack, and advanced slowly to the place from whence the Chancellor generally addresses the House; then fixing upon the Duke the look of Jove when he grasps the thunder, “I am amazed,” he said, in a level tone of voice, “I am amazed at his grace's speech. The noble Duke cannot look before him, behind him, or on either side of him, without seeing some noble peer who owes his seat in this House to his successful exertions in the profession to which I belong. Does he not feel that it is as honourable to owe it to these, as to being the accident of an accident? To all these noble lords the language of the noble Duke is as applicable and insulting as it is to myself. But I do not fear to meet it single and alone. No one venerates the peerage more than I do; but, my lords, I must say the peerage solicited me, not I the peerage. Say more, I can say and will say, that as a Peer of Parliament, as Speaker of this right honourable House, as Keeper of the Great Seal, as Guardian of his Majesty's conscience, as Lord High Chancellor of England, nay, even in that character alone in which the Duke would think it an affront to be considered, but which none can deny me,—as a man,—I am at this moment as respectable—I beg leave to add, I am at this moment as much respected—as the proudest peer I now look down upon. “The effect of this speech,” says Mr. Butler, “both within the walls of Parliament and without them, was prodigious. It gave Lord Thurlow an ascendancy in the House which no Chancellor had ever possessed; it invested him in public opinion with a character of independence and honour; and this, although he was ever on the unpopular side of politics, made him always popular with the people.”

CATALOGUE OF TEXT-BOOKS.

CONFLICT OF LAWS.

[We give below the Preface and Table of Cases of PROF. BEALE'S CASES ON THE CONFLICT OF LAWS, mentioned on p. 2.]

The topic of the Common Law upon which Judge Story has imposed the title, The Conflict of Laws, consists of four parts, different in origin, though closely related to one another in their practical application. The Conflict of Laws is first concerned with the jurisdiction of states,—the extent of their legislative and judicial power, and of the obligation and right of individuals to obey and to take advantage of the legislation of one or another State. These are questions of international law, which should properly be decided in every country in the same way. The topic is next concerned with the creation of legal rights and obligations, as a result of the sovereign action of some state; often an international matter, though the questions involved are rather questions of foreign fact than of law. The next concern of this branch of the law is the recognition and enforcement within one state of rights and obligations which have been created in another state; a question not in any sense international, but to be determined in accordance with the municipal law of the state concerned. Finally, there remains to determine the legal process by which, if at all, the foreign right shall be enforced; also obviously a municipal question.

But though the doctrines which make up the topic, The Conflict of Laws, are of various origin, they all form part of the Common Law of England, and have been adopted as such in the states of the American Union; they are law with us, not because they arose in international comity and usage or in municipal practice, but because they are acted upon in our courts. The name, Private International Law, sometimes applied to the whole topic, is therefore inadequate and misleading.

This collection of cases is the result of seven years' experience in teaching the Conflict of Laws. The arrangement of the subject may be open to logical objections; but there seemed to be sufficient practical reason for the order adopted. Most of the cases here printed were decided in the English and American courts; but valuable cases in the British Colonial courts have also been printed. In these colonies, as in the United States, the principles of the Conflict of Laws are of especial importance, since in them business transactions are seldom confined within state or colonial lines.

Several foreign cases will be found in the collection. So far as the rules of law illustrated by them have their origin in international law, these cases may well be regarded as having persuasive authority in our own courts; cases involving, for instance, the limits of national jurisdiction the validity of a foreign marriage, and the existence generally of foreign-acquired rights. On such questions the views of foreign courts should be carefully considered. It is unnecessary to point out to one familiar with the principles of the Common Law that greater weight should be given to the opinions of foreign courts, delivered in the course of actual litigation, than to the academical speculations of even the ablest authors, when not based on the authority of decided cases. On such questions as the effect, according to our own law, of the existence of a foreign-acquired right, where the problem, as has been pointed out, is one of purely municipal law, the views of foreign courts, administering a different system of law, are of absolutely no weight as authority. Where decisions of this nature have been included, the purpose has been to illustrate and emphasize the difference between the doctrines prevailing in the modern civil law and in our own law.

BRAMWELL ON PICKETING.

The following extract, from one of Baron Bramwell's speeches in Parliament, is interesting reading just now. We quote from 367-369 of Fairfield's "Memoir of Lord Bramwell. [1 vol. Cloth. London, 1898. $2.50.]

"I wish to say a few words to your lordships upon this subject, more to lament the existence of what I believe to be a very great evil and mischief than to suggest a remedy for it. I have always said and held that by the Common Law of the land there is nothing unlawful in a trade union. And now there is nothing unlawful in it by statute. I have said the same thing of strikes; they are not unlawful, and they are not even without, in many cases, great justification. I see nothing immoral in them where the only object is to raise the wages of the strikers, and, as you have heard, I have said and do say, there is nothing unlawful in picketing provided that it is lawfully practised. But that is what it never is. I do not know the particulars of the Scotch strike or of the Scotch picketing, but I do not see how your lordships should reasonably have been led into a discussion whether it was a laudable strike and laudable picketing or not, because some of that picketing of which we have heard could not have been lawful under any provocation. If the men received any provocation, about which I express no opinion, the remedy was not to break the heads of those who did not choose to join them, or throw stones at engines and demolish stations. Their remedy was a different one. If the picketers had only done what they pretend and nothing more, that is to say, if they had merely met their fellow-workmen in a friendly way and asked them to join, with nothing but a kind of persuasiveness in their manner, nobody could have objected to it; they would have a perfect right to propagate their own opinions, and try to get persons to ally themselves with them. But that picketing would not pay; it would not be worth the trouble to picket in that way. The picketing must be of such a character as to inspire terror. That is the object of picketing, and it is attained tolerably well in many cases. I tried twenty years ago a picket case in connection with a tailors' strike, which was for no other reason than an increase of wages. They would, I dare say, have said that they had picketed in the mildest possible way. Mr. Hardinge Giffard, Q.C., defended one of the picketers, and he will be able to tell your lordships whether I am exaggerating. The men who had not joined in the strike were in such terror of these pickets that they did not dare to take their work home to the master tailors; they got their wives to do it in many cases, and it was pitiable to see the women in the witness-box—they were in the greatest possible terror, and described the treatment they had met with to be of such a character that it was not surprising they were in that condition of alarm in which they exhibited themselves. It matters not that there is no blow given—though I believe there are few cases of extensive picketing in which there is no blow given; if the conduct of the pickets were such as to excite terror in the minds of those picketed, and to deter them from doing their lawful work, I say it is an intolerable wrong and mischief both to the men who desire to work and to the community. I do not know what the remedy for this is. You could not put down trade unions if you would, and I for one would not; on the contrary, I take the liberty of saying before your lordships what I have said before in open court: if I were a working-man, I should be a unionist. I think that trades unions are useful institutions, and I would strike for good cause. You cannot get rid either of trades unions or of strikes. You have got now an excellent law against unreasonable intimidation—if one may use such an expression—if we can suppose there ever was any reasonable intimidation; the difficulty is in reaching the offenders and protecting those persons who are injured and oppressed by it, and the only thing that I can suggest as a remedy for what I believe to be a most serious mischief is that the law should be enforced, and people taught that they could not safely break it."

CHEAP ENGLISH REPORTS.

For persons who can not afford the FULL VERBATIM ANNOTATED REPRINT, or who already have partial lots of English Reports, we can temporarily offer cheaper bargains than have ever before been offered or than will later be obtainable. This is due to the partial sets thrown upon the market by the FULL REPRINT and perfected from our stock. THE NEW A. B. A. PRESIDENT.

The American Bar Association, at the recent annual meeting, elected FRANCIS RAWLE as its President for the ensuing year. This distinction is a recognition, not only of MR. RAWLE's long and faithful service as Treasurer of the Association but also of his eminence in his profession. In the East he is well-known as a leader of the Philadelphia bar, but in other sections his fame rests more securely on the excellent work he has done in the last edition of BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY, which bears such evident marks of his personal labors that it is generally known as "RAWLE'S BOUVIER."

It is a notable though very natural fact, that very little legal authorship or editing comes from successful practitioners. The great lawyers find their time so entirely absorbed by professional duties that they get no time for literary work. It is a distinct advantage to law literature when such an eminent counsel as MR. RAWLE embodies in a law book his ripe judgment and experience.

THE OPEN SESAME.

It has now become a universally recognized fact that those libraries or individuals possessing either the ENGLISH RULING CASES or the FULL VERBATIM AN-NOTATED ENGLISH REPRINT have a most satisfactory and serviceable English library in the best and most convenient form.

In only one particular can either of these sets be improved upon,—and that is by also having MEWS' COM-PLETE ENGLISH DIGEST. It is a complete and ready key to the original paging preserved in the FULL REPRINT, starting one immediately upon the whole line of investigation wanted, and because of its completeness will serve temporarily, while the REPRINT is being published, as a very satisfactory substitute for many of the less important decisions that would otherwise have to be investigated elsewhere. With the ENGLISH RULING CASES it will,
for the same reason, serve as a most excellent substitute for the less important decisions, which are omitted because of their unimportance, but which when occasionally cited the careful worker might otherwise wish to investigate before ignoring.

MEWS' COMPLETE ENGLISH DIGEST in 16 volumes covers from Magna Charta to 1898, regularly selling for $96. Recent arrangements enable us to offer a limited number of sets only to REPRINT or RULING CASES subscribers at special price.

Completing a Volume.—The next (January) number of LEG. BIB., besides containing the usual consolidated subject-index to all the American and English textbooks of the year 1902, will complete a volume. We shall then have a few copies of 1 LEG. BIB. N. S., bound in boards for $1.50 each, to spare for first-comers.

The best work of its kind.—Miller, J., in Kring v. Mo. 10; U. S. 231.

Bouvier's Law Dictionary.

FRANCIS RAWLE'S REVISION.

2 Vols.. 2400 Large Double-column Pages.

$12.00 net, or $13.00 delivered.

COMBINES IN ONE WORK

AN ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF LAW: Concise but thorough articles on all topics, citing the leading and the latest cases.

A JUDICIAL DEFINITION OF WORDS AND PHRASES.

A DICTIONARY OF LEGAL TERMS AND PHRASES; including Common, Civil, Canon, Feudal and Foreign Laws.

A GLOSSARY OF LAW LATIN AND LAW FRENCH.

INFORMATION AS TO LOCAL COURTS AND STATUTES.

AN ENCYCLOPÆDIA RATHER THAN A DICTIONARY. Although called a Dictionary, Rawle's Bouvier might well be called an Encyclopædia of the Whole Law,—for in addition to definitions, translations, and such dictionary features, it contains concise, but clear and thorough, monographs on all legal topics. This quality is what makes it so useful in study, in office work, and in court.

THE CORNER STONE OF A LAWYER'S LIBRARY. As the foremost of legal standards Bouvier's Law Dictionary has had a hold on two generations, and although the last ten years have produced other dictionaries and encyclopædias of law, Bouvier still holds the first place in the esteem of the American Bar, and is the foundation of a lawyer's library, whatever and wherever his practice may be. With Bouvier's Law Dictionary and a dozen good volumes on Evidence, Contracts, Real Property, Wills, etc., the young lawyer is well equipped to begin practice. To Bouvier's Law Dictionary the experienced leader of the bar turns first, when he is confronted with any puzzling question of principle or practice.

AN AMERICAN STANDARD. These facts need no corroboration here. Older lawyers know them: young lawyers and students can test them by asking any judge or practitioner who knows what good law books are. The reason of this permanent popularity is easily understood. Judge Bouvier's original edition, published in 1839, was a thorough adaptation to American needs of all that is best in the English law dictionaries, with such additions as the peculiarities of our State and Federal law required. Since the author's death each successive edition has improved on its predecessor and has been brought always up-to-date.

THE PRESENT EDITOR. A new edition being again required, the work is fortunate in its editor, Francis Rawle, Esq., one of the leaders of the Philadelphia bar (president of the American Bar Association, for 1902-3). Coming of a renowned family of lawyers, he is himself exceptionally equipped for the task by taste, education, ability, and years of varied practice.

ONE-THIRD ENTIRELY NEW MATTER. Notwithstanding the permanent character of the work, which requires the retention of much of the matter of early editions, the development of our law has been so great that the new matter of this edition comprises about one-third of the whole work. In this new matter the editor has especially developed the features pertaining to those modern phases of our civilization most interesting to the legal profession.

NEW TOPICS AND NEW TREATMENT. As instances of new or enlarged treatment we may mention the following topics:—

Amicus Curiae,—Australian Ballot,—Bicycle,—Boycott,—Car Trust Securities,—Clearing House.—Code—Common Law,—Commerce,—Commercial Agencies,—Consideration,—Constitutional Law (various topics),—Contractual Obligation,—Copyright,—Corporation Rates,—Corporations (Foreign,—Corporations Reorganization).—Corporations (various topics).—Debenture.—Divorce.—Domicil.—Election (Corporate, Popular, Equitable Doctrine, Modern Ballot Laws).—Electric Light,—Eminent Domain.—Extradition (Foreign and Interstate).—Federal Questions,—Fences.—Fires (General. Locomotives).—Flag (Law of the).—Foreign Judgment,—Goodwill.—Habeas Corpus,—Injunction.—International Law.—Interstate Commerce Commission,—Irrigation.—Labor Law (and Unions).—Master and Servant.—Mortgage (and Foreclosure).—Mortuary Law.—Navigation.—Police Power.—Powers (Executive. Judicial. Legislative).—Privacy (Law of).—Railroads.—Railway Relief.—Rolling Stock.—Sleeping Cars.—Street Railways.—Telegraph.—Telephone.—United States Courts.

COMPLETELY SUPERSEDING FORMER EDITIONS. These improvements are so many and so radical, that Rawle's Revision is like a new statement of the law. It is as dangerous now for a lawyer to depend upon former editions of Bouvier as it would be to use an old volume of Statutes after a new Revision has been issued.

FOR JUDGES OR TRIAL JUSTICES—Rawle's Bouvier will serve as a court room manual of the whole law.

FOR LEADERS AT THE BAR—Rawle's Bouvier will serve as a ready-reference reminder of the law.

FOR YOUNG LAWYERS—Rawle's Bouvier will serve as the foundation of a law library—the reservoir of advice to clients.

FOR LAW STUDENTS—Rawle's Bouvier will cover three times as much ground as any other law dictionary, and will be more useful in later years of practice.

To get RAWLE'S REVISION OF BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY send $12.00 if you pay express charges, or $13.00 if you want express charges to be prepaid.

JANUARY, 1903.

PORTRAITS OF GREAT ENGLISH JUDGES.

We have issued a handsome circular of forty pages, bound in cloth inlaid with small portraits, and containing fifteen full page half-tone portraits of famous judges. The letter-press of the circular contains complete information in regard to English Ruling Cases with American Notes, and is intended to advertise that series, which has just been completed by the publication of a twenty-sixth volume containing a Subject Index and Tables of English and American cases reported in full or cited in the notes.

The judges whose portraits are given are:

Sir Edward Coke.	1552-1633
Sir Matthew Hale.	1609-1676
Lord Chancellor Hardwicke.	1690-1764
Chief Justice Mansfield.	1704-1793
Sir William Blackstone.	1723-1780
Lord Chancellor Thurlow.	1732-1806
Lord Chancellor Loughborough.	1733-1805
Chief Justice Ellenborough.	1750-1818
Lord Chancellor Eldon.	1751-1838
Lord Chancellor Lyndhurst.	1772-1863
Lord Chancellor Campbell.	1779-1861
Lord Chancellor Cottenham.	1781-1851
Sir Frederick Pollock.	1783-1870
Chief Justice Cockburn.	1802-1880
Chief Justice Russell.	1832-1900

This book is a handsome and effective brochure, worthy of respectful consideration from even the busiest counsel or the most eminent judge. It will not be for sale, but we shall be glad to send it without charge to

1. Any one who owns ENGLISH RULING CASES or the FULL REPRINT OF ENGLISH REPORTS.
2. Any one who will seriously consider the purchase of either of these sets.
3. Any one who will send us a cash order for at least $10.00 worth of books mentioned in this number.
4. Any one who sends us a subscription to THE GREEN BAG.

LIBRARY SUPPLEMENT FREE.

As most of our readers are not particularly interested in the latest volumes of American, English, and British Colonial Reports, Digests, Statutes, Periodicals, and Local Books, we have printed the lists containing this bibliographical information for the year 1902 in a Separate Supplement, not mailed with our regular edition of 15 Leg. Bib.

To librarians, owners of large private libraries, or any other lawyers interested in this Supplement, we will take pleasure in mailing it without charge, on application.

BOUND SETS OF GREEN BAG.

In view of the small number of available sets of the "Reprint Edition" of THE GREEN BAG, we raise the price of vols. 1 to 14 (bound in green half cloth) to $3.00 per volume, — or $42.00 for the set. When we make a further change, it will probably be to bind only in half morocco, and raise the price to its former figure, $5.00 per volume, or $70.00 per set.

RARE BOOK LIST FREE.

There are not many lawyers who have money to spend on any books except what they absolutely need in practice. Of the small class who have an available margin of income for luxuries, not all have literary or antiquarian tastes. But there are a few lucky ones who have a fondness for rare old books, together with a pocket book deep enough to take them in. For these choice bibliophiles we have just published a list of QUAINT AND INTERESTING LAW BOOKS, which we shall be glad to send free of charge to any applicant.

This list is arranged by subjects, and contains all kinds of quaint books at all kinds of prices—from Brunner's Sources of the Law of England, at $1.00, to Statham's Abridgment at $250.00. There are copies of the other old classics—Fitzherbert's and Brooke's Abridgments, Bracton, Britton, Glanville, Horne's Mirror of Justices. There are oddities like "Quibbles of the Law" and "Women's Law." There are books in English, Scotch, Irish, French, German, Spanish, Latin, Greek, Arabic, and so on to "Maori." There are biographies and books of humorous extracts,—philosophical law books and utterly foolish law books. In short, there are books for all cultivated tastes and all eccentric fads.

If you ever buy such books for yourself—or if you want to make a timely present to some bookish friend, send for our list and get your choice before the other fellows buy us out.

THE GREEN BAG:—AN IDYL.

Across the shelf by my desk at home, close to my elbow, stand the dark green volumes of THE GREEN BAG. Not in red morocco,—ah no!—that sumptuous binding is far too costly for a young practitioner who has wife and babies to support. The solid cloth binding of the "Reprint Edition" is good enough for any one not counsel to a Trust. For is not the inside—the heart and soul of the set—the same in either garb? The smooth paper, the fair page, the readable type, the excellent illustrations, the varied and alluring contents,—all these my slender income can command.

"The binding 's but the guinea's stamp,
The Bag 's the gowd for a' that!"

I have an idle or a lazy moment—I want my mind to unbend from its strain of legal thought; I seize at random a volume from the set. Perhaps I chance upon a description of my law school, with the kindly faces of the old professors looking out from the page; perhaps I open at an article on the State court whose decisions I have just been mulling over; perchance I dip into a gossippy biographical sketch of some old legal worthy—some half-forgotten leader of the bar—some great judge. Or, here is a famous trial reviewed; the courts or legal processes of another age or another country described; an antiquity or an eccentricity of our own law amusingly discussed. Sometimes, when my mind is (or I want it to be) utterly empty, I just turn the pages and look over the legal portraits,—a picture gallery of the strong intellectual faces of the English and American Bench and Bar—yielding in themselves companionship, recreation, stimulus, and enthusiasm. Or, again, needing spur to my spirits, I dip in among the anecdotes and jokes, or laugh softly over such humorous verses as "Legal Maxims" (1 G. B. 39):

"Oh Themis, goddess of the law, to whom we bow the knee!
Thy precepts and thy maxims we study faithfully.
We con them o'er with reverend care,
But still, I must submit,
That in the practice of the law
They sometimes fail to hit.

"Non dormientibus leges subveniunt," I read,
And got this fine old maxim well planted in my head:
But soon I learned it had been held
All in the Mass. Report
That passengers in sleeping-car
Could action bring in tort.

"De minimis non curat lex," I read in many a book,
So with ideas well enlarged, for mighty things I'd look,
But when for ten cents suit was brought
For shirking fare in car,
I thought our dear old Mother Lex
Amavit minima!

"Within a Court of Equity with clean hands one must come,"
A rule which should apply to all, but only does to some;—
For oft, on gazing round the Bar,
I've seen most awful 'paws,'
Whose owners still got Equity,
Its remedies and laws.

"Wherever marriage is, in truth, a dowry you will find,"
In early youth this pretty phrase full greatly pleased my mind;
But some time after knot was tied
I looked her assets o'er,
And found my wife had quite forgot
This little form of law."

CHORUS. "But desperandum nil! Oh, desperandum nil!
Tramp bravely on, my brothers, in the grand old legal mill."

And so, for every mood of leisure, or fatigue, or low-spirits, I find in these volumes of THE GREEN BAG something to revive, to refresh, to rest, or to recreate me. They furnish countless vacations to my days of labor.

SAMUEL SLOPER, Atty. at Law.

CONTENTS OF THE GREEN BAG.

To enable our readers to realize what an instructive and entertaining variety of matter THE GREEN BAG gives to its subscribers, we give below its principal contents for the last three months, and for the coming month.

OCTOBER, 1902.—Aaron Burr as a Lawyer (with portrait); The Control of Trusts; A Question of Law (verse); Landmarks of Chinese Law; Lawsuits Against Animals; The Library of the Middle Temple (illustrated); A Fight for Primitive Rights; Lord Bowen; A Lawyer's Studies in Biblical Law.

NOVEMBER, 1902.—John W. Cary (with portrait); The Coal Mines and the Law; Ancient Reflected through Modern (verse); The American Bastille; The System of Mezzadria; The Barrister's Shakespeare; The Judicial System of France (illustrated); Was a Good Witness Himself; A Question of Jurisdiction; Legal Ditties (verse).

DECEMBER, 1902.—Chief Justice Taney (with portrait); Qualifications (verse); A Word More as to the Coal Mines; Some Peculiar Laws; Doctrina Placitandi (illustrated); A Posthumous Work of Lord Coke; A Grave Problem; Early English Procedure; The Woolsack and Woolens; A Question of Disputed Guardianship; The Final Trial of the Sifton Murder Case; Gilbertian Lawyers; English Prison Rules, and Remission of Sentences.

JANUARY, 1903.—The January number will have a leading article on Mr. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. Besides giving a biographical sketch, the author discusses Judge Holmes's general theory of the law, considers the influence of some of his decisions on the Law of Torts, and reviews many of his more important decisions on other topics. Louis D. Brandeis, of Boston, will have an article advocating the Incorporation of Labor Unions; Chas. F. Beach, Jr., discusses French Law and the French Judicial System; and the first instalment will be given of Van Vechten Veeder's "Century of Federal Judicature." In addition, there will be bright and readable short articles, and the usual editorial matter.

PRICE AND TERMS.—The price of a single number of THE GREEN BAG is fifty cents. The annual subscription price is $4.00. A bound set, fourteen volumes, costs $70.00, in half morocco, or (until the reprint edition is exhausted) $42.00, in half cloth.

Why not try the G. B. for a year?

BOUND VOL. 1. LEG. BIB. N. S.

With this number we will close Volume One of the New Series of LEGAL BIBLIOGRAPHY. We can make up a few complete sets (Nos. 1 to 15), which we will sell, bound in half sheep, for $2.00 per copy.

No. 1 was issued in November, 1894; No. 2 in November, 1898; No. 3 in January, 1900. Since then LEG. BIB. has been issued quarterly. Each number contains lists of the new books of the preceding quarter, with other information about law books. Each January number contains a subject-index to books published during the preceding year.

This bound volume, therefore, gives a contemporaneous record of American and English law literature for the years 1900, 1901, and 1902, together with occasional bibliographical articles.

GOOD WORDS FOR E. R. C.

Since publishing our illustrated booklet about ENGLISH RULING CASES, we have received the following additional commendations of the set.

Here is commendation from a judge of the United States District Court.

I have your favor of Sept. 6th announcing that the general index and table of cases to the "English Ruling Cases" set will be published and ready about Oct. 1st.

I am delighted to have this information. I have been in constant use of the set even without the advantage of the general index and table of cases, and it is needless to say that the general index and table of cases will bring out at once the full value of this excellent collection of cases. It has been of great service to me in the use of the volumes as they have come out without the index, and of course I now expect far better results.

The value of a selection of English leading cases will be recognized at once on all hands, provided the persons making the selection of cases and charged with the duty of annotations are well qualified for such a task, and these points have undoubtedly been well met in the set of "Ruling Cases" which you now complete by the index volume.

The addition of the American notes gives to the set the practical value which would have been obtained if the set had been originally a collection of both American and English leading cases; and I am glad to say, as a result of extended practical use of the set, its value can hardly be over-estimated. In placing a practical value on a set like this we must bear in mind that much the greater number of practitioners at the bar are not in a situation to have the advantage of a full reprint of the English reports on account of one obstacle and another, and this situation is quite satisfactorily met in a judiciously selected set of leading cases after the plan and arrangement of the "Ruling Cases" series. By examination of the extent to which the cases selected for this series have been cited and followed in courts of last resort in this country, both state and federal, the importance of the set is at once made apparent.

In both the English and American notes the cases, like the principal cases in the series, are well selected and well arranged and constitute leading cases, undoubtedly, upon the several subjects under which they are collated.

I am glad that I can congratulate you on the completion of this useful work, and in placing before the profession at a moderate price a set of cases fully annotated, which has long been needed and which will continue to be appreciated the more the set is used from year to year.

Yours truly,

HON. C. D. CLARK,
U. S. District Judge, Chattanooga, Tenn.

This sounds like the sincere commendation of a busy lawyer.

I have found E. R. C. a practical set.

JOHN KIVEL, Dover, N. H.

This, from a leading lawyer of Portland, Maine.

I have been a subscriber to the edition of "English Ruling Cases" with English and American notes, bearing the imprint of the Boston Book Co., and have had occasion to examine them with some care. The result of the examination has given me a very favorable opinion of their value. I have found collections of selected cases with notes of great assistance to me in my practice and in this class of publications rate the "English Ruling Cases" high.

Of the value of English precedents in this country I suppose there is little difference of opinion; they are generally recognized as of weighty authority. The plan and arrangement of the series is good and the selection of the cases excellent, the statement of the principles of law made by the Editor under the name of "Rules" seems clear and accurate, and the English and American notes bring together many valuable authorities which save time for the busy lawyer.

For these and many other reasons I do not hesitate to recommend the purchase of the "English Ruling Cases" and remain

Very truly yours,

CHARLES F. LIBBY,
Portland, Maine.

Have you a student in your office?—If so, EWELL'S ESSENTIALS OF THE LAW (Vol. 1, Blackstone Abridged, sheep, $3.00, cloth, $2.50; Vol. 2, Pleading, Contracts, Equity, sheep, $2.50, cloth, $2.00; Vol. 3, Torts, Real Property, Evidence, sheep, $2.50, cloth, $2.00; or the 3 vols. together, sheep, $7.50, or cloth, $6.00) is an excellent book to put in his hands.

BACON'S LINES OF A GOOD JUDGE.

Legal Bibliography N. S. Number 12, published by the Boston Book Company, states that in an article on Sir William Blackstone, in Volume 1, American Jurist, twelve characteristics of the good Judge are found, and that, from the context, the editor cannot make out whether they are Blackstone's or Bacon's. He puts the innocent inquiry, "Can any reader tell us?"

The editor of the Reporter will answer, stating that the twelve characteristics are found in Lord Bacon's letter to Justice Hutton, in tendering him the place of one of the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas. Following is the letter, and it will be found in Bacon's works, by James Spedding, in Volume II. of the American edition of Montague's Bacon, and also in Volume III., p. 1197, of the Library of the "World's Best Literature":—

"Mr. Sergeant Hutton:

"The King's most excellent Majesty, being duly informed of your learning, integrity, discretion, experience, means and reputation in your country, hath thought fit not to leave you these talents to be employed upon yourself only, but to call you to serve himself and his people, in the place of one of his Justices of the Court of Common Pleas.

"The Court where you are to serve is the local center and heart of the laws of this realm. Here the subject hath his assurance by fines and recoveries. Here he hath his fixed and invariable remedies by precipes and writs of right. Here justice opens not by a by-gate of privilege, but by the great gate of the King's original writs out of the Chancery. Here issues process of outlawry; if men will not answer law in this center of law, they shall be cast out of the circle of law. And therefore it is proper for you by all means with your wisdom and fortitude to maintain the laws of the realm. Wherein, nevertheless, I would not have you headstrong, but heartstrong; and to weigh and remember with yourself, that the twelve Judges of the realm are as the twelve lions under Solomon's throne, they must be lions, but yet lions under the throne; they must show their stoutness in elevating and bearing up the throne.

"To represent unto you the lines and portraitures of a good Judge":—

[Here follow the "Lines of a good Judge," somewhat differently phrased but substantially the same as those printed on p. 4 of 12 Leg. Bib.]

CASES ON INTERNATIONAL LAW.

After many delays SCOTT'S CASES ON INTERNATIONAL LAW were published on December 22, in a thick royal octavo volume of lxvii and 961 pages (cloth binding, $3.50). Five years ago, this collection would have attracted little attention, but now that we have become a "world power," with international complications involving us in many places—a new one every month or so—the subject is regularly taught in college courses, and is studied, or dipped into, by statesmen, lawyers, and general readers.

NOTES.

The Corner-Stone. — A customer in Lancaster, Pa., writes: "BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY is the corner-stone of legal education, and should be in the hands of every practitioner and student in the law."

Bad Either Way. — Jeremiah Mason was in a case when the judge put a question to a witness that was of doubtful admissibility. Mason at once bluntly interfered, with this remark: — "If Your Honor puts the question for us, we don't want it; if you put it for the other side, I object!"

A Didactic Book-plate. — A book-plate in one of the second-hand volumes which has drifted into our stock reads thus:

"If thou art borrowed by a friend
Right welcome shall he be
To read, to study — not to lend
But to return to me;
Not that imparted knowledge doth
Diminish learning's store,
But books, I find, if often lent,
Return to me no more.

"Read slowly; pause frequently; think seriously; keep cleanly; return duly, with the corners of the leaves not turned down."

Chancery Series of the Full English Reprint. — Books 1 and 2 are now ready, and later volumes will follow, one each month. A few complete series are still available for separate subscription at $7.50 per book, the series to comprise Chancery Reports, 129 original vols. in 23.

Rolls Court, 39 vols. in 7 books.
Vice Chancellors, 71 vols. in 43.

The limited edition is so nearly exhausted, that this series must shortly be advanced, as are the already completed House of Lords (58 vols. in 11), and Privy Council Series (43 vols. in 9), which now sell respectively for $10.00 and $8.50 per book. Only a few complete sets of the entire Reprint (comprising about 1,000 original volumes in 150 books) remain open to subscription at former price of $6.00 per book, and this price is subject to advance, or the set to withdrawal from sale, without further notice. Special prices to libraries on request.

Typographical errors are amusing to readers, but provoking to authors. In a recent circular of SNOW'S CASES ON INTERNATIONAL LAW, which twice came under the eyes of the proof-readers, the publishers, and the author, we are humiliated to find an allusion to the "ar-biter dictum" of a distinguished judge."

Again, in reading proof of Triquet's Case (for the same work), the insertion of a comma after the word "illuminated" in this sentence — "This Act of Parliament was sent to the Czar, finely illuminated by an ambassador extraordinary," — promoted the ambassador from the clerical drudgery of illuminating a manuscript to the proper duties of his embassy.

Not strictly apropos, by the way, this remark of Lord Mansfield, in Triquet's Case, dryly sums up the situation in too many cases of the present day, — "The affidavits on the part of the defense have outsworn those on the part of the plaintiffs."

NEW CASES ON CRIMINAL LAW.

We are just publishing for Prof. WILLIAM E. MIKELL, of the Law Department of the University of Pennsylvania, PART I. of his CASES ON CRIMINAL LAW (cloth, $3.00 net).

The distinctive feature of this collection lies in the recognition of the brief time devoted to the subject in most law schools, and the inclusion, with the Law of Crimes, of such phases (only) of Procedure as are peculiar to certain crimes. The collection is thus brought within practicable limits.

Another striking feature is the stress laid upon historical development. When the law has remained unchanged, the author has used the earliest practicable case. Where it has undergone a gradual change, he gives cases showing the original doctrine and its developments. When the doctrine is still unsettled, he adds further some well-considered case, showing the probable tendency of the law.

PART I. covers topics as follows: — Sources of the Criminal Law; The Elements of Crime; The Criminal Intent; Negligence as Supplying Intent; Intent as Affected by Conditions; The Criminal Act; Combinations of Persons in Crime (Principal, Agent, Accessory).

PART II., to be published later, will contain cases and notes on the Common Law crimes and the most important Statutory crimes, including many subjects not covered in other collections, such as, False Imprisonment, Mayhem, and Adultery.

This collection of cases should be useful, not only in law schools, but also to lawyers engaged in criminal practice.

SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES.

Here are a few brief samples of the many commendations from subscribers to the FULL ENGLISH REPRINT after practical use: —

"Your Reprint is more serviceable than originals because of the annotations." — JUDGE J. G. JENKINS (U. S. C. C. A.), Chicago.

"A complete set, with the addition of valuable notes, which leaves nothing to be desired." — JUDGE GEORGE DURELLE (Ky. Court of Appeals).

"Reprinted in full and edition limited, the work will retain its commercial value." — SENECA HASELTON, Vt.

"No lawyer or law writer can afford to be without it." — W. L. CLARK, Brooklyn.

"Indispensable to every lawyer and jurist." — FRANCIS NEALL PARK, Md.

"Of the greatest practical benefit." — COULT & HOWELL, N. J.

"Should recommend every lawyer, able to do so, to invest." — W. A. BLOUNT, Fla.

"Superior to originals." — FARRAR, JONAS & KRUTTSCHNITT, New Orleans.

"What every good law office should contain." — C. W. BUNN (No. Pac. R. R.), St. Paul.

"Arrangement superb. Prefer the reprint to originals." — JESSE B. ROOT, Helena.

"One of the best things out." — JOHN T. CONDON, Seattle.

"The greatest single work in law literature." — THOMAS TAYLOR, JR., Chicago.

"Do not feel that I could afford to be without them." — JUDGE N. C. SEARS (Ill. Appel. Court).

"Greatly assist in knowing what law was and is." — W. M. BYRNE (U. S. Dist. Atty.), Del.

The limited edition is nearly exhausted, and persons interested should communicate with us at once.

Has any reader any other edition, or can he refer to places where other editions have been mentioned?

Is there in print any better bibliography of Blackstone than that in the preface to Hammond's edition?

Are there any other good bibliographies, either in notes, or prefaces, or magazine articles?

Is there any essay or magazine article summarizing the controversies which arose over the first edition?

Is there any essay comparing different editions?

What explanation is there of the duplication of the seventeenth and eighteenth editions?

MR. JUSTICE HOLMES.

On Dec. 3d the Middlesex Bar bade farewell to Chief Justice Holmes at a dinner, where the speeches—as at most bar dinners—excelled in wit, in sentiment, and in sense. We quote from the most serious part of the proceedings.

Judge Knowlton, who succeeds Judge Holmes as Chief Justice of Massachusetts, said:—

"You all have general knowledge of what Massachusetts will lose when the Chief Justice departs for Washington. His learning in the law, his philosophical insight which discerns the principles on which jurisprudence is founded, and the picturesque literary style in which his legal opinions are written, are familiar to all lawyers. I will not dwell upon that which is well known both in England and America. But the loss to us, his associates on the bench, is known to ourselves alone. His analytical power, which quickly discovers the vital points of a case, his force of argument in presenting his views, the wealth of judicial decision from the best sources with which he reinforces his positions, his readiness to comprehend the arguments of other judges, and his liberality in receiving and weighing them, have made his efforts in the consultation room invaluable to his associates.

"Add to these remarkable facility and untiring industry in writing opinions, and you can see how important a factor he has been in producing such results as the Court has reached. During the three years or more that he has been our Chief Justice, it has seemed to be the one great purpose of his life to make the decisions of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts the best exposition of law that it was possible to produce. That they have failed to reach his ideal is not for lack of anything he could do or furnish.

"Another phase of his companionship we shall miss more than I can tell. The play of inherited wit and imagination with which from time to time our prosaic work has been enlivened, has given frequent relief to our tired brains. As we have sat down to our task in the consultation room or have separated at the end of it, his sparkling pleasantries and good-natured railery have dispelled clouds and brought an invigorating atmosphere. Original conceptions clothed in brilliant language have flashed out among us like lightning from a summer cloud. But more important and more tenderly cherished in memory have been the uniform kindness and consideration shown to his associates in the complex and intimate relations that are incident to his official position. There is not one of our number that will not keep in mind special acts of favor in connection with a constant endeavor to deal justly and generously by all. While we rejoice in the honor that comes to him from his promotion, we shall feel our loss in his departure more than you can realize."

To the speeches of farewell, Judge Holmes responded as follows:—

"It is a good deal of a wrench to leave old friends, to leave the memorials of the dead, to leave all the associations of a whole life for an unknown new world. . . .

"At this moment the work of twenty years comes up for judgment, and that also is not without its sadness. You are the judges, and even you are more likely to take your views from the accident of your professional needs than from a consideration of any general aspect of a man's work.

"I have tried to see the law as an organic whole. I also have tried to see it as a reaction between tradition on the one side and the changing desires and needs of a community on the other. I have studied tradition in order that I might understand how it came to be what it is, and to estimate its worth with regard to our present needs; and my references to the Year Books often have had a sceptical end. I have considered the present tendencies and desires of society and have tried to realize that its different portions want different things, and that my business was to express not my personal wish, but the resultant, as nearly as I could guess, of the pressure of the past and the conflicting wills of the present. I have considered the social and economic postulates on which we frame the conception of our needs, and I have tried to see them in a dry light. It has seemed to me that certainty is an illusion, that we have few scientific data on which to affirm that one rule rather than another has the sanction of the universe, that we rarely could be sure that one tends more distinctly than its opposite to the survival and welfare of the society where it is practiced, and than the wisest are but blind guides.

"But we have a great body of law which has at least this sanction, that it exists. If one does not affirm that it is intrinsically better than a different body of principles which one could imagine, one can see an advantage which, if not the greatest, at least, is very great—that we know what it is. For this reason I am slow to assent to overruling a decision. Precisely my skepticism, my doubt as to the absolute worth of a large part of the system we administer, or of any other system, makes me very unwilling to increase the doubt as to what the court will do. I have noticed the opposite tendency in minds that regarded our corpus juris as an image, however faint, of the eternal law.

"As I have said, I have felt very sad at the thought of all that I leave, and sad with the wonder whether the work of twenty years, on which I have spent the passion of my heart, will be adjudged to have been nobly done. I have felt sad, too, with a different sadness in thinking of the future. It is an adventure into the unknown. No man can go far who never sets down his foot until he knows that the sidewalk is under it. But, gentlemen, it is a great adventure, and that thought brings with it a mighty joy. To have the chance to do one's share in shaping the laws of the whole country spreads over one the hush that one used to feel when one was awaiting the beginning of a battle. One does not forget the danger, but if victory should come! Victory shall come—with that thought the personal apprehension grows dim. The forces of one's soul rally and gather to a point. One looks down the line and catches the eye of friends—he waves his sword—it may be the last time for him or them—but the advance is about to begin. The troops are deployed. They will follow their leader. We will not falter, we will not fail. We will reach the earthworks if we live, and if we fall we will leave our spirit in those who follow, and they will not turn back. All is ready. Bugler, blow the charge!"

SET OF BLACKSTONE EDITIONS.

We have now in stock a nearly complete collection of all the editions of Blackstone's Commentaries;—more nearly complete (we believe) than exists elsewhere in England or America. It is for sale, if we can find any one willing to pay our price for it.

GOOD PORTRAIT OF JUSTICE HOLMES.

THE GREEN BAG for January, 1903 (price 50 cents—subscription, $4.00 per year), has an excellent full-page portrait of the new United States Supreme Court judge as a frontispiece, together with a biographical sketch and discriminating comment on his legal ability.

PUZZLING CITATIONS.

Do you not often run across citations which you cannot make out? If so, you should use the little desk manual called "ABBREVIATIONS USED IN LAW BOOKS" (sheep, $1.50), which contains a fuller and clearer explanation of legal abbreviations (incorrect as well as correct) than you can find elsewhere.

WILMOT'S (OR RAYNER'S) GLANVIL.

Antiquarians who have examined the different editions of the "Tractatus de Legibus et Consuetudinibus Regni Angliæ, compositus Justiciæ gubernacula tenente illustri viro Ranulpho de Glanvilla," may have been puzzled to find John Rayner's name signed to the preface of the 1780 edition, which the catalogues declare to have been edited by "John Wilmot, Esq., one of the masters in chancery."

An interleaved copy of this edition has just come into our hands, with the name of John Rayner crossed out (with ink) on p. viii., and with this note appended:—

"I had collated an old Edition by the encouragement of my Father when at Oxford in 1767, æt. 18, & having mentioned it to Sir W. Blackstone, he gave me another older edition, and finding another MS. or two in the Bod. Museum, which I at that time frequented viz. in 1777 or 1778, I collated these also, and another lent me by Dr. Milles, Dean of Exeter. Tho' no very material variations, I thought worth to print it in 1779; and as I did not like the servile labour of correcting the press and was too much & better employed, the Bookseller, Brook of Bell Yard, recommended what he thought a competent poor Law scrivener for that purpose: but I found he made so many blunders that I was obliged to do it mostly myself. I still however pd. him as I agreed, & employing him the last day and for the last time, to take a Commonplace Preface or Advertisement to Brook, not meaning to add but declining to add my name to the Edition or Preface, I received 250 Copies with the name of a Person, John Rayner, who did little more than go backwards & forwards to the Publisher as above.

"As however my purpose was equally answered, I let it go as it was.

"Brook afterwards put my name to his Catalogue with't my Knowledge.

"J. Wilmot."

GIVE AWAY YOUR OLD BOUVIER.

Yes, we can allow you something for your old edition of BOUVIER'S LAW DICTIONARY if you want to buy RAWLE'S REVISION. But we cannot allow you much, because the latter so thoroughly supersedes all former editions that they are not worth much to us or to any one else.

When you get RAWLE'S REVISION why not encourage some young lawyer or law student by giving him your old edition? Can't you get more satisfaction that way than by trading it to us for a song?

RARE, QUAIN AND INTERESTING LAW BOOKS

FOR SALE BY

THE BOSTON BOOK CO., 83-91 FRANCIS ST. (Back Bay), BOSTON, MASS.

These books are second hand, in old binding and fair condition, except as noted. Abbreviations signify — anon. = anonymous; bds. = boards; Camb. = Cambridge; c. = calf; cl. = cloth; ed. = edition; Ed. = Edinburgh; fol. = folio; hf. c. = half cloth; hf. m. = half morocco; L. = London; sh. = sheep; Suppt. = supplement; x = broken binding. The other abbreviations explain themselves.

As the arrangement under topics is sometimes rather eccentric, it may be well for those interested to search the lists all through.

INCUNABULUM.

Statham's Abridgment.—Folio: comparatively modern calf binding, broken . $250.00

"This Abridgment contains the cases down to the end of the reign of Henry VI. and is evidently THE FIRST ATTEMPT to METHODIZE OUR LAW as contained in the determinations that had taken place from the reign of Edward I. in the courts of law; and contains many original authorities not extant at large in the year books of these reigns."—Clarke.

Printed in a "Secretary type" resembling Court Hand, by Tailleur of Rouen, France, for R. Pynson of London, (whose name is appended to the Index) about the year 1490. It is one of the rarest of English law books,—a copy (probably in better condition than this one) having brought £160.00 at auction recently in London.

This copy is perfect and in a good state of preservation. Antedating the time of title-pages, it begins with a Table of three pages (mended at the edges) and has Tailleur's device on the last page.
